ALLIES HOPEFUL AS GENOA PARLEY ENDS; LLOYD GEORGE GIVES RUSSIANS WARNING; MUST AGREE AT THE HAGUE TO PAY DEBTS

REPUBLICANS HERE CALL ON MILLER TO LEAD PARTY AGAIN

SOUNDS CAMPAIGN SLOGAN

"Talk Versus Performance," He Says, Taking Hylan to Task for Playing Transit Politics.

HOUSING CRISIS DISCUSSED

Governor Says Traction Facilities Will Solve It—Defends Water-Power Legislation.

Formal demand that he lead his party in another battle for the Governorship and control of the State Government came to Governor Miller last night at the Town Hall. He had just finished an address of an hour and a half, in which he had reviewed the achievements of his Administration, when the summons came, accompanied by a great demonstration.

The meeting was under the auspices of the Republican County Committee, but fully one-half of the audience that filled the Town Hall to capacity consisted of men and women not actively interested in politics. There were almost as many women as men. The Governor had been received warmly, his speech had been repeatedly interrupted by applause, the friendliness of which the Governor commented upon in concluding his address.

Two years ago when he ran for Governor, and even a year ago—after the Transit bill had been enacted and the Transit Commission had begun its work—the attitude of the Republicans in this city toward Governor Miller was decidedly chilly. Last night his discussion of the transit situation and what had been done by his Administration to remedy conditions evoked more spontaneous applause than any other portion of his long address.

Rebuke for Hylan Cheered.

As unmistakably as though his name had been mentioned, Mayor Hylan was taken to task by the Governor for playing politics with the transit troubles of the city and incidentally with "the comfort, health and happiness of five and one-half millions of people." This rebuke of the obstructive tactics of the Hylan Administration roused the Governor's audience to vigorous applause.

"Let the dead past bury its dead," said the Governor in concluding. "Set your eyes ahead. Look to the future and move forward with confidence and you will certainly disperse the enemy."

At the end of the Governor's speech, Samuel S. Koenig, President of the Republican County Committee, recognized Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, to propose the customary resolution of thanks to the speaker of the evening. Dr. Butler, who was in a box, arose and said:

"In three words Governor Miller tonight has written a platform for the use of our party in the coming campaign. It is:

"'Performance Versus Talk.'

"There are those among us whom we justly call demagogues, who constantly pander down to the ignorant in envy, malice and all uncharitableness, and there are those among us whom we gladly call statesmen who appeal to intelligence, to human sympathy and to people of understanding. If it be that the Providence which rules our destinies is shortly to ask the people of this State to enter upon a contest between a statesman and a demagogue, I, for one, welcome the call to battle. The bugle call that shall summon us to such a contest will only precede by a few short weeks the shouts of a people's victory."

Chairman Recognizes Elsberg.

The audience cheered this allusion to a possible forthcoming battle between Governor Miller as a candidate for reelection and William R. Hearst, on whose behalf a fight is being made for the Democratic nomination for Governor. After quiet had been restored Mr. Koenig recognized ex-Senator Nathaniel A. Elsberg, President of the National Republican Club, who arose to second the motion for a vote of thanks to the Governor.

"The Governor tells us," said ex-Senator Elsberg, "that the Republicans of New York can go forward with confidence into the next campaign. I ask him—whoever was 'Hamlet' played without the presence of Hamlet on the stage?"

The audience clapped hands and gave three cheers for the Governor. When the tempestuous demonstration had ebbed out Mr. Elsberg resumed his seconding speech:

"I am reminded of a story that is told of the great captain of the Civil War whose anniversary we celebrated but a few weeks ago, and of the supremely great American who was in control of national affairs during the dark days of the Civil War. You remember that while Grant was winning victories on the field, a cabal of politicians in Washington was seeking to undermine him, and they went to Lincoln in an effort to have him dismissed from his command, and Lincoln said: 'I can't spare this man. He fights.'

"If I see signs of the times and read them right—and the wave is getting greater impetus every day—the people are going to say of Governor Miller: 'We can't spare this man. He fights.' And, what is more—he accomplishes

Back Party Nominees, The President Urges

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—President Harding wants Republicans in Indiana to support Albert J. Beveridge for Senator and those in Pennsylvania to vote for Gifford Pinchot for Governor. This was indicated at the White House today by an official authorized to speak for the President.

It had been the President's practice in thirty-four years of political life, it was said, to support the Republican nominee of conventions and primaries and his regularity had not changed. In the cases of Mr. Beveridge and Mr. Pinchot, it was stated, the President hoped that they would receive the loyal support of all Republicans. Both, it was added, were loyal supporters of the President's Administration and there was every reason why the President should give them his endorsement.

In connection with this statement it was reiterated that the President would not take part in any primary contests within the party.

HARDING SAYS TRADE IS RAPIDLY REVIVING

FACING LABOR SHORTAGE

Reports Show Unemployment Is Fading—Gompers Doubts Abolition of 12-Hour Day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—President Harding's views on business conditions, based upon advices received from all sections of the country, were made known at the White House today. In substance, the President believes that industry is on the eve of a wholesome revival, that agricultural conditions as a whole have improved and that unemployment is giving way to a labor shortage.

The significance of the President's estimate of the situation was stressed today by the fact that Mr. Harding recently has been devoting a large share of his time to conferences in special fields, of which last night's dinner to 41 steel executives and tomorrow's dinner to a score of railroad heads are the most noteworthy illustrations.

Mr. Harding's declaration yesterday at the convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States that "undoubtedly there is more than a business revival in sight" caused three reactions in Washington today. Partisan Republicans expressed this as justification of their party's policies. Foes of the Administration regarded it as propaganda designed to attract big business's support in the Republican campaign this Fall. An unprejudiced viewpoint, based mainly upon the fact that President Harding has been consulting recently with business men from all sections of the country, was that Mr. Harding was expressing an opinion formed from these advices and not from his routine appointments with politicians.

Harding's Reports Optimistic.

It was in response to requests for an elaboration upon the President's speech of yesterday that his views were made known at the White House today.

The country faces a satisfying, wholesome business revival, the President believes. He has been impressed with reports that he has received from industrial centres of the Middle West. Mr. Harding has information that the Detroit automobile industry is out of the doldrums and is taking on more men. With the inflation point nearly reached among the possible automobile owners of the country—those financially able to possess cars—the indications are that the automobile industry is becoming organized along the lines of maintaining this level without overproduction.

Reports coming from Chicago to the White House state that unemployment is decreasing and that the search for work is being displaced by employment agencies hunting for workers. The President is encouraged over reports from his own State of Ohio, including conditions at Akron, which has been hit by the setback in the rubber industry.

Conditions in agriculture have heartened the President. His information is that the grain growers are getting to their feet. On the other hand, he has been advised that stock raisers are still in a despairing condition.

Although a seasonal improvement in business conditions generally occurs at this period of the year, President Harding appears to be convinced that a large part of it is more than temporary.

2 KILLED, 7 INJURED, WHEN OXYGEN TANK BURSTS AT HARVARD

A. K. Dunbar, Research Worker, Is Blown to Pieces While Conducting a Test.

CARPENTER DIES OF SHOCK

TRYING TO SEPARATE GASES

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 19.—Atherton Kinsley Dunbar of Cambridge, fellow for research in cryogenic engineering at Harvard, and William Connell of Cambridge, a carpenter, were instantly killed late today by the explosion of a tank of liquid oxygen in the basement of the Jefferson Physical Laboratory at Harvard. An assistant and six other students were injured.

Dunbar, who was engaged in an army test experiment in liquefying oxygen, was blown to pieces. Connell, who was working in an adjoining room, was killed by the shock of the explosion. Two of the injured students were graduates assisting Dunbar in research work. The others, freshmen, were taking a lecture in a classroom above and were hurt when the rush of air blew the floor out.

THE DEAD.

CONNELL, WILLIAM, 48, Cambridge, carpenter, employed at the Jefferson Physical Laboratory.

DUNBAR, ATHERTON KINSLEY, 30, Cambridge, graduate of Harvard in the class of 1917, fellow for research in cryogenic engineering and assistant to Professor Harvey N. Davis.

THE INJURED.

DODGE, BARNETT F., Newtonville, first year graduate student and lecturer on chemical engineering; fractured ankle, cuts and bruises.

Dunbar was engaged in liquefying oxygen under pressure, using a compressor. According to the college office, the explosion was caused by something going wrong with the compressor.

Graduate students who had been assisting Dunbar in his experiments advanced the theory that the accident was due to a leakage of oil into the liquid oxygen tank. Dunbar had just oiled a valve at the top of the tank when the explosion came, it was said. The experimenter, who was close to the tank, caught the full force of the explosion and was blown to pieces. The others were thrown to the floor by the blast of air and gas, but escaped fatal injury.

On the floor above Mr. Hoover was conducting a course in physics, demonstrating to a class of freshmen an efficiency motor generator. According to the assistant, there was a sharp sound like the report of a gun, and then the floor of the classroom rose and there was a rush of gas and smoke. The generator fell from its stand on Mr. Hoover's foot, crushing it badly. Four members of the class suffered injuries to feet and ankles. Windows on two floors of the building and in the Cruft Laboratory nearby were shattered.

Dunbar had just recovered from injuries caused by a similar though less powerful explosion more than a month ago. He was in a hospital for some time and returned to his duties only two weeks ago. According to men engaged in research with him, he was trying to work out a cheaper process for the manufacture of certain gases for commercial use and also was investigating vapor pressure. Part of his work was experimentation for the United States Government.

Immediately after the accident an investigation was begun by Walter E. Weiger, expert assistant in the State Department of Public Safety; the Cambridge Fire Department, and Professor Walter S. Burke, Inspector of Grounds and Buildings, Harvard University.

The Jefferson Physical Laboratory was completed in October, 1884. Its erection was made possible by the generosity of Thomas Jefferson Coolidge and by the energy and foresight of Alexander Agassiz and Professor John Trowbridge. All the instruction in general

EX-KAISER WANTS MILLION FOR MEMOIRS

London Hears They Are Completed and Likely to Bring That Sum.

HIS VERSION OF THE WAR

And of Events in the Years Preceding It—Begun Just After He Was Exiled.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 20.—The Daily Chronicle publishes the following Berlin dispatch:

"Ex-Kaiser William has practically completed the manuscript of his long-expected book. Parts of it have been shown to likely foreign buyers here. I believe the ex-Kaiser is standing out for $1,000,000 for the foreign rights, and that he is practically certain to get that sum. At the present rate of exchange the amount is equal to nearly 300,000,000 marks, or four times what he has received from Germany since the revolution. Beside that figure the royalties from the sale of the German edition will be small indeed.

"The ex-Kaiser has, of course, had literary and other help in turning out the manuscript and has appealed to many of his old friends and advisers for counsel in the matter of what to say and what not to say. I hear Hindenburg was consulted with regard to a considerable portion of the narrative. The volume therefore will contain a very careful and guarded story. It will, of course, be argumentative and provocative regarding some of the happenings during the main period it covers—a number of pre-war years and those of the great world struggle—but there will be no political surprises, sensations or indiscretions.

"To what extent this coming book on Kaiser Wilhelm II. by ex-Kaiser Wilhelm II. will be a 'human story' remains a secret; but there cannot fail to be some personal and intimate patches in the story of his tremendous fall.

"The book was begun at Amerongen immediately after the exile took up his residence there, but was not intended for publication in the form in which it will now appear. The ex-Kaiser was then merely intent on having his defense on paper in case of need. Then the manuscript was put aside for a long while. The ex-Kaiser, I learn, harbored for a considerable time the hope that one day soon he would be able to return to Germany. For that reason he thought it would be inadvisable to publish a book. But that hope gradually waned, and with it all objections to giving the world his story. Since he has been living at Doorn the manuscript has been his chief preoccupation.

"The title for the volume has not yet been decided upon."

MAX OUSTED LUDENDORFF.

Col. Niemann Tells How Kaiser Dropped Him at Chancellor's Demand.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 19.—Lieut. Col. Niemann, the Kaiser's personal liaison officer in the final fatal stage of the war, gives in his memoirs interesting revelations of how Ludendorff was squeezed out.

After President Wilson's Metropolitan Opera House speech of Sept. 27, 1918, the supreme German command issued general orders to the army calling for "resistance against the foe's will for annihilation," signed by Hindenburg, but supposedly drafted by Ludendorff. This order was eagerly seized upon by Prince Max's Government as an excuse to get Ludendorff's scalp by threatening to resign if he were not shelved. The Kaiser, according to Niemann, returned to the New Palace at Potsdam exhausted by the strenuous developments of the day, but did not find rest, the chief of his personal Cabinet calling on him for fresh grave decisions.

Niemann says that the next morning, as he drove the Kaiser to the latter's car, the Kaiser spoke excitedly, saying that Ludendorff had conjured up a new Chancellor crisis; that the journey of the Supreme Command—Ludendorff and Hindenburg—to Berlin without his express authorization had done political harm, and that this proclamation to the army was another grave error.

The Kaiser temperamentally complained that, without consulting or even previously informing him and the Chancellor, Ludendorff had addressed a proclamation to the army which anticipated the Government's answer to the Wilson note. Niemann quotes the Kaiser verbatim:

"Prince Max has made his remaining in office dependent on Ludendorff's dismissal. For weeks I have been working with all my strength to weld all parts of the nation into one united front. Now the whole edifice threatens to collapse. It is, after all, an impossible state of affairs that such proclamations shall be issued without my or the Chancellor's consent. I see no other way out than to comply with the Chancellor's demand. Any other decision would lead to insoluble political difficulties."

Niemann then counseled the Kaiser to retain Ludendorff in office, but to offer Prince Max the top of the politic section of the Great General Staff. The Kaiser gave him no answer. When Niemann saw him again in the afternoon at Bellevue Palace in Berlin the Kaiser's manner had completely changed. The

15 NOW ARE HELD IN PLOT

CONFESSIONS ARE OBTAINED

Former Employes Tell How $1,477,000 in Canceled Bonds Were Stolen in Post Office.

Soon after seven young men were held in high bail yesterday by United States Commissioner Hitchcock in connection with the theft of $1,477,000 in cancelled Liberty bonds from the General Post Office on July 18 last, it became known that postal inspectors had hastened the arrest of the men the night before because they feared the band would attempt to hold up the Registry Department of the City Hall Post Office this morning.

The arrests, it was said, had been set for next week. Three postal inspectors had won the confidence of the band and fraternized with them in their rendezvous in an East Houston Street candy store owned by two of the men. They were reported to have told Inspector Joseph J. Doran, in charge of the round-up, last Thursday that the band was planning extensive robberies, including the hold-up of the City Hall Post Office, and suggested that the men be arrested immediately.

The round-up came about through the chance discovery by a Postal Inspector that Morris Steinberg, 19 years old, of 185 Clinton Street, one of the prisoners, was an intimate of Mark von Eschen, who was arrested two months ago when, with two other men, he attempted to dispose of $30,000 of the canceled Liberty bonds. These bonds, like others that the band tried to pass, had been altered with acids to remove the cancellation marks.

Six Inspectors Trail Steinberg.

When it was further learned that Steinberg was a clerk in the General Post Office, Eighth Avenue and Thirty-second Street, when the $1,477,000 in canceled bonds were stolen, half a dozen postal inspectors were assigned to trail him constantly. They found that Steinberg and Edward Fogel, 21 years old, of 15 Suffolk Street, a few weeks after the theft of the canceled bonds purchased a candy store at 112 East Houston Street, where there were almost nightly meetings with Gustave Feldman, 22 years old, of 60 Sheriff Street; Abraham Goldsmith, 23 years old, of 351 East Third Street; Harry Shapiro, 27 years old, of 124 Avenue D, and Gustave Gelles, 22 years old, of 53 Cannon Street.

When Inspector Doran learned of this rendezvous, he increased the force of inspectors on the case to twenty and began an investigation of the activities of the five other men who frequented the store. With the aid of clerks from the General Post Office and other stations in the city, all of the young men soon were recognized as postal employes or former postal employes.

It was discovered that about two weeks before the $1,477,000 bond theft Fogel had been discharged from the Essex County Jail in New Jersey, where he served three months for the theft of mail while employed at the foreign mail station at West and Morton Streets. Weinberg was found to be employed in the General Post Office.

Glover Comes From Washington.

With this information, Inspector Doran and Inspector Vick, who was in charge of the "field force" of inspectors on the case, decided they were on the way to a complete solution of the robbery, as well as of the plot to dispose of the bonds, which had already led to the arrest of Mrs. Abe Attell, divorced wife of the one-time featherweight champion pugilist; Von Eschen and seven others.

W. Irving Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster General, then was informed of the developments and came here from Washington. He was told that one inspector already had gained the confidence of the suspects, and a few days later this inspector got the two others into the band. Then, it was said, they installed a dictaphone in a place where the band frequently met, and through this other inspectors "listened in" on discussions of the band's activities.

During these discussions, it was alleged, frequent reference was made to various thefts from the mails in the General Post Office, the Foreign Department in West Street and the City Hall Post Office. Among them the theft of $8,490 in stock coupons from a package addressed to a bank in Watertown, N. Y., was mentioned. Some of the suspects

"Child of Cannes" Is Thriving, Says Barthou, And Can Stand the Journey to The Hague

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENOA, May 19.—M. Barthou stopped packing up long enough this afternoon to tell the correspondents what he thought of the situation.

"Lloyd George was the father of the conference," he said, "and the inviting powers the godfathers. The child was born at Cannes and taken to Genoa. Some said it was stillborn, others that it was worth looking after. This child in forty days has not died and now it is to be taken to The Hague. The only trouble is it has too many relations. Large families are always troublesome.

"Some relations love the child, others hate it because they hate some other relations. But the child is thriving and the day may come when we will be proud to say we were its parents. We think the child will stand its journey to The Hague, but when it gets there we must be careful of its diet."

M. Barthou said he was glad there had been no break between the Allies.

"Some time ago," he said, "Lloyd George said to me that England and France were the pillars of the temple of peace. I replied we must be careful not to let Delilah in. Delilah got in, but the temple still stands."

Europe Still Anxious to Find a Way to Help Russia, but Insists That the Ancient Code of Honor Toward Debts Shall Be Observed.

GENOA, May 19.—Before the final session of the economic conference today Prime Minister Lloyd George of Great Britain spoke as follows:

Mr. President—We have now come to the end of one of the most remarkable conferences ever held in the history of the world. The Genoa conference will be forever an inspiring landmark on the pathway of peace. Before we separate I feel it is a pleasure and privilege to us who have come from other lands to adopt a resolution of thanks, first of all, to our President for the tact and good humor with which he has presided over all our conferences; to Signor Schanzer for the very arduous and anxious labors which he has undertaken on our behalf and, if I may say so, especially for the skill and tact with which he has piloted us through the shoals and rocks and reefs of the political commission. We also owe a debt of gratitude to the people of Italy for a measure of hospitality which is worthy of a great and generous people. [Applause].

Never has a conference been better received. We owe also a debt to the City of Genoa for a reception which is worthy of a great and renowned city. Italy in her desire to extend us hospitality has shown us every specimen of weather which she can command. We have had, of course, as you naturally expect in Italy, sunny skies, but we have also had some of the angry and cold tramontana, we have had the clammy and depressing sirocco, we have had some thunderstorms, but it has all ended today in blue skies. That is the history of the conference. But you need all kinds of weather to make a good harvest, and if you look at what has been accomplished at Genoa you will find that we have reaped and garnered fine crops. There is the great pact of peace, there are the reports and recommendations of the Commission of Finance, the Economic Commission, the Transport Commission, all full of valuable recommendations which, if they are adopted and pursued, will help to restore prosperity and vigor to the depleted veins of Europe.

The Conference Justified.

The conference would have justified its existence had it only been for the work accomplished by those three commissions. It is true their task has been overshadowed by more controversial issues. That is what always happens when there is any great subject of controversy in the proceedings. But those of us who are acquainted with the task of legislation know too well that controversial legislation is not always the most fruitful, and that is equally true perhaps with the task of this conference, and there is a real danger that owing to the concentration of the thought of the conference and of the mind of the people upon the more debatable and dialectical of our work, work which is so vital to the interests of our people should be overlooked.

The recommendations of these commissions contain matter of the deepest moment in the restoration of the economic vitality of Europe, and I sincerely trust that the mere printing and circulation of those reports will not be the end of them. If it is, they will simply add to the paper currency of which the world has already too much.

They have to be converted into gold by the alchemy of action, and let us, each of us, when we go home bring them to the notice of those who are responsible for directing the affairs of our respective countries and by that means help to restore healthier economic conditions in Europe.

But still the real, I won't say interest, but the real excitement of the conference has centred in another issue, in the question of the relations of Russia with the outside world and of assistance which the outside world is prepared to render in order to restore that devastated country and to rescue its population from conditions which in many cases are conditions of deep misery and distress.

Russian Problem Calmly Debated.

It is a problem full of danger and difficulty, and if I dwell little upon it, I do so because we propose to continue our examination in another month's time in another form. It is surrounded by a jungle of prejudice, swarming with very wild passions, and therefore dangerous to approach. Let me say this about the conference and the way it debated that question: The discussions themselves have demonstrated the value of international conferences. Here is a question which has created many political crises in different countries, which has provoked wars and revolutions in two continents, debated in conference in an atmosphere of calm and courteous investigation.

What better justification could you have for conferences than that? All you have got to do in order to know how valuable conferences are is to consider the contrast between the tone of our deliberations. You might have imagined from some of those that we had come here not to promote general peace, but to organize a general Armageddon, and, if our discussion had been continued in that spirit, most of us would have passed from the Palazzo Reale to Campo Santo. But it was discussed in an atmosphere of calm and quiet.

What progress have we made toward the solution of that problem? Considerable progress. For the first time Europe has faced that difficulty and not shirked it, and half your troubles vanish the moment you face them, and the other half disappear if you continue to face them. That is what we have decided to do; we have decided to continue to face this problem, in order to struggle through, and that is the most courageous decision taken by this conference.

With full knowledge of the magnitude, the complexity and perils surrounding this problem we have decided deliberately to do our best to struggle through. That is a decision worthy of a great conference of nations. We have not gone as far as the most sanguine of us expected, but we have gone further than the doubters ever hoped or wished to go. There is no goal worth reaching which is as near as it appears to the hopeful nor as remote as it seems to the timid, and that is equally true of this.

Objective discussions are to be resumed in a different place, under different conditions, in a different manner, and I hope with a different result. We have a month for reflection on the difficulties we have had in this conference. Before we resume those discussions I sincerely hope that that month will be utilized with a view to discovering and suggesting solutions for these difficulties.

Effect of the Russian Note.

I should like to say one word in that respect upon the Russian memorandum. We make no reply to it, but we cannot allow it to pass without one sentence. I do so not in order to prolong the controversy, because the last thing I wish to do is to end these proceedings on a controversial note. But as one who has taken a very leading part in endeavoring to secure better relations between the East and West of Europe I should like to utter one word of warning. I do not know what the effect of that memorandum was in Russia, but I know that the effect outside Russia was disastrous. It produced a reaction against the spirit of GENOA, May 19.—The stormy, inconclusive, but always interesting, Genoa conference came to an end today with the adoption by the powers of the resolution to try again at The Hague next month to settle the Russian problem and of the promise by the powers, on the one hand, and Russia on the other, not to attack each other during the next eight months.

The final session was full of action. The Russians said mean things about the powers; Lloyd George, Barthou and Motta answered. The French and Germans aired their differences and Lithuania and Poland wanted to fight over the Vilna question. But, as Lloyd George observed, that was a good sign, because it showed every one was sincere.

The feature of the occasion was the British Prime Minister's advice to the Russians. He told them if they really wanted to borrow from outside the money, materials and brains they needed they had best stop talking about their principles forbidding Russia to pay her debts. He told the Russians if they came to The Hague and did not back down from the May 11 memorandum The Hague would fail. But he told them he expected them to back down.

Lloyd George Recounts the Gains.

Lloyd George began by telling the world the Genoa conference had done more than most folks thought. There were the recommendations of the Finance, Transport and Economic Commission, and there was the temporary compact of peace which he hoped would grow into a permanent treaty of nonaggression. Then he took up the Russian question, saying it "was surrounded by a jungle of prejudice swarming with very wild passions, and therefore dangerous to approach." But he said the Genoa conference had squarely faced the great problem for the first time, and, although the powers had not settled it at the first trial they would try again at The Hague.

"We have not gone as far as the most sanguine of us expected," he said, "but we have gone further than the doubters ever hoped or wished to go."

As he said this he faced the French delegation.

Then he gave his word of warning to the Russians, saying their memorandum of May 11 had been disastrous. He told the Russians their country needed help and Europe wanted to help. However, Europe was rapidly filling up the gap caused by Russia's vanishing from the international field. Therefore Europe could better do without Russia than Russia could do without Europe. He referred to the millions of hungry people in Russia.

"Prejudices" in Favor of Paying Debts.

"If Russia is to get help," he said, "Russia must not outrage the sentiments—call them prejudices if you like—of the world. What are those prejudices? I will name one or two, for they were all trampled on in the Russian memorandum. The first prejudice we have in Western Europe is this—if you sell goods to a man you expect to be paid for them. The second is, if you lend money to a man you expect he will repay you. The third is, if you go to a man who has already lent you money and say, 'Will you lend me more?' he will say, 'Do you promise to repay what I gave you?' And you say, 'No, it is a matter of principle with me not to repay.' There is a most extraordinary prejudice in the Western mind against lending any more money to that person."

He went on to say these prejudices were deep, inherited from the centuries, "and when you are writing a letter asking for more credits—let me give one word of advice to anybody who does it—let him not in that letter enter into an eloquent exposition of the doctrine of repudiation of debts. It may be sound, but it is not diplomatic."

He declared that if Russia was to get help she must "accept the code of honor which is the inheritance which has come to us from the centuries, from generations of hard-working and honest people." He compared this code of honor to a deep-rooted tree which the Russian tornado had not shaken.

Tchitcherin, who has to prepare his speeches to have them good, appeared at a loss when he got the floor. He said something about Russia having a prejudice that when a man whom she owed money to came and burned down her house he should pay for it—referring to the Allies' backing of the counter-

Dempsey to Wed Colorado Girl of Nineteen; "Twelve Kids" His Ideal of Home, He Says

Jack Dempsey is going to marry an American girl. He said so himself at Madison Square Garden last night, on the very day of his return from a European tour throughout which, according to cable reports, he was much courted.

The future Mrs. World's Champion, Jack says, is Miss Edith Rockwell, 19 years old, of Boulder, Col. They have known each other since Dempsey, who is due to be 27 years old next month, was a boy. Jack was born at Manassa, Col.

Enjoying a series of bouts from a ringside seat in Madison Square Garden, Jack found time to tell but little of his romance. The wedding, he said, would take place about Christmas, which may be in advance of the return match he is scheduled to fight with Carpentier in Europe.

He described the bride-elect as having red hair and weighing 134 pounds—54 pounds under his own catalogued weight. Asked if she possessed the disposition proverbially accompanying auburn tresses, Jack said she was very gentle.

Recalling the disappointment of hundreds of Paris girls whose proffers of romance and matrimony were rejected somewhat curtly by the American fighter, the reporter asked Jack why he had decided to marry a girl of his own land.

"I found that those European girls knew too much about men," he answered. "I don't want that sort of girl. I want to be boss of my own home."

The next question was as to Jack's "main idea" about marriage and home life. He thought but a second before he answered:

"Twelve kids."

Dempsey's trainer and secretary, Teddy Hayes, was not to be outdone by the boss. So when he heard that Jack was revealing the secret of his heart, Hayes announced that he was leaving at once for Los Angeles to marry Miss Florence Lee, a film actress.

Ford to Market a New Kind of Flour That Will Help Us All to Live 100 Years

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 19.—Henry Ford, the wizard of flivverdom, has, according to Blas A. Lackovic, his personal chef and private bodyguard, paused in his usual labors to invent and produce a new kind of flour that will undersell anything now on the market and will be, in addition, much more healthful and invigorating than any flour heretofore known. Lackovic is here with Mrs. Ford.

He says the new flour is made of wheat and is unbleached. It is flaky in composition, according to Lackovic, and makes the purest, whitest bread ever seen on any table. He waxes enthusiastic in its praise and asserts that it will prove far more healthful and life sustaining than the ordinary brands. He predicts that it will lead to a hundred years of life for its users.

According to the chef, Mr. Ford has built a small flour mill in Detroit, and is there experimenting with the new food. It has not yet been placed on the market, he says, but is used exclusively on Mr. Ford's own table. He adds that Mr. Ford will be able to sell it at 85 cents for a twenty-five-pound cask as against the present retail price of flour of $1.25 per sack.

Mrs. Ford, who came to Boston to see the famous Arnold arboretum, is making her home while here on the private car in which she made the trip from Detroit. It is one of the most elaborate ever built, containing a separate bedroom for every member of the party.

revolution. Then he declared that Russia accepted The Hague plan.

Tchitcherin kicked like a steer all the way through the meeting. When the report of the Economic Commission was presented he read a statement objecting that Senator Colrat of France, head of the commission, had omitted the Russians from the labor subcommittee, and then he attacked the whole spirit of the economic report, on the ground it did not pay enough attention to labor, and one clause he blamed on the wish "of certain countries like Switzerland" not to adopt the eight-hour law. Then he defended the eight-hour law as one of the bases of Russian policy.

M. Colrat made a stinging reply, saying the reason the Russians were omitted from the subcommittee was that they came so seldom to the meetings of the commission "we thought them not particularly qualified to share in the discussions."

As for Tchitcherin's general observations M. Colrat said: "The head of the Russian delegation is little qualified by the present economic prosperity of his country to come and give lessons in economics to other peoples."

Dr. Motta, head of the Swiss delegation, said his country would not be dictated to by the Soviets nor be taken to task by them. He said Switzerland was the oldest and one of the most successful republics, which was more than could be said of the Russian Republic, and he took pains to mention that his was a country which recognized the rights of all classes, including the working classes.

Rathenau Wins Most Applause.

Speaking on the economic report, Foreign Minister Rathenau of Germany made an excellent speech which won even more applause than that of Lloyd George. His reference to the need of peace in Europe stirred up M. Barthou to reply to the effect that he agreed, but thought the German Foreign Minister was not exactly the man to talk too much about the horrors of war.

In his studied address Dr. Rathenau argued that the indebtedness of European countries was too great, compared with their power of production. Countries which were both creditors and debtors did not know how much they would collect nor how much they would be able to pay. Therefore it was impossible to balance budgets or regulate exchanges. America was the only big country which did not face this problem, he said. These debts being impossible did not represent financial realities, but did represent economic realities, since they prevented the resumption of production. The only course to take was that of corporations when they got in the hole—reorganization and reduction of indebtedness.

In the second place, he argued, no country should prevent another from paying its debts. Debtor countries could pay only in goods, but when other nations put up barriers they prevented payment. In the third place, he said, there could be no economic reconstruction of the world until confidence was restored between nations. If Europe was not at war she certainly was not in peace.

"The world is still far from having realized that the impoverished debtor needs to be treated kindly," he complained.

Rathenau argued that productive machinery and man power was at least 90 per cent. of what it was before the war, but the world machine was not working and would not work again until all nations joined in the job of making it run once more. The peace compact of eight months was not signed, the nations giving their verbal adherence and the French and Belgium delegations promising to recommend its adoption to their Governments.

Many delegates made addresses thanking the Italians for their hospitality at Genoa and wishing Italy well. The session which began at 9 o'clock ended after 1 o'clock.

Belief in American Aid.

Lloyd George gave a luncheon to the British, Italian and American journalists. He made a warm speech of friendship for Italy, saying England and Italy must always march together for the good of the world, each having a sentimental and practical interest in the other's being strong. He did not mention France.

At the close of the address he referred to America in these words:

"The United States once came to our aid when we sorely needed help. I do not despair of her coming again. I believe she will."

Most of the delegations will leave Genoa tonight and tomorrow, the Russians getting away on Tuesday to stop at Berlin on their way home.

Formal Acceptance of the Truce.

GENOA, May 19 (Associated Press).—Foreign Minister Schanzer submitted to the final meeting of the conference today the project for The Hague meeting of experts and the text of the nonaggression agreement which would permit the discussion there with the Russians to take place in an atmosphere of mutual confidence, and especially in the spirit of pacification which he said had inspired the Genoa conference.

"The torch of this conference must not be extinguished," he declared. "Genoa passes it on to The Hague."

The nations represented, except Germany, were called upon to accept the truce, and the heads of the various delegations arose and announced their approval. Several of the nations accepted with reservations, especially the States on the Russian border which already have treaties of peace with Russia which are not to be affected by the truce.

M. Barthou of France merely said he would recommend the truce to his Government.

Canada and other parts of the British Empire accepted separately.

Japan made no reservation in her acceptance of the pact.

Former President Motta of Switzerland accepted for his country with expression of the hope that the truce would be made permanent.

M. Tchitcherin, head of the Russian delegation, prior to the passage of the resolution of the Economic Commission declared the Russian delegation found it highly abnormal that in the composition of the Technical Committee, which dealt with the questions of labor and which was formed by the personal decision of M. Colrat, France, President of the Economic Commission, representatives of Russia had been excluded.

"This exclusion is stranger," declared M. Tchitcherin, "considering that the very constitution of the Russian republic is founded on labor organization. The results of this exclusion are visible, for the report of the Economic Commission dealing with labor questions opens with a general remark stating the importance of the assistance of workers in the economic restoration of Europe. Yet we find no mention of legislation for the protection of workmen, leaving aside the question of unemployment. Neither do we find any proposal concerning co-operative societies, although the latter are an instrument of first value in order to improve the conditions of the working classes.

"It is regrettable in the highest degree that in the course of the labors of the Economic Commission the proposal about co-operative societies should have been put down. Furthermore, Article 21, which mentions the conventions of the labor conference at Washington, deprives those conventions of the greater part of their practical importance by confirming the right of members not to ratify them. Certain Governments, like Switzerland, desire not to accept the eight-hour day. The Russian delegation considers the eight-hour day as the fundamental principle for the welfare of the workers. Therefore, it raises formal objection against the liberty explicitly given to Governments not to apply it.

"Likewise, the conference did not consider the memorandum of the International Federation of the Amsterdam Syndicates, stating that the minimum of social justice as regards workers was an indispensable condition for the restoration of peace. The Russian Government has not recognized the League of Nations and, therefore, does not recognize the International Labor Bureau, but this in no wise modifies our viewpoint regarding the faults in the decisions of the Economic Commission on labor questions."

Continuing, M. Tchitcherin maintained all the other objections and reservations raised by the Russians, especially regarding the full and entire freedom of action which Russia will retain concerning provisions which entrust the League of Nations with official missions.

"The Russian delegation," said M. Tchitcherin, "must state that the general impression left by the report of the Economic Commission is that it is shorn of that boldness which is indispensable if one really means to undertake the work of general reconstruction. New political orientation should be the first condition of this, such as I sketched at the opening session of the conference."

M. Colrat denied that the Russians had been excluded from the commission, declaring that it had been felt that the Russians came to the meetings so infrequently that they were not qualified to share in the discussions.

Dr. Motta, Switzerland, protested against M. Tchitcherin's remarks concerning Switzerland and the eight-hour day. He said the eight-hour day was in operation in private enterprises and in the public services, and that Switzerland merely reserved the right to make modifications concerning it. He added that Switzerland always had stood in the forefront in seeking to benefit social legislation.

Vilna Dispute Brought In.

M. Galvanauskas, Premier of Lithuania, pointed out the impossible situation his country had been placed in to adhere to the conference decisions by reason of the military occupation by Poland.

"Poland by the forcible act of General Zeligowski, violated the convention with Lithuania concluded at Suwalki, and also its obligations toward the League of Nations," said M. Galvanauskas. "Defying the treaties in force, Poland continues her military occupation of the Vilna territory. That is why the Lithuanian delegation thinks Clause 6 of the non-aggression pact inacceptable, even if recognition of the territorial and political status quo is only temporary. The Lithuanian delegation has proposed and reproposed to Poland peaceful means for the settlement of their differences, conformably with law and existing agreements. Recently the Lithuanian Government proposed to Poland to appear before the Permanent Court of International Justice, but, unfortunately, Poland declined the invitation."

Constantine Skirmunt, Poland, replied that the differences between Poland and Lithuania presented to the League of Nations were closed last January. It was proposed to establish between the two countries a provisional line of demarcation, replacing the present neutral zone.

"We can accept a settlement," M. Skirmunt continued. "Yesterday the League of Nations again recommended a division of the neutral zone between the two countries and the sending of a commission there. The Polish representative accepted the League's decision. If the Lithuanian Government objects to the nonaggression pact this will in no wise alter the pacific attitude of Poland toward the Lithuanian Government, nor the feelings of the Polish people toward the Lithuanian people. We are ready at all times to enter into good neighborly relations with Lithuania, and even to recognize the Lithuanian Government de jure."

Japan accepted the nonaggression compact after having sent a letter to Signor Schanzer in which the delegation said it took note of the explicit declaration by the President of the first commission, according to which the arrangement in question did not affect in any degree the position of the Japanese troops in Siberia.

"The Japanese delegation considers, moreover, not only that the non-aggression pact does not interpose any obstacle to the previous agreement of the same nature," said the note, "but that a repetition of such agreements may have the effect of strengthening mutual confidence and contributing to the establishment of peace. Animated by a spirit of conciliation and attaching great importance to unanimous agreement, the Japanese delegation is glad to be able to state that it can now give full consent to the matter in question, it being understood that the declaration mentioned by the President is considered self-evident."

Rathenau Approves the Report.

During his address to the conference approving the report of the Economic Commission, Dr. Walter Rathenau, Germany, declared the historic value of that report would be more and more appreciated as the years passed. Yet he believed the world situation would improve only when the soundness of certain principles was recognized. The world must realize that the total indebtedness of its countries was too great, compared with their productive capacity. All the leading countries found themselves enclosed in a circle of indebtedness which made them almost all creditors and debtors simultaneously. That was why there was not a country today which could frame a budget based on real facts.

"There is not a country," Dr. Rathenau continued, "which can hope to stabilize its budget of payment and its exchange rate, with the notable exception of that great country (the United States) which is indebted to nobody and is the creditor of all and without whose help the final reconstruction of Europe is an impossibility."

Alluding to Germany and the reparation due to France, Dr. Rathenau contended that the impoverished debtor needed to be treated kindly and that he became incapable of payment if his last resources, namely his credit, is destroyed. Dr. Rathenau insisted that great sacrifices should be made by all to bring about a reduction in the great circle of reciprocal indebtedness and that universal attempts should be made to provide funds by mutual credits. Thus only, he added, could final restoration be achieved.

The report of the Economic Commission, which has been laboring for five weeks, studying projects for the economic reconstruction of the Continent, was presented by its chairman, M. Colrat, one of the French plenipotentiaries and Under Secretary of State in the French Cabinet.

In his address, M. Colrat said that one of the world's greatest afflictions was the absolute disorganization of production. The war had produced overmanufacture in one direction and undermanufacture in another. The world's economic harmony had been destroyed by an ignorant, presumptuous megalomania which must be reckoned with and overcome. Each nation must adjust its industries according to its natural resources and markets.

The Economic Commission, he said, was convinced of the preponderating rôle agricultural production must take in the restoration of Europe, and believed one of the most efficacious means of restoring European equilibrium would be to furnish tools and machinery to the peasants and educate them in the improved methods of agriculture.

M. Colrat stressed the great importance of the resolutions of his commission concerning raw materials, which the nations showed over-anxiety to hold within their own borders, to the detriment of the higher interests of all.

Passing to general considerations, he declared the time had arrived to return to healthier economics, conforming more to the equitable treatment of commerce which the League of Nations guaranteed to all peoples.

"The peace of the world," he said, "depends upon recognition of the treaties which unite the peoples."

The majority of the commission in discussing the tariff question had favored general adoption of most favored nation treatment, but believed it could not be enforced at present.

In conclusion M. Colrat warned that, above all, Europe must work assiduously and patiently, if it would be restored.

Count Teofilo Rossi, President of the Italian delegation on the Economic Commission, declared that the import and export prohibitions established during the war for reasons of necessity, and which are still maintained by several countries, form a barrier to international commerce.

Countries with a stable currency had done their utmost to decrease the purchasing power of countries with depreciated currencies, and had thus reduced their own possibilities of export. Those nations whose currency had depreciated had surrounded themselves with impenetrable barriers. This vicious circle, he said, must be broken; freedom of international trade must be restored.

Italo-Russian Negotiations.

The Russian delegation is remaining at Rapallo for a few days longer to continue negotiations on the Italo-Russian commercial treaty, which may be signed here before their departure, since the treaty is to become effective on June 26, the same day that the commissions of experts are to meet at The Hague.

M. Rakovsky of the Russian delegation, speaking on this subject, said that Russia's relations with Italy were "the best after those with Germany." Asked what would be the effect of the Russo-German treaty, M. Rakovsky said its consequences would be seen in a few days, and declared German traders would be the new pioneers in Russia.

Although the conference ended its work this morning, resolutions of protest and suggestions continued to pour in from all quarters. Signor Schanzer, during the final plenary sitting, received a strong protest from the Rhine delegation against the occupation of Düsseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort, asking that the Genoa conference and all peace-loving nations insist upon the immediate evacuation of those towns.

Prime Minister Lloyd George, before leaving Genoa, placed bronze wreaths on the monuments of Garibaldi and Mazzini, the first bearing the inscription: "To the great Italian liberator whom Great Britain loved." Inscribed on the wreath which he laid at the foot of Mazzini's monument were these words: "To the champion of oppressed peoples and the prophet of European brotherhood." Crowds assembled at each monument and cheered the British Premier.

During the entire conference the Italian and Jugoslav delegations have pursued negotiations for the solution of the Fiume question, which is now practically reached. Italy has declared herself ready to fully execute the Treaty of Rapallo declaring Fiume an independent State, and Jugoslavia has consented to conclude a commercial treaty with Italy. The idea to entrust the administration of the Fiume Harbor to a consortium formed by representatives of Italy, Jugoslavia and the independent State of Fiume has been abandoned, but it has been decided all the works in the Fiume Harbor, whether in Italian or Jugoslav territory, shall be under the administration of the same board.

BRITISH COMMENT DIVIDED.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 20.—Commenting on the achievements of the Genoa conference, The Daily Express says:

"Lloyd George is returning by no means empty handed. He secured a sure military truce which must last for another six or seven months and a great deal may happen to soothe the exasperated nerves of Europe within that period. So far the delay is clear gain against all the would-be disturbers of the peace. The Premier brings us back something more valuable than an economic agreement with derelict Russia, the certainty that the powers of Middle and Eastern Europe will not be at each others throats on the boundary question in the year 1922."

The Chronicle says:

"The circumstances that neither Signor Facta nor Lloyd George spoke yesterday in a downhearted or apologetic tone, but that both contemplated with pride and satisfaction the attainment of a great part of what they hoped for, will be duly weighed by all who are seeking in any fair spirit to strike the balance of Genoa's results. We are not sure that the most real and unique of all the conference's achievements is simply that every nation in Europe has been compelled to lay its cards on the table and disclose the temper and aims of its policy."

The Daily News says:

"If disappointment at the results of Genoa is great today, that is only the natural and inevitable result of exaggerated expectations artificially raised before the conference opened. For it is necessary to face frankly the fact that the Genoa conference has failed. Apart from the Russo-German treaty, which most assuredly was not among its original objects, the conference has taken no action that will leave any sensible impression on the face of Europe. It is impossible to view without misgiving such a speech as the Prime Minister delivered at the closing session of the conference yesterday, with the flamboyant optimism, its facile luxuriance of metaphor and its claim that the conference marks a vast step forward in the progress of Europe toward settlement and peace. One theory alone explains such language—that Lloyd George, having conceived the Genoa conference project and carried it through to its undistinguished end, is resolved at any cost to represent it as a signal success. The vice of that claim is that it substitutes fiction for fact at the moment when the supreme need of the world is to face facts fearlessly and honestly."

EASTERN NATIONS TO HOLD CONFERENCE

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 19 (Associated Press).—It is announced from Angora that a general conference of Eastern nations, including all those excluded from the Genoa conference, will be held at Moscow in June.

GENOA, May 19.—All the Oriental nations not represented in the conference united here in what was called the "Oriental Conference," passed unanimously today a strongly worded appeal to European and American public opinion. The nations represented were India, Egypt, Turkey, Afghanistan, Georgia, Azerbaijan, Armenia and Syria. The appeal says:

"The rivers of our venerable history, the sacred history of all civilized nations, are overflowing with blood. Look at the Ganges, the Tigris and the Euphrates, look at the Jordan and the Nile. Do not these names recall the most solemn moments in human history? On their banks there is war and desolation.

"Death has unfolded his black wings over the whole East, over an area far vaster than Europe. Nations which have been great and desire to be free are fighting with despair in their hearts against the imperialism of European nations, which move with violence against defenseless populations, using all the weapons devised by human malice, even poison gases, as has been recently done in Egypt and in Malabar, by order proclaimed by commanders of the British troops, despite the fact that such means of offense have been barred by agreement at Washington.

"The East does not hate Europe, for which it has done so much, but it hates imperialism—the mixture of injustice and violence of certain conquering countries. The East has given everything to Europe in its recent peril. The East remained calm when revolt might have precipitated Europe into far greater catastrophes. The East allows itself to be bled for the profit of certain powers which hypnotized it with promises which were never kept.

"These words we address to public opinion in Europe and America—an appeal from oppressed brethren to the sense of justice of the brethren who oppress us."

Another document issued was by Gabriele d'Annunzio, protesting against the treatment inflicted upon Montenegro. D'Annunzio recalls that on Aug. 7, 1914, little Montenegro spontaneously declared war against the powerful Central Empires in order to defend, together with Serbia, the cause which later became that of the entire Entente. Montenegro underwent enormous sacrifices. Half her army was annihilated, one-third of her population died through depredations and all her riches were destroyed.

"After the armistice," says the protest, "the Entente solemnly promised the full restoration of Montenegro, even adding promises of territorial aggrandizement. Poincaré, then President of the French Republic, in the name of the Allies guaranteed to Montenegro that its integrity and independence would be respected. Despite this, Montenegro, occupied by the Serbians, was annexed in 1918, but in January, 1919, the Supreme Council admitted Montenegro to be represented at the Paris Peace Conference, which urged Montenegro to remain tranquil, trusting to the decision of the allied powers."

D'Annunzio ends by invoking the much-hoped-for "Adriatic peace," which is only obtainable, he says, through reciprocal, brotherly collaboration, never through reciprocal aggressions. "All civilized peoples," he adds, "including Serbia, must allow Montenegro to choose her own government through self-determination."

FRANCE AND BELGIUM ACT TOGETHER ON OIL

PARIS, May 19.—As a result of negotiations at Genoa, an agreement is shortly to be signed between France and Belgium for the mutual defense of their oil interests in the Caucasus.

This accord is one of several results which have developed from the perturbation caused by the publication of the report that an agreement had been signed by the Shell Oil Company with the Soviet Government. Immediately after the report became current in Paris the Government, in alarm for the interests of French oil concessionaires in Russia, sent M. Laurent Eynac to Genoa to inquire into the affair and do whatever was possible to defend French interests.

M. Eynac returned to Paris yesterday and reported to the Government on the results of his mission. A Soviet agreement with the Shell Company, he said, had not been concluded, but in accordance with his instructions he drafted an agreement with the Belgians for the joint defense of French and Belgian interests. Further, as a result of negotiations with the British Government, he obtained an extension to the Caucasus of Article VI. of the San Remo agreement, which provided for equal distribution between France and Great Britain of oil concessions in the former Russian Empire.

A third result of M. Eynac's negotiations, which included informal discussions with Ambassador Child, was his conclusion that the interests and policy of France would best be served by adhesion to the American policy of the open door. It is believed, says the Matin, in a discussion of the report, that the United States Government will soon make an official communication of its views and wishes in this respect to the British Government.

GEN. CHANG WITHDRAWS TROOPS FROM KAIPING

Tientsin Believes This Indicates Wu Pei-fu Has Started Flanking Movement.

TIENTSIN, May 17 (Associated Press).—General Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian military Governor, has withdrawn his troops from Kaiping and Kuyeh, northeast of Tientsin, toward Lwanchow, a few miles further east toward the Gulf of Chih-li. Since it was only yesterday that General Chang announced that he intended to hold his positions at Kaiping and Kuyeh, it is surmised here that the flanking movement of General Wu Pei-fu has already begun.

Nine thousand Manchurian troops have now been repatriated from Tientsin to Newchwang, in the southern portion of Manchuria, and reports received here indicate that the presence of these penniless soldiers there is most unwelcome.

Telegraph lines between this city and Manchuria have been interrupted, but rumors have filtered through to the effect that General Chang is experiencing trouble in Manchuria.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Dr. Jacob Schurman, American Minister to China, has resisted pressure brought upon him by other diplomatic representatives in China urging him to obtain the co-operation of the United States in a decision to use the international force of troops now in China for the purpose of expelling the forces of General Chang Tso-Lin from the so-called two-mile zone along the Peking-Tientsin Railway.

Dr. Schurman has taken the stand that foreign troops should not be utilized until actual depredations have been committed within the two-mile zone or the operations of trains have been interfered with by the contending Chinese forces. The stand of the American Minister has the endorsement of the State Department.

SEEK SUGGESTIONS ON CRIME PROBLEM

Bar Association to Hold Hearings and Recommend State Laws.

Suggestions as to the best means to curb crime throughout the country will be received on June 1 at a public hearing of the Committee on Law Enforcement of the American Bar Association, to be held in the Bar Association Building, 42 West Forty-fourth Street. The suggestions will be taken under advisement on the following day and will be reported to the association at its meeting in San Francisco on Aug. 9.

Among the members of the Law Enforcement Committee expected to attend the hearings are the Chairman, William B. Swaney, former Attorney General of Tennessee; Judge Marcus Kavanaugh of Chicago, Charles S. Whitman, former Governor; Charles W. Farnham of St. Paul, Minn., and Wade H. Ellis of Washington, D. C., formerly Attorney General of Ohio. The committee during the last year has held similar hearings throughout the country and Canada.

The committee is expected to recommend State laws providing for a national bureau of criminal records; that State Attorneys General may collect forfeited bonds when prosecutors fail to act within six months; increased penalties where crimes are committed with the aid of pistols; the repeal of statutes making juries the judges of the law; making the use of an automobile in committing a crime a separate offense with a more severe punishment; steps to prevent abuse of the writ of habeas corpus, and habitual criminal acts for the permanent incarceration of persons convicted of three or more crimes.

VOTES TO EXCLUDE WOMAN FROM LORDS

REVERSES FORMER DECISION

Attorney General Contends That a Peerage Is Not a Public Function.

LONDON, May 19.—The attempt of Lady Rhondda, who is a Peeress in her own right, to obtain a seat in the House of Lords has failed, the Committee on Privileges appointed by that House having decided today against her by 20 votes to 4.

About twenty of the women holding Peerages are affected by the decision.

In spite of recent acts removing the disqualification of women from holding various public offices on account of their sex, the House of Lords has retained its ancient jurisdiction over admission to its membership. Involved arguments upon the legality of Lady Rhondda's claim were made before the Committee on Privileges, but its decision was entirely within its own discretion.

The result is that Lady Rhondda and other Peeresses may sit in the House of Commons if they can get elected, but cannot sit in the Lords.

Says Peerage Is Personal Grant.

LONDON, May 19 (Associated Press).—The Committee on Privileges of the House of Lords had been especially enlarged to consider Lady Rhondda's petition. It consisted of Lord Chancellor Birkenhead and thirty other Peers. The Earl of Donoughmore presided, and eleven law Lords were present.

Earlier this year the committee had reported in favor of the petition, but the House of Lords referred it back to the committee for further consideration.

G. J. Talbot, K. C., who appeared for Lady Rhondda, said the petition was based on the Sex Disqualification Removal act, which, he argued, removed the disqualification at common law for women to sit in the House of Lords.

Although the Crown previously had not opposed the petition, the Attorney General, Sir Ernest Pollock, strenuously combatted it today. The issue turned upon the solution of the question propounded by the Attorney General: "Is a peerage a public function?" To this question he emphatically declared: "I say no."

The Sex Disqualification Removal act provides that persons shall not be disqualified by sex or marriage from the exercise of any public function.

"It is a confusion of thought and language," said the Attorney General, "to say that the holding of the dignity of a peerage—a personal grant and dignity—is a public function."

The committee, after voting, intimated that it would give reasons later for refusing the petition.

Action of March 2 Reversed.

Lady Rhondda's petition to sit in the House of Lords was granted by the Committee on Privileges March 2, but when the decision was reported to the House late in March it was referred back to the committee on motion of Lord Birkenhead, the Lord Chancellor, who said that there were many serious legal points to be considered before the question was passed upon by the House as a whole, which action was necessary before the decision became effective.

The sentiment of the debate in the House of Lords over the reference back to the committee was apparently against the admission of women to the Upper Chamber, and the revised decision of the committee is in line with the position then reflected.

Lady Rhondda, daughter of the late Viscount Rhondda, Great Britain's wartime food controller, is one of the leading figures in the business world of Great Britain, having succeeded her father, long known as the British "coal king," in the direction of many of his large business enterprises.

WILL CHARGE PIRACY FOR BAHAMA ROBBERY

Federal Court of Florida Seeks Possession of Youth, Already Jailed for Bank Hold-Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., May 19.—Following a long investigation since the hold-up of a "bootleggers' bank" on West End, one of the Bahama Islands, the Federal District Court today asked Sheriff Baker of this county to hand over Hanford Mobley, a 17-year-old youth, to meet the charge of piracy.

Mobley is held by Sheriff Baker on the charge of robbing the Bank of Stuart on May 12 of about $8,000. Three bandits, one dressed as a woman, the rôle which Mobley admits he played, entered the bank about noon, held up the employes, gathered up loose currency and silver and fled in an automobile. Sheriff Baker caught two of the trio after a chase across country. The third escaped with most of the money.

ITALO-GERMAN AGREEMENT.

Germany to Get Back Property Seized in War for 800,000,000 Lire.

LONDON, May 20.—Italy has agreed to restore to Germany for 800,000,000 lire all German property in Italy seized during the war, except some which already has been converted for public utility, says a dispatch to The Times from Rome.

Germany is to pay the money in instalments. The agreement will be signed in a day or two.

POPE PIUS COMMENDS KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

ROME, May 19 (Associated Press).—Pope Pius is pleased over the proposal of the Knights of Columbus to institute welfare work among the youth of Italy. He directed Monsignor Borgongini-Duca, Secretary of the Congregation for Extraordinary Ecclesiastical Affairs, to send a letter to Edward L. Hearn, General Commissioner for Europe of the Knights of Columbus, asking for details of the plan.

The letter reads:

"Following the audience benevolently granted you by his Holiness, the Holy Father directs me to notify you of his sovereign pleasure over the noble sentiments of devotion expressed by you in the name of the well deserving order of the Knights of Columbus, especially for what you said the Knights of Columbus intend to do in seconding the desires of his Holiness for the welfare of youth.

"More particularly, the Holy Father is pleased with the proposal made by you to found in the neighborhood of St. Peter's, indeed on Pontifical territory, a work destined for the good of the children of people whose interest the Holy Father has so closely at heart, desiring that the young people of a district so densely populated and located so close to his person should have the best Christian education and advantages.

"To that end the Holy Father directs me to enclose herewith a topographical map of the ground and to notify you that he gives you full liberty to present to the Secretariat of State the plan for inaugurating the project which your order has so generously promised to establish.

"While his Holiness invokes from the Lord an abundance of heavenly favors on the work which the Knights of Columbus are accomplishing for the increment of religion and public morality, he, as a token of his paternal benevolence, imparts the Apostolic benediction to you as well as to the Supreme Council, Supreme officers, the Directors and each individual member and their families."

Mr. Hearn has opened offices in the central part of the city. He said today that the work would be carried on irrespective of religion, that the money for the project would be donated by individual members of the Knights of Columbus, and that no funds would be taken from the special war work fund subscribed by the public.

ANGORA GIVES ASSENT TO ATROCITIES INQUIRY

But Makes Nine Conditions to Acceptance of England's Proposals for Holding It.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 19 (Associated Press).—Under certain conditions, the Angora Government announces, it will accept the proposal of the British Government, as outlined in the House of Commons by Austen Chamberlain, for an international inquiry into alleged Turkish atrocities. The conditions are:

First—That the commission of investigation must include, in addition to the Allies, American, Turkish and Russian commissioners.

Third—That a survey of the military situation in Anatolia be excluded.

Fourth—That the investigation be conducted in the regions where massacres are reported.

Fifth—That a similar investigation be carried out also in the area under Greek occupation, the Nationalist Government to supply the commission with information as to where Turks were massacred.

Sixth—That the conclusions of the commission of investigation be made public.

Seventh—That the Nationalist Government be permitted to exact apologies if Mr. Chamberlain's charges are unfounded.

Eighth—That if the inquiry reveals massacres of Mohammedans both in Anatolia and the Marmora coast, the Greeks will be asked to pay indemnity.

Ninth—That if the above conditions are accepted the Angora Government be not the object of investigation.

Comment in the Turkish newspapers on the speech of Mr. Chamberlain is hampered considerably through the censorship, several newspapers appearing with blank spaces indicating deletions. The general tenor of the comment is that the speech is part of a vast anti-Turkish campaign designed to wreck the peace negotiations, and that the result desired by Great Britain is a long postponement of a settlement of the Turkish problem.

The papers publish prominently a dispatch alleged to come from Washington, stating that the United States is not likely to accept the invitation to participate in the investigation.

RETURNS "HAIRY APE" COPY.

McAdoo's Action, Without Comment, Viewed as End to Incident.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo, who has been examining the manuscript of Eugene O'Neill's "The Hairy Ape" because of police complaints that it was indecent, returned the copy of the play last night without comment. His action was generally interpreted to mean that no further steps would be taken.

In denying yesterday that he had written to the play's producer Magistrate McAdoo is believed to have been actuated by a reluctance to have the play profit by the advertising that such a step would give it. In his letter to Mr. Hopkins, shown at the Plymouth Theatre yesterday, the Chief Magistrate declared that his action was "not necessarily public."

Lloyd George's Last Word at Genoa

settlement, and if it were the last word to be uttered by the Russian Government I should really despair of accomplishing much at The Hague. I am referring to the 11th of May memorandum.

Russia needs the help of Europe and the world needs the produce which Russia can contribute. Russia needs the accumulated wealth and skill which the world can place at its command to restore it. Russia cannot recover for a generation without that help.

Europe is more and more filling up the gap left by Russia. Russia needs more and more the help which the world can give and which the world is anxious to give. Either from pride or prejudice, we have not in the course of these discussions referred to the fact that even at this moment there are millions of people in Russia standing on the brink of famine and pestilence who may perish without help. If Russia needs help she can get it. But will the Russian delegation allow me in a friendly spirit to say one word? If Russia is to get help, Russia must not outrage the sentiments—or if they like let them call them the prejudices—of the world. There is real sympathy for her condition. What are those prejudices?

I will just name one or two, because they were all trampled upon in the memorandum of May 11. The first prejudice we have in Western Europe is this, that if you sell goods to a man you expect to get paid for them. The second is that, if you lend money to a man and he promises to repay you, you expect that he will repay you. The third is this, that if you go to a man who has already lent you money and say "Will you lend me more?" he will say to you "Do you propose to repay me what I gave you?" And you say "No, it is a matter of principle with me not to repay." There is the most extraordinary prejudice in the Western mind against lending any more money to that person. It is not a matter of principle. I know the revolutionary temper very well and the revolutionary temper never acknowledges anybody who has got principles unless he is revolutionary, but these prejudices are very deep rooted, they are rooted in the soil of the world, they are inherited from the ages and you cannot tear them out. When you are writing a letter asking for more credits—let me give one word of advice to anybody who does it—let him not in that letter enter into an eloquent exposition of the doctrine of repudiation of debts. It does not help you to get credits. It may be sound, very sound, but it is not diplomatic.

Russia Must Accept the Code of Honor.

Now I have only one or two more words. Europe is anxious to help. Europe can help. Europe will help, but Russia must in her dealings with her accept the code of honor which is the inheritance which has come to us from centuries of generations of hard working and honest people and which has struck deep into the soil of the world. Not even the Russian tornado has split one fibre of a single root of those prejudices, upon which our system depends, and I do implore, as a friend of Russian peace, as a friend of co-operation with Russia, as one who is in favor of going to the rescue of those great and gallant and brave people, I implore the Russian delegation when they come to The Hague not to go out of their way to trample upon these sentiments and principles which are deeply rooted in the very life of Europe.

At Cannes we threw out the life line; we have not yet drawn it in, as I thought we might. Neither has it been snapped, neither has it been let go; it is still there. We would like to draw all the distressed, all the hungry, all the suffering in the East of Europe back to life with all the health that the accumulated energy and skill of other lands can give them.

We have signed a pact of peace. It is a provisional one. Is it for months—ah, it is more than that. We have decided on peace among the warring nations. Once you establish it the nations are not going back upon it. We have decided to give peace a trial on our hearthstones, and when she has been there for seven months we will not turn her out again.

The psychological effect upon the people of the world will be electrical. A thrill of peace has gone through the veins of Europe, and you are not going to get any nation lifting up her hand against another nation again. There has been nothing more striking at this conference than the deep, passionate desire not to have a rupture, not to have a quarrel, but to live in peace and amity all together. Believe me, peace is recovering her gentle sway over the hearts of men, and in this conference, by this pact we have adopted today, we have paid homage to her sceptre.

GUNMEN KILL EIGHT IN ULSTER OUTRAGES

Four Men Are Shot Dead in County Derry and Three and a Woman in Belfast.

BUSINESS PLACES RAIDED

Incendiaries Fire Six Buildings in Northern City in the Early Morning.

BELFAST, May 19 (Associated Press).—Four men, all of them Catholics, were dragged from their beds at Desertmartin, County Derry, early today, and murdered. Half of the village was burned.

It is believed here that the outrage was meant as a reprisal for the recent murders of members of the constabulary in South Derry.

The victims were John Higgins, aged 60; Frank Higgins, aged 18; Henry McGreghan, aged 27, and James McGreghan, aged 40. The bodies were found in a heap.

The buildings burned included a flour mill, the residence of a Catholic named Wilson and two saloons. The residence of Magistrate Heggarty was fired into, and a number of other houses were wrecked and their furniture destroyed.

Four armed men held up a Southern mail train, bound for Dublin, at Sallins, County Kildare, this morning. More than 100 registered letters and four mail bags, consigned to the Provisional Government, were seized.

Detective Constable Haslip was attacked and fatally wounded while on duty in Belfast this afternoon. Firing was resumed in the New Lodge Road area tonight. A boy's shoulder was shattered by a rifle bullet, a woman was killed and another woman and two youths were wounded.

Nine armed men entered a Belfast cooperage this afternoon and shot four of the workmen. Two were killed outright and the others tonight were reported dying. Before firing, the attackers asked the victims what religion they professed. A bystander was also wounded during the shooting.

The terrorists began their work early this morning. Two hours before the expiration of the Curfew period incendiary blazes were started in different parts of the city, and before nine o'clock six buildings were on fire, including the offices of a distillery.

Soon after midnight a number of armed men attacked the barracks of the special constabulary in Dock Street and a fierce conflict ensued in which several of the attackers were injured. It is reported that three motor cars were used to remove the wounded. None of the constables was injured.

The staff at the offices of the whisky distillery, which was the Doran plant, were forced to face the wall and were covered with revolvers, while the other raiders carried out the work of destruction. After a time, however, the guard told the office men to make themselves comfortable and handed around cigarettes.

The premises involved in the incendiary attack included principally establishments conducted by wholesale concerns. Two of the outbreaks were of considerable extent, but in the majority of cases the firemen quickly extinguished the flames.

In one case the incendiaries entered a moving picture theatre, held up the charwoman and sprinkled the place with gasoline. The caretaker of the establishment, on entering, was struck on the head by the butt of a revolver, but managed to escape and give the alarm. The total damage, it is estimated, will reach many thousands of pounds.

The headquarters of the new Ulster infantry brigade will be at Aldergrove, eighteen miles from Belfast, it was announced today. The brigade is formed of battalions from Cork, including troops from Staffordshire, Northampton, Greenhard and Hampshire. This means that there are now about nineteen battalions in North Ireland, although some are greatly reduced in strength.

GRIFFITH TELLS DAIL FORCE WILL BE MET

In Bitter Debate He Denounces Those Who Would Shed Irish Blood to Prevent Vote.

DUBLIN, May 19.—All efforts at agreement between Michael Collins and Eamon de Valera have failed. The two leaders conferred two hours today and then took their seats in the Dail when the Secretary of the Committee of Ten made the fateful announcement that no advance toward a settlement was possible.

Discussion then arose as to recording the minutes and reports of the army officers and of both groups in the Peace Committee. Ultimately, on Deputy McCarthy's motion, this was agreed to and Arthur Griffith moved a resolution decreeing an election for the twenty-six counties' nominations for June 6 and polling June 16.

He reviewed the whole position of the Sinn Fein plenipotentiaries appointed to make the treaty with England and referred to the objections to the election and the efforts to accommodate the opposition. He said the people had been kept in suspense for six months, muzzled and denied fundamental rights and measures affecting their lives, properties and destinies. The time is now come, he declared, to end this state of affairs.

He alluded to the opposition to the Provisional Government's right and power to govern and again declared that the long-suffering Irish would suffer no longer so far as his side of the House was concerned. He recognized no authority higher than the people and would permit no threats or intimidation to prevent them exercising their rights. If this country or any other country, he said, was going to submit to the rule of the revolver civilization was scrapped.

They offered the opposition everything, he declared, provided they didn't prevent the people working for the treaty, but they refused everything with an insolent threat of civil war. A Government held up by such a threat would be a Government of poltroons.

Griffith emphasized in conclusion that they were prepared to meet any force used against the fundamental rights of the people.

Deputy O'Higgins, seconding the motion, made reference to the words "wading through blood," alleging its use by de Valera, who jumped up and denied the Deputy's interpretation. O'Higgins accepted the denial. Charles Burgess, speaking for the opposition, said if the elections were proceeded with Ireland would be divided into two British dominions. The elected plenipotentiaries of the people, he said, turned the republic into a British dominion. He, too, reviewed the events connected with the plenipotentiaries, making statements which frequently evoked from Griffith the words "absolute falsehood."

Burgess declared that the treaty would never have been passed by the Dail were it not that the Supreme Council of the Irish Republican Brotherhood called on each member of the Dail who was a member of the brotherhood to support the treaty. The body used to bring the republic into existence, he said, was prostituted to disestablish the republic.

Boland said a decree of election for the twenty-six counties may be a violation of the treaty, which the previous speaker had said regarded Ireland as one unit for the Free State's purposes. He appealed to the Government not to persist in the election.

DUBLIN, May 19 (Associated Press).—The Dail Eireann met today expecting to learn something of the progress of the negotiations between Michael Collins and Eamon de Valera on the possibilities of peace and the formation of a Coalition Government, but although Collins and de Valera were present nothing was said on this subject. Harry J. Boland of the anti-treaty group moved that the House consider and vote on the points on which the Committee of Ten failed to agree, and this was taken generally as an indication that the de Valera-Collins negotiations had been of no avail.

The Speaker ruled the Boland motion out and the question of elections was taken up, debate on which soon put peace in the background.

Arthur Griffith was more than usually determined in his decision and language, insisting upon the people's right to be consulted. This debate revealed a more bitter temper than has been apparent in the Dail for a long time.

Mr. Griffith in a strong speech dealing with the delays caused by the treaty opponents, who he said rejected every effort at a compromise, declared nothing more insolent could be found in the history of modern civilization than the minority's claim to deny the people's right to determine their own future.

The men making this claim, he added, were greater enemies than the British because they wore the mask of patriotism. It was time this humbug ceased. They would be poltroons if they submitted to a tyranny which he described as meaner than England's. The opponents represented only 2 per cent. of the inhabitants of the country who stood like highwaymen with pistols at the heads of the people.

"They will not have our votes," Mr. Griffith shouted, "and they will find some trouble in having our lives."

He continued:

"We have offered our opponents five seats for one they will be able to win, and have even offered to allow them their existing seats, but have been met with an insolent threat of civil war. If we are faced with an armed force we will meet it, and those shedding Irish blood rather than allow the people to vote will be branded with greater infamy than Dermod MacMorrough."

Lord Mayor O'Callaghan having severely criticised the speaker's ruling with regard to the Republican proposal, Speaker MacNeill delivered a speech justifying it. He censured Griffith for comparing the treaty opponents to MacMorrough.

Griffith retorted that when he was attacked for months past, the speaker never protested, but now he was condemned for saying something he would repeat. MacMorrough was the man who brought the British into Ireland, and those opposing the election by force of arms would bring the British back.

BERLIN TREATY WITH SOVIET

London Times Renews Charges of a Secret Military Agreement.

LONDON, May 19.—The Times announces that it has received confirmation from Germany of its recent Warsaw dispatch which reported the signing of a Russo-German military agreement in Berlin on April 3. It is said that the agreement was signed by Major Gen. von Seeckt, the German Chief of Staff; Vice Admiral Behncke, and other German officers, and that the Russian signatories were Novitsky and Stefanov. It is understood that General Ludendorff opposed any agreement with the Soviet, but was overruled by the General Staff.

PERSHING NEARLY EXCLUDED

Narrowly Missed Staying Home in War, General Scott Says.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—A bit of unwritten history indicating that General John J. Pershing narrowly escaped being kept at home when America got into the World War was revealed tonight by General Hugh L. Scott, former Chief of Staff of the American Army, in an address at a dinner of the Twenty-eighth Division at the Union League.

According to General Scott, enemies of General Pershing telling "tales that were not true" had succeeded in convincing the President that Pershing had not carried out his instructions during the expedition into Mexico. General Scott was aware of the fact that Pershing was not in favor with President Wilson when the Secretary of War went to him to initiate steps for selecting a commanding officer for service in France.

"I asked the Secretary of War to suspend action on what he was planning to do until I could get in touch with General Pershing and present his side of the case," said General Scott. "The Secretary agreed. I wrote to General Pershing and explained the situation.

"Within a short time I received an answer from General Pershing, a fine, manly letter. I carried that over to the Secretary of War and asked him to see that it was placed in the hands of the President. The letter cleared up the situation. If it had not been for that action he would never have gone to the World War."

Morgan Partner Wins Commons Seat

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, May 19.—Edward Charles Grenfell, candidate for the seat in Commons, made vacant by Mr. Balfour's elevation to a peerage, won a decided victory in tonight's election in the city district. Mr. Grenfell, who is a partner in Morgan, Grenfell & Co., the English branch of J. P. Morgan & Co., obtained a large majority of votes. His success is attributed to dissatisfaction among business men over squabbling politicians in the House.

tension had relaxed and he was almost jolly. He told Niemann that he would send the chief of his personal Cabinet to the Chancellor and ask him to withdraw his demand for Ludendorff's dismissal on the promise that the Supreme Command would refrain from dabbling in politics.

Soon after that Hindenburg and Ludendorff were announced. Niemann rejoiced, thinking that everything had been patched up; but a little later he saw Hindenburg and Ludendorff emerge from the palace separately. He says he instinctively knew that these two men, so long intimately connected, were no longer to work together. A few minutes later Niemann was walking beside the Kaiser in the palace park. Again he quotes the Kaiser verbatim:

The Kaiser spoke under deep excitement, his nerves quivering.

"General Ludendorff bitterly reproached the Government because it had not protected the army leadership and had left unheard-of abuse of the General Staff unanswered. I tried to make clear to the General that a very difficult political situation, after all, had been created by the military situation, and called his attention to the shock that had been caused by the sudden demand for an immediate armistice. I announced my will to detail two high army leaders to Berlin to report to the Chancellor and the War Cabinet on the condition and spirit of the troops and to support the supreme command. I expressly emphasized the point that these two generals were not to criticise operative measures, but merely had the task of affording moral backbone to the doubting Government. But the General saw in this measure a lack of confidence on my part and requested that his resignation be accepted. I could do nothing else than grant his request.

"I offered the General any employment agreeable to him, but he begged to be excused from any other employment because his state of health required his getting out of harness.

"Then Hindenburg came to me with the request to be relieved from his command; but I represented to him that he was the palladium of the German people and must not desert the Fatherland in this hour of its utter need. After a severe mental struggle Hindenburg agreed."

JUDGE REFUSES TO FREE BLIZZARD

DEFENSE OPENS CASE

Witnesses Testify Indicted Union Official Went to Logan County at Federal Request.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., May 19 (Associated Press).—Judge Woods today overruled a motion to direct a verdict of not guilty in the case of William Blizzard, mine union official charged with treason as a result of the armed march last Summer against Logan County non-union coal strongholds, and the defense for the United Mine Workers began the presentation of its case.

Taking up one by one, in his decision the principal points advanced in the arguments, Judge Woods held first that there had been evidence sufficient for consideration by the jury that war existed and had been levied by the armed men. He also reviewed the argument that treason against a State was impossible because of the division of authority between State and Federal Governments and held that this position could not be maintained.

The court ruled that the allegation that Blizzard furnished arms and ammunition to the fighting forces could not be considered as an overt act on the ground that there were not two witnesses to this.

To another question he said the evidence of other things was not excluded as to the general aspect of the case.

Declaring that it was necessary to determine whether the purpose of levying war was private or against the State, the Judge held that if the purpose were to coerce the Government or the State to adopt or abandon any public policy it would be war against the State and would mean treason.

What the purpose was, Judge Woods ruled, ought to go to the jury for determination. If the purpose were treasonable, he held, it did not matter whether the forces that the armed men met in Logan County were raised in accordance with the technical requirements for raising the militia. As to whether the evidence presented by the State was sufficient to implicate Blizzard in the march and its purpose, the Court ruled that conferences between the defendant and his confederates in Kanawha and Boone Counties were proper to go to the jury on the general aspects of the case, but none of his acts except those in Logan County could be relied upon as the overt act.

Testimony that Blizzard went to Logan County last Summer as a result of requests by army officers while members of the union of which he is an official were fighting against State and county officers was introduced as the first step of the defense.

Two witnesses for Blizzard, both testifying as to his presence in Charleston at times when the prosecution's testimony showed him on the march that preceded the Logan battles, were called. One, William Petry, Vice President of District 17 of the union, also said he sent Blizzard, a sub-District President, among the fighting men to induce them to return home, acting on the request of Brig. Gen. H. H. Bandholtz.

Opening for the defense, H. W. Houston, its chief counsel, said it was conceded that Blizzard was in Logan County while fighting was going on there, but that he was sent there as a result of Federal officers' request and that during the time State testimony showed him to have been leading some of the marchers he was at Charleston or at his home in St. Albans.

Petry was followed by Roy Roberts, a newspaper man, who testified to seeing Blizzard at the union headquarters and other places in Charleston on every day from August 24 to Sept. 1. It was on Sept. 2 and 3 that the defense conceded Blizzard was in Blair and other Logan County towns.

That Blizzard at no time had any intention to attack or impair the Constitution of the State was one of the main contentions of the defense, H. W. Houston, chief of the United Mine Workers' attorneys, declared in opening the defendant's case in the afternoon.

As to Blizzard's presence at Blair in Logan County at the time of the fighting between armed miners and forces defending Logan, the defense announced it would show he went at the request of United States army officers through another official of the United Mine Workers.

OBJECT TO HOOVER PLAN.

Ohio Owners of West Virginia Mines Call Distribution Unfeasible.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, May 19.—An effort to settle the coal strike is being made in Cleveland. A group of operators who have been conferring for several days is taking steps to get action looking toward a settlement.

The movement to start negotiations here follows that of the Illinois operators who on Thursday demanded that the United Mine Workers declare their plans. Among operators with interests in Southern West Virginia the suggestion of a clearing house, made in a conference of operators with Secretary Hoover on Wednesday, was the subject of much unfavorable discussion. No operators, in a number interviewed, believed such a plan feasible.

An official of one company said the pressure for the new plan of distribution was coming from the railways, but that no scheme for allocating coal supplies would be successful as long as the steel companies were demanding fuel in present quantities.

UNION SUED FOR $1,000,000.

West Virginia Operators Allege Damages in 1919 Strike.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 19.—An echo of the 1919 coal strike and subsequent disturbances in the southern West Virginia fields came today when a civil suit against the United Mine Workers of America asking $1,000,000 damages, growing out of the shooting up of Willis Branch Coal Company property, was filed with the clerk of the Federal Court.

The town of Willis Branch was shot up between September, 1919, and May, 1921, according to officials of the company, with a resultant damage of $150,000. The disturbances are said to have followed the refusal of operators to adopt the check-off system. They started an open shop.

Tennessee Coal and Iron Boosts Wages.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 19.—Wage increases of 15 per cent. to ore miners and 10 per cent. to coal miners have been made effective as of May 16 by the Tennessee Coal Iron & Railroad Co. The advance, described as the first upward movement of wages in this district since the post-war depression, was made on the company's initiative. Officials said the corporation's plants were operating above normal.

Fred H. Adams Gets City Post.

The Board of Estimate yesterday appointed Fred H. Adams Secretary of the Committee on Court House to succeed Percy Michelbacher, who resigned. The salary is $6,000 a year. Mr. Adams had been employed by the City News Association for the past twenty-one years. For ten years he had been assigned to the City Hall. He is Secretary-Treasurer of the Association of City Hall Reporters and is Recording Secretary of the Newspaper Club, recently organized.

KU KLUX CANDIDATE AHEAD IN OREGON

Is Leading Gov. Olcott in Primary—McArthur, Who Opposed Bonus, Apparently Wins.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 19.—Two hours after the polls closed tonight in the bitterest primary campaign in the history of Oregon the indications pointed to the re-nomination of Representatives McArthur, Sinnott and Hawley for seats in Congress.

M. E. Crumpacker, son of the late Congressman from Indiana, who made a bitter campaign against McArthur, has fallen by the wayside and appears tonight to be the third man in the race. McArthur was opposed by three ex-service men because he did not favor the bonus.

For Governor Charles Hall, who is supported by the Ku Klux Klan and the patriotic societies, is leading Gov. Olcott on the Republican ticket, and Walter M. Pierce is leading the Democratic ticket.

For National Committeeman Ralph E. Williams will apparently win on the Republican ticket as against O. H. Fithian, Progressive.

The vote probably was the heaviest ever polled in any primary in the history of Oregon.

UMBRELLA HANDLE AIDS ARTIST THIEF

Sculpture Fancier Blamed for Loss of 'The Dancers,' Hooked From Window.

An art collector of small means and with an irresistible desire for bronzes is believed to be responsible for a series of robberies in art galleries in this city. The latest theft was reported to the police yesterday. On Thursday night a man broke the window of the Milch Galleries at 108 West Fifty-seventh Street and, disregarding art object of much greater value, with an umbrella handle fished from the centre of the window "The Dancers," a bronze sculpture by Harriet Frishmuth, valued at $450.

This makes the second bronze stolen from these galleries in two months. Just before the first theft an attempt to pilfer a bronze group from the gallery on the second floor was frustrated by the vigilance of an attendant. On the day of the first robbery three bronzes were also stolen from the Kennedy Galleries, 613 Fifth Avenue. Several months ago Malvina Hoffman's "Shivering Girl" disappeared from the Ferargil Galleries, 607 Fifth Avenue.

The entrance to the Milch Galleries is narrow. The door is set back so that the side glass of the window forms one side of the entranceway. A taxicab drove up to the Lotos Club, on the same side of the street, at 11:45 o'clock Thursday night in the midst of a heavy rain. While a passenger was alighting the chauffeur noticed a man sheltered in the doorway to the art gallery and partly hidden by a large umbrella held extended outward toward the rain.

The chauffeur was about to start off when he heard the sound of breaking glass. Looking around, he saw that the man in the doorway had closed the umbrella and appeared to be jabbing at the side window of the gallery.

Convinced that a robbery was in progress, the chauffeur drove hurriedly up Fifty-seventh Street, found a policeman and, with the latter on the running board, drove back to the galleries. The thief had escaped.

Investigation showed that a hole had been cut in the lower inner corner of the side window. "The Dancers" group had occupied a position several feet from the hole and in the centre of the window. It is believed that the robber hooked the bronze and dragged it to the opening with the handle of his umbrella.

"The Dancers" are two nude figures, male and female, their hands joined and each with one leg raised in a merry dance. The figures are mounted on a twenty-inch base of black marble weighing about forty pounds.

Bear Mountain Service Opens.

The Palisades Interstate Park Commission will open its Bear Mountain steamboat service tomorrow, when the Claremont will make a special trip at 9 A. M. from the Battery and 10 A. M. from West 132d Street. Daily service will begin next Saturday, it was announced.

COAL PROFITEERING BANNED BY CABINET

Members Decide That Government Shall Protect Public Against Speculators.

WILL SAFEGUARD INDUSTRY

Harding Is Anxious That Strike Shall Not Deter Expected Revival of Business.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The problem of preventing profiteering by coal operators and middlemen in the event of a coal shortage was discussed today by President Harding's Cabinet, and the authoritative announcement was made that the Government would do all in its power to see that the public is not exploited. The Administration is anxious that there shall be no obstacle placed in the path of reviving industry, such as an increase in coal prices.

Emphasis was laid at the White House on the fact that the Administration is without legal authority to fix the price of coal, and that whatever is accomplished must be brought about by persuasion and by voluntary co-operation on the part of the operators and dealers. The belief was expressed at the Cabinet meeting that a great deal could and would be accomplished in these directions.

Whether the program sketched out at the meeting of operators of the non-union fields with Secretary Hoover yesterday could be put into effect was another question under debate. By the time the next conference of operators is summoned, the viewpoint of the Department of Justice will be ready. It is the hope that voluntary agreement can be obtained among the operators that prices of coal at the mouth of the mine shall not be increased to high levels.

Coal operators have contended that their profits were not made during times of shortage, but went into the pockets of the speculator and middleman. It is the hope of the Administration that a situation may be created where this theory will be tested by having the bulk of the coal delivered direct from the mine to the consumer.

So far, the majority of the manufacturing districts have not been seriously affected, according to reports received by the Cabinet members.

The Administration has not reached the point where it is prepared to come forward with a program for the settlement of the strike. The feeling is that emergency conditions which might warrant action will not come before the latter part of June or in July.

DID NOT USE HUDNUT NAME.

Stepdaughter Gave Own Name of Shaughnessy in Wedding Valentino.

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—The name of Winifred Shaughnessy, used by the second bride of Rodolph Valentino, whose wedding at Mexicali, in Mexico, last Saturday prompted the investigation now under way, is her real maiden name, it has been learned from her friends.

She is the stepdaughter of Richard Hudnut, the New York perfume manufacturer. Her mother, formerly the wife of a Salt Lake City man, later married Edward de Wolfe, brother of Elsie de Wolfe.

The De Wolfes went to San Francisco, where Winifred's mother became an interior decorator and a year ago she married Richard Hudnut. Winifred at one time attained some popularity in the Metropolitan Ballet of New York, and later went to South America with the Kostoffs in a dancing act. More recently, under the name of Natacha Rambova, she was art director in motion pictures at Hollywood, in which occupation she was engaged at the time of her marriage to Valentino.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19.—Henry B. Walthall, screen star, who is playing in vaudeville here, expresses no worry as to the proposed investigation into his marriage.

"There are absolutely no grounds for an investigation into my second marriage," he said last night. "I married my first wife, Isabelle Fenton, an actress, fifteen years ago. We couldn't get along and separated. I obtained a divorce at Chicago five years ago. I was given a final decree with the provision that I would not marry again in the State for a year.

"Ten days after my divorce I married my leading lady, Miss Mary Charleson, in Indiana. At that time the legality of my act was thrashed out by the Indiana judiciary, and it was decided I had done nothing outside my legitimate right."

YONKERS 'GOLD MINE' MOVED TO HERKIMER

Vasily Cherniak, Russian Editor, Arrested in Latter Town as $200,000 Swindler.

FRAUD PLOT THERE CHARGED

Special to The New York Times.

HERKIMER, N. Y., May 19.—Vasily Cherniak, who described himself as a prospector and said that he for the last five years had been editor of The Golos Ruski, a Russian newspaper, was locked up in the Herkimer County Jail here this afternoon on the receipt of a telegram from Chief Inspector William J. Lahey of New York that he was wanted there on two indictments charging grand larceny.

Inspector Lahey informed Chief of Police Morris J. Keller, who arrested Cherniak with the aid of a search warrant furnished by Police Justice J. F. Klem, that the man was the President of a corporation which had been formed to defraud Russian immigrants out of hundreds of thousands of dollars through the sale of stock in a spurious "gold mine" in Yonkers.

Cherniak was surprised shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon in a Polish boarding house at 5 Malcolm Street, in a sparsely settled part of this town. When Chief Keller, Captain Moses and Policeman Kirk drove up to the rear of the boarding house in an automobile, Cherniak fled from the rear porch, on which he was seated, and barricaded himself in a room in the upper part of the house.

Cherniak had been identified on Thursday afternoon by a fellow countryman who spied him out of the window of a train at the railroad station. The man ran from the train and told Policeman Kirk that Cherniak was wanted in New York and that, although he was partially paralyzed, he was considered a desperate man among Russians in New York. Chief Keller, bearing this in mind, had provided himself with the search warrant, and when Cherniak concealed himself in the room the Chief and his two aids prepared for a siege.

Post Cordon Around House.

Policeman Kirk was posted in front of the house, and Captain Moses took a stand in the rear, each with their pistols drawn. Chief Keller then went to the room in which Cherniak had barricaded himself, and, pressing the muzzle of his pistol against the door, told the fugitive that he would begin to shot immediately if Cherniak did not surrender.

"You must not come in here," Cherniak replied. "This is my home, and I shall protect it."

Chief Keller then began to break down the door, but halted when he heard Cherniak promise to surrender and hurl several articles of furniture from in front of the door. The next minute Cherniak walked out and Chief Keller hurried him before Justice Klem, who committed him to the county jail here without bail.

Tonight Chief Keller had a two-hour talk with Cherniak, in which the prisoner admitted that he came to this village on May 7 last and concealed himself in the Malcolm Street house until May 12, when he, with Andrew Sneyk, a real estate man, rode out to Salisbury, about nine miles north of here, where Cherniak negotiated for the purchase of a farm.

Once Prospector in Alaska.

Cherniak said that he paid a deposit of $25 on the option he obtained on the farm, and promised to pay $2,000 more in cash and close the deal with 100 shares of stock in the "Iridio Platinum Gold Company, Inc.," the same company in which Russian immigrants around New York invested in connection with the Yonkers "gold mine." The prisoner said he had been a prospector in Alaska and Russia and knew "pay dirt" when he saw it. He explained that when he visited the Salsbury farm he realized that there was lots of gold there.

The prisoner added, however, that he did not intend to sell any stock in the proposed new "mine" until he had had a chemist analyze a bag of stones which Chief Keller later found in the cellar of the Malcolm Street house. Cherniak said that he was certain that the stones contained gold, but Chief Keller said that they were ordinary field stone such as can be gathered by the millions in the vicinity of the Salsbury farm.

Chief Keller had taken from Cherniak a letter written in Russian which he had translated tonight. The letter showed that the prisoner was aware that the New York police were seeking him and other members of the gold "company" in connection with indictments which had been returned against them before he fled to this place.

Cherniak admitted that he had written the letter, and added that he had hoped to send it to other members of the band still being sought by the New York police. The letter advised that all connected with the exploitation of the Yonkers "gold mine" seek cover "until we can get the most influential lawyer to look after our interests."

The letter also mentioned Dr. Jacob E. Connor, who with four others was held in bail in New York after their indictment in connection with the sale of stock in the Yonkers "gold mine."

Insists Farm Contains Gold.

Cherniak told Chief Keller that he believed there was gold in the Yonkers "mine" and that he based that belief both on his own experience as a miner in Alaska, Russia, Montana and California and the report of "a famous chemist" who had been employed to analyze the dirt on the old farm.

"I gave Dr. Connor power of attorney to act as President of the Iridio Company," Cherniak told Chief Keller. "I didn't get any money out of this thing. Those other fellows got the money. The first thing I knew, about hundreds of thousands of dollars having been obtained by somebody through the sale of stock in the gold mine was a few days before I heard that the New York District Attorney was investigating the company."

Cherniak admitted, however, that the Yonkers police had taken him into custody, but he professed not to understand the legal proceeding which followed.

"I'm 56 years old, and my right side has become paralyzed through my efforts to strike pay dirt," he declared, "but I'll astound the world some day by developing the greatest gold mine in history."

Chief Keller said that a message from Chief Inspector Lahey informed him that detectives will be sent here for Cherniak immediately.

BANKER'S WIFE HURT IN TAXI COLLISION

Mrs. Charles Lee Scovil, wife of the sales manager for Spencer Trask & Co., investment bankers at 25 Broad Street, was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital last night with a deep cut in her neck, received when the taxicab in which she was riding was struck by another at Ninth Avenue and Twenty-third Street. Her condition was reported not serious. The driver of the colliding taxicab, Edward Schultz, of 349 West Seventeenth Street, was arrested on a charge of transporting liquor, the police alleging that two five-gallon demijohns of whisky were found in the automobile.

Mrs. Scovil, her husband and her brother-in-law, E. Medley Scovil, President of the E. Medley Scovil Advertising Company, 25 Broadway, engaged the taxicab of Samuel Hamilton to take them from the Pennsylvania Station to the Twenty-third Street ferry. They were on their way to the Charles Lee Scovil home in East Orange. When the two cars came together, two men in Schultz's car jumped out and ran away. When Policeman Ruggieri of the West Thirtieth Street Station arrested Schultz, the chauffeur said that the two men owned the liquor and that when they hired him to drive them to the Christopher Street ferry he had no idea what their packages contained. Schultz said he thought the men were painters.

Mrs. Scovil was taken to St. Vincent's in an ambulance, and her husband and her brother-in-law went to the police station. The advertising man insisted that Schultz be examined to determine whether he was intoxicated. Dr. Thornton at Bellevue Hospital put Schultz through the tests and declared that the driver was perfectly sober.

TWO KILLED BY AUTOS.

Unidentified Woman and 10-Year-Old Boy Run Down in Brooklyn.

An unidentified woman, about 50 years old, was run down and killed early yesterday morning by an automobile at Smith Street and Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn. The driver of the car did not stop.

Hitching on behind a motor truck caused the death last night of 10-year-old Peter Dorsey of 41 South Third Street, Brooklyn. The lad jumped off the back of the motor truck directly in the path of an automobile of Jacob Walker of 280 Ninth Street, Brooklyn. The accident occurred in front of 297 Berry Street. Walker picked up the lad and raced with him to the Williamsburg Hospital, but he was dead when the doctors there examined him. The police made no arrest.

FRIENDS IN SENATE PLAN TO HELP REED

Six Democratic Senators Intend to Speak on Floor on Missouri Situation.

MAY CRITICISE WILSON

Reed's Defeat in Primary, They Assert, Would Endanger Democratic Success in Fall Election.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Some Democratic Senators are preparing a plan of action intended to help Senator James A. Reed in his contest for renomination in Missouri. Those concerned in the movement are actuated by various motives, such as friendship for Mr. Reed, a belief that the present bitterness in the Missouri primary campaign is hurting the Democratic party, and the feeling that despite his opposition to the League of Nations and other measures advocated by President Wilson he deserves party reward for his leadership in opposing Republican tax measures, including the pending tariff bill.

What form the help will take does not seem to have been determined, but it probably will show itself in speeches in the Senate concerning the Missouri political situation. Six Democratic Senators, all of whom supported ex-President Wilson in his effort to obtain the ratification of the League of Nations Covenant, have expressed themselves privately within the past few days as in favor of a course which will aid Mr. Reed. They say that other Senators will join them.

To these Senators the embarrassing aspect of the situation is that in defending Mr. Reed they may be obliged to criticise the action of the ex-President in publicly denouncing Mr. Reed, or will give the Republicans a chance to accuse them of criticising Mr. Wilson. They would much prefer to help Mr. Reed without taking issue with the former President. The Senators who are foremost in the effort to help Reed, however, are expressing themselves in terms of disapproval of Mr. Wilson's participation in the Missouri primary campaign.

Admit He Is in Danger of Defeat.

It is acknowledged by party friends of Mr. Reed that he is in danger of being defeated for renomination. His Democratic opponent, Breckenridge Long, was Third Assistant Secretary of State in the Wilson Administration and has the good wishes of Mr. Wilson. Democratic Senators friendly to Reed for either personal or private reasons assert that the bitterness of the Missouri primary contest is endangering the chances of Democratic success in that State in the November elections. They contend that the nomination of Reed would be better insurance of the Democrats carrying the State, as Reed, they say, will have considerable Republican support, which would go to the Republican candidate if Long is nominated. Besides, they add, Reed has a strong personal following among the German element in Missouri which would not be transferred to Long.

Another argument of the Reed supporters in the Senate is that his defeat in the primaries would so weaken the Democratic party in the State that the entire Democratic Congressional ticket in Missouri might be defeated. The elections in November, 1920, played havoc with the Missouri Democratic delegation in the National Congress. Of the sixteen members of the House, fourteen are Republicans. The two Democrats are the veteran William W. Rucker, who is serving his seventh term, and Harry B. Hawes, a first termer, whose popularity won him election in the strong Republican city of St. Louis.

Women Are Backing Long.

Reports received in Washington from Missouri indicate that the contest between Reed and Long has taken on a semi-religious fervor. The organized Democratic women of the State are out against Reed, whose opposition to the League of Nations, prohibition, woman suffrage and the Federal maternity bill forms the feminine anti-Reed platform. The feeling among Democratic women is so deep that there are indications that the choice of Reed in the primaries would cause many of them to vote for the Republican candidate for Senator.

One curious feature of the Missouri political situation is that the League of Nations, which was supposed to have been thrown into the discard in that State by the heavy Republican vote in 1920, has become an active issue. In 1920 the contest for United States Senator was fought on a straight League of Nations platform. Senator Selden P. Spencer, Republican, made his campaign mainly in opposition to the covenant, while his Democratic opponent, the same Mr. Long, stood squarely with President Wilson on the League question. Senator Spencer was re-elected by a majority of 121,668 votes.

In the present primary contest there has been a revival of League of Nations sentiment in Missouri. It has developed surprising proportions, particularly among women and farmers. It is now being said by Missouri politicians that the sentiment for the League was strong in 1920, but that the popularity of President Harding carried to victory the Republicans who were opposed to pro-League Democratic candidates.

Scientist Church to Build at Once.

Supreme Court Justice Tierney granted permission to the Third Church of Christ, Scientist, which bought the northeast corner of Park Avenue and Sixty-third Street two years ago, to mortgage the property for $400,000 for a building loan to erect a new church immediately. The Third Church formerly was at 85 East 125th Street, but the congregation sold the property for $185,000.

REPUBLICANS CALL ON MILLER TO LEAD

Hailed as Leader of Party.

"The people in this city," said Mr. Koenig in introducing the Governor to his audience, "know Governor Miller better today than they did a year ago. They appreciate his splendid services and are waiting to show their appreciation should the opportunity be afforded them. They like his courage, his independence and the consistency with which he advocates the policies which he believes to be right. We hail him as the leader of our great party and wish to assure him that nowhere in the State of New York will he find more loyal followers than in the County of New York."

The applause that greeted the Governor when he arose to speak lasted for two minutes. The Governor in acknowledging the greeting said: "I am glad we are getting better acquainted," at which there was more applause and laughter.

Before he dealt with the transit situation Governor Miller discussed housing and the Metropolitan Life's scheme for the construction of sanitary tenements to rent at moderate price. He said this would be a great aid in giving to the people "what they have the right to—God's pure air and sunshine."

"But," he went on, "I tell you what will do more than any other one thing to relieve that condition. I will tell you what will do more than anything you can think of to properly redistribute this great and growing population so that people may enjoy fresh air and sunshine, and that will be the development of a unified system of transit, under which people can be carried in comfort and decency to the uppermost parts of this great city, all for a single fare. And although it was unpopular, I did what I could and the State Legislature did what it could to hasten that consummation.

"We have been accused of playing politics with your transit. Well, I don't think anybody thought—certainly I did not think—that it was politically expedient to pass the Transit act last year. I was told by your Chairman what would happen. He told me that it would make it possible to raise the 8-cent fare cry, and of course every one knew that that could not be laid in the dust before the November election. The prophecy was fulfilled.

Four Years of Idle Talk.

"But you had a situation which did not admit of temporizing. For four years you had had nothing but talk. For four years transit had been a political issue and nothing else.

"We have had one year of work by the Transit Commission of your own citizens, and let me say I have not undertaken to solve the problem for you. I know that people like to regulate their own affairs, and I believe in that principle, but there was nobody who had the authority or the power to create a body and to endow it with sufficient power to solve that problem except the State Legislature, and all the State Legislature did was to consolidate two commissions that you already had, two State commissions, a single-headed Transit Construction Commission and a single-headed Public Service Commission, into one commission of three, and that commission of three was given no power not possessed by its predecessor, not possessed by the Public Service Commission, the predecessor of those two, and not possessed by the Rapid Transit Commission, the predecessor of the Public Service Commission.

"I think the eight-cent fare myth has been dissipated, and there was just as much truth in that propaganda as in much that you are likely to hear between now and next November. You know how acute the situation was growing. We could have dallied with it another year or still another, and it would have still grown more acute, but there was a public duty to perform, a public duty so pressing, involving as it did the comfort, the happiness, the welfare of these millions of people and the future development of this great city, that I did not think that the Legislature or the Governor had any right to stoop to play politics with that, or to refrain from discharging its duty merely for political expediency.

Sees Peril in Situation.

"It is appalling when you stop to think what will happen in this town if some relief is not speedily obtained. Your existing facilities are more than saturated, as you know, and the travel is increasing every day at the rate of 4,000 a day. If you could begin tomorrow the necessary extensions and new lines, it would be years, as you know, before they could be put into use. I am appalled at what you will have to suffer even if we could make the most haste possible.

"So it seemed to me that that was a situation which did not admit of temporizing and that it was necessary to substitute action for talk. Now you have had a year of this commission of your own citizens, two of them Democrats. What have they done? They certainly have not given you the eight-cent fare which they were created for, but they have been proceeding, not by proclamation, but by investigation. Instead of issuing harmless fulminations attacking 'the interests,' they have been investigating the rights of the people and ascertaining all of the facts. And they have been doing it in open day, all of the cards laid out face up, for every citizen of this community, if he is interested, to ascertain the facts.

"And what have they done? In the first place, they have already developed a plan for a completely unified system which can be operated for a single fare. They have developed independently because it is a separate branch, although they are related, and necessarily the work should go along together—they have developed plans for the new extensions and the new lines on which you ought to begin construction tomorrow, and that has been laid upon the table. They have gone into the financial condition of these companies. They have gone into the service which they are rendering the public.

"Although one of those companies, the largest, talked very bravely a few weeks ago about what it would do, and even suggested some of the things that it was going to teach the Governor of the State, and said that they could not give better service without an increased fare—and even filed an application for an increased fare under the statute as it then stood, pending a request for a hearing from me on a bill which would have made it impossible for me to have filed that petition. Well, the bill was signed on the same day that that petition was filed.

Talk Versus Performance.

"They have not gone to court on their petition for an increased fare, but they have announced and have already made preparations to finance the purchases necessary to make in order to comply with the orders of the Transit Commission to give the service which it is their duty to give to the people. Now, that is the difference between talk and performance. A plan for the unification of the system and its acquisition by the city, the plan for new subways and extensions, improved service on existing lines—I think that is quite an accomplishment for only one year, especially in the face of all of the obstruction which could be thrown in their way.

"I read in a headline today referring to some observations that I made yesterday, 'Governor Miller Assails the Board of Estimate.' I did not intend to assail the Board of Estimate. I am not in the assailing business. Others can have a monopoly of that. I have, however, stated facts, and if the narration of truth constitutes an assault, then I must be guilty. The Transit Commission has welcomed, has invited and it still invites the co-operation of the City Administration, which has not been shorn of its powers, as it claims.

"Of course you cannot foist upon a community something that that community does not want, and no one in his senses would dream of attempting such a thing, but this is a great, a vast, complicated, intricate problem. It requires the best minds that can be obtained to be concentrated upon it. It should have all of the help that can possibly be given by any one to solve it, and I predict that the time is not distant when mere obstruction will cease to be popular in this town. There has been so much talk about a five-cent fare that I suppose a great many people are still deluded into the belief that they have been saved a five-cent fare.

Five-Cent Fare Already Lost.

"I tell you that there is no way to save the five-cent fare, because it is now lost; but you can get back the five-cent fare. You can only do it by proceeding honestly, and in accordance with sound business principles. You can only do it by substituting for the policy of destruction, which has disintegrated your existing systems and has been splitting them up that if you had a five-cent fare it has merely become a question of how many times you have to pay it, unless you happen to be fortunate enough to live on the line of the subway. If you are to restore the five-cent fare you must do it, as I said, by substituting a policy of construction for a policy of destruction.

"You can only do it by substituting a policy of honesty for a policy of dishonesty. Because, let me say to you, it is no more honest to attempt to delude the people into the notion that they can get something for nothing than it is to compel them to pay fares for service which they do not get or to pay fares to pay dividends upon capital not invested in their service. One sort of dishonesty of that kind is no more attractive to me than the other.

"I think you are going to get relief, I hope speedily. But I think that you have already observed sufficient to see that real progress is being made, and if the people of this town could only awake to their great necessities, if an aroused public opinion could be created to secure for this city the service which is indispensable to your happiness and proper development, then I think that people would stop playing politics with this great problem. But so long as any one is of a mind to play politics with the comfort, health and happiness of five and a half millions of people, so long will it be possible to delay, if not to prevent, the ultimate consummation of what is in your interest."

Discusses Economy Program.

Earlier in his address Governor Miller discussed his economy and efficiency program. He said that what the Administration at Albany had saved in direct taxation had been more than absorbed by localities, including New York City. The Governor read from figures compiled by the Controller's office and printed on the back of the real estate tax bills to show that this year the State taxes paid by the City of New York had decreased from $22,000,000 to $14,400,000 and that this was the only item in the entire city budget, which showed a decrease.

For the first time in this city, Governor Miller surveyed water power legislation. The subject, he said, had been discussed in every campaign, but the present law was the first constructive act passed.

"A large part of the power developed under that act will be transmitted to the City of New York," the Governor said. "Persons who never studied the subject insisted that the State should undertake development of water power. People interested in hydroelectric development, on the other hand, claimed that the only way it should be developed was to leave the water power to the unrestricted opportunities of private capital.

"Rejecting the claims of the demagogues on the one hand and of private interests on the other, who would like to exploit the natural resources of the people, we laid the foundation for water power development upon the basis that capital should get a fair return upon every dollar honestly invested in the enterprise, but that the State itself should reserve the complete control of the distribution of that power and the fixing of the price of the power to the consumer. I apprehend that in the near future—of course, these things take time—but I apprehend that in the near future you will see the fruition of that work and that the people of this city will actually enjoy the benefits of it."

Governor Miller was entertained at dinner at the National Republican Club by Chairman Koenig of the Republican County Committee before the meeting. About one hundred guests attended, district leaders and their women coadjutors, State Chairman Glynn, President Elsberg, legislators and Congressmen from Manhattan and some other prominent Republicans had been invited to participate.

Governor Miller will depart for Albany this morning, where he will remain until Monday afternoon, when he starts for Chicago to meet Governor Allen of Kansas in another joint debate on the St. Lawrence Ship Canal project, the Governor taking the negative side of the argument, which is regarded as detrimental to the commerce of this State and the East generally.

It Stands Alone

From an address by Harold B. Johnson, editor of The Watertown Daily Times, at St. Lawrence University.

The New York Times is probably the greatest newspaper of the American continent, and is made so by reason of the fact that its owners have no personal axes to grind and permit trained newspaper men to make a genuine newspaper in the greatest field in the world. It apes nothing; it stands alone. It dominates its field and properly so.

ARMY AND NAVY CLUB ROW GOES TO BANTON

WILL INVESTIGATE BOOKS

To Seek Light on Charges That Money Was Wasted and Diverted in Drives.

Captain Victor Barcas and Commander E. H. De Lany, members of the Army and Navy Club, asked District Attorney Banton to investigate their charges against a former Governor of the club and others.

The Complaint Committee of the club, headed by Martin Vogel, which has had these and other complaints under investigation, it was learned, will probably make a report within a week. A movement has been started within the club to hold a meeting of the full membership of the club to take action on the matter.

The evidence submitted to the District Attorney, it was said, was sufficient to support criminal proceedings against one man. A charge against a second man was regarded in the nature of a breach of ethics rather than a violation of law. Outside of the one case, the material submitted to the District Attorney was described as relating to "family rows" within the club, in which the prosecuting authorities were not likely to be interested. On the other hand, District Attorney Banton promised the two complainants that a thorough investigation would be made and their suspicions of other crimes considered.

Mr. Banton said he would ask Colonel Franklin Q. Brown, President of the club, and members of the Board of Governors to call on him and give him the information at their disposal. He also will go over the books.

To Investigate Drives.

Mr. Banton wants permission to look over particularly the accounts of the so-called $3,000,000 drive of 1920 and the membership drive of 1921. The complaints alleged that the fund raised in 1920 had not been fully accounted for and that nobody knew how much had been raised or what had become of it. Deliberate waste was charged in the 1921 drive, so that $34,000 was spent on press agents and in large salaries to club members, in the course of a campaign which only procured $24,000. The report of an investigator also was called for.

Colonel Franklin Q. Brown, President of the club, and Martin Vogel, Chairman of the Complaint Committee, were reluctant to talk yesterday, both because they were officers recently elected and not thoroughly conversant with what had gone before, and also because their positions called for neutrality in all club controversies.

It was held, however, by club officers that, with the exception of the charge of thefts against a former official, the complaints related to differences of opinion and alleged mistakes of judgment, which should not have been discussed outside of the doors of the club. Captain Barcas and Commander De Lany were blamed for making the matter public, and it was predicted that charges will be lodged against them and an effort made to expel them, until they are able to offer justification for all of the serious articles of their complaint. Captain Barcas and Commander De Lany insist vigorous action on their part was necessary to stir the club officers to action.

Demands Concrete Evidence.

A petition signed by twenty-five calling for a general meeting of members authorizes the President to call such a meeting. Friends of the two complainants, it was learned, will demand that the full membership pass on their cases, if an effort is made to expel them. After hearing the story of these two men, District Attorney Banton said:

"I told Captain Barcas and Commander De Lany that concrete evidence of a crime would have to be placed before me, with a responsible complainant, before any evidence would be placed before a Grand Jury. Their statements will be fully investigated, however."

Assistant District Attorney Carstarphen was assigned to investigate the evidence. A copy of the petition of complaining members and of a letter of complaint of Captain Barcas to the Board of Governors were turned over to him to give him a general sketch of the controversy.

The complaint that others had shielded the former officer accused of theft, it was gathered at the District Attorney's office, was not taken seriously, because it was felt that the club officers could exercise their discretion in prosecuting or overlooking the offense, especially when restitution was partly made. It was made clear that the District Attorney would not start proceedings against the former officer if the club which condoned the alleged offense did not act as complainant.

Governors Express Sympathy.

Governors of the club who were in touch with District Attorney Banton told him that the accused man had a fine record of service in France, that he had been gassed and shell-shocked, that they attributed possible derelictions to these injuries, and that they regarded him as a subject of sympathy.

No specific evidence has so far been placed before the District Attorney to indicate that money raised in 1919 from the public and from the families of soldiers actually was stolen, and the distribution of this fund only could be learned, it was said, from an examination of the books by expert accountants, who are now at work on them. Capt. Barcas alleges that many of these records were destroyed to make a thorough accounting impossible. No list is in existence, he said, showing who contributed and how much they gave. Gifts of considerable sums were made by J. P. Morgan, the late Henry P. Davison, Charles H. Sabin and others, but it was said that nothing was known by the club members in detail about this campaign.

The drive, which was originally for a goal of $3,000,000 for a memorial for slain officers, was promoted originally by Stephen Bobo. It was apparently going well under his management, it is alleged by the complainants, when it was placed in other hands. The drive, it is asserted, then came to a sudden stop.

Members Without Data

In the membership drive the following year club members, it was said, knew nothing of salaries of $150 and $175 a week alleged to have been paid for publicity, with the result that $34,000 was paid out to collect $24,000.

Officers of the club yesterday emphasized the fact that the governors of the club were men of the highest standing. It was insisted that they could not fairly be made to share the discredit which might attach to an individual or a small group of individuals.

Captain Victor Barcas said that the long delay in dealing with the accused former officer was a specimen of lax management which had injured the club in many respects.

"When forgeries and destruction of vouchers on his part were brought to my attention," he said, "I took the matter up with the counsel of the club. His guilt was quickly shown. He burst into tears and begged for mercy, claiming that he intended it all for the benefit of the club, as he was building up a private fund to help redecorate it. Instead of being thrown out of the club, he was forgiven and put in charge of the handling of $40,000 in connection with redecorating the German club. Various articles of furniture disappeared entirely, and an $8,500 brass chandelier, which was considered a work of art, one of the finest things of its kind in America, was sold off and now hangs in a large New York theatre. The club received $500.

"Another symptom of this laxity is the failure to investigate members and to collect club bills. Recently a detective telephoned to the club and informed us that a burglar caught breaking into the Crescent Athletic Club had an Army and Navy Club bill for more than $500 in his pocket. He was locked up and the detective was informed that the man in question was a member of the club and that his arrest was undoubtedly a mistake.

"'The deuce it is,' the detective replied. 'He's got two convictions for burglary in his record.'

"This is a club to which hundreds of the finest men in the country belong and we object to a management under which so many unpleasant things have been occurring."

BAR CALLS ON COURT TO PUNISH DOLPHIN

The raid on a Town Hall meeting and the arrest of several advocates of birth control last December found an echo yesterday in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court when the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association through its counsel, Einar Chrystie, filed a petition asking that Assistant Corporation Counsel Martin Dolphin be disciplined. It was Mr. Dolphin, acting as legal adviser to the Police Department, who ordered the arrest of Mrs. Juliet Rublee while she was a witness before Inspector Lahey at the investigation into the conduct of the police the night of the raid.

Under the rules of the Appellate Division all information regarding the petition was refused pending the report of the referee, who will be appointed in the near future. It is understood, however, that the petition of the Bar Association Committee is the outgrowth of the Rublee case.

After the raid and the arrests of Mrs. Rublee, Mrs. Margaret Sanger and Miss Margaret Winsor, all of whom were discharged when it was shown in court that there was no evidence that any crime had been committed, Paul D. Cravath, Lewis L. Delafield, Charles C. Burlingham, Samuel H. Ordway, Paul M. Warburg, Charles Strauss, Montgomery Hare, Henry Morgenthau, Herbert L. Satterlee and Pierre Jay wrote to Mayor Hylan asking for a full investigation of the whole case. The Mayor turned the matter over to Commissioner Hirshfield for a hearing.

In a brief which summarized the testimony at this hearing, Emory R. Buckner and Robert P. Patterson criticised Dolphin's action in ordering the arrest of Mrs. Rublee as a "gross abuse of official power."

"Mrs. Rublee was arrested for stating as a witness that she had read Section 1142 of the Penal law and believed it unwise," says the brief. "She was charged with violating this statute. Her arrest was at the direction of an Assistant Corporation Counsel detailed to act as legal adviser to the Police Department.

"By no stretch of the imagination can a violation of this statute by Mrs. Rublee be spelled out. A more flagrant case of prosecuting a person merely for her opinions cannot be found.

"The only explanation of this outrage is that of intimidation and persecution. It is inconceivable that the Assistant Corporation Counsel sincerely believed that the basis for an arrest existed. Mrs. Rublee held opinions that were hostile to those cherished by Mr. Dolphin; the arrest of Mrs. Rublee followed."

INDICTED AS SLAYER 22 HOURS AFTER CRIME

Bronx County Grand Jury Acts in Record Time in Case of Policeman Hay's Murder.

Michael Trabiano, a peddler, who is accused of having shot and killed Policeman Douglas W. Hay at Third Avenue and 172d Street, The Bronx, Thursday afternoon, was indicted yesterday for first degree murder, twenty-two hours after the crime. This is the quickest indictment on record for murder in Bronx County.

Trabiano, arraigned before Supreme Court Justice Cohalan, pleaded not guilty, and the court assigned Charles B. McLaughlin as his counsel. Trabiano's trial was to have started a week from Monday, but Justice Cohalan set next Wednesday as the day. District Attorney Glennon asked for that date, saying that he had more than fifteen witnesses to the killing of Policeman Hay and the wounding of Policeman Edmund Slater in the chase that ended with the capture of the prisoner.

The prisoner had been held by Magistrate Douras in the West Farms Court. After his arraignment there, the District Attorney got in touch with John F. Fox, an undertaker, foreman of the May Grand Jury, and arranged for the immediate presentation of evidence that led to the indictment.

"If my client is innocent, he should be acquitted speedily," said Mr. McLaughlin, "and if my client is guilty, his conviction should be speedy."

Funeral services for the slain policeman are to be conducted tomorrow at St. Margaret's Protestant Episcopal Church, Leggett Avenue and 156th Street, The Bronx. A police escort and the Police Band will accompany the body from the Hay home at 711 Tinton Avenue to the church. The burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Business men in the precinct of the Bathgate Avenue Station, to which Hay was assigned, yesterday gave $100 to the policeman's widow.

RIOT IN MINSK SYNAGOGUE.

Provoked by Attempt to Requisition Valuables During Service.

RIGA, May 18 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Two persons were killed and four wounded in a riot in a Minsk synagogue, following an attempt by Soviet officials to requisition valuables, according to dispatches from Minsk.

The commissaries are reported to have entered the synagogue during prayers, provoking the worshippers who tried to prevent them from carrying out the confiscation. Two of the worshippers were instantly killed, and four Communists were seriously injured in the fight.

BOLIVIA PROTESTS BEING SHUT OUT

ARBITRATION NOW PROPOSED

Chileans and Peruvians Discuss Their Differences in a "Serene Spirit."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Asserting that a partial adjustment would make the situation worse instead of improving it, the Bolivian Legation today issued a statement protesting against the exclusion of Bolivia from the Tacna-Arica conference now meeting in Washington in an effort to settle the long-standing boundary dispute between Chile and Peru.

The Bolivian protest was issued after today's session of the conference, which lasted only an hour. Following the session this communiqué was issued:

"In today's session the conference on Tacna and Arica was resumed. The points at issue between Chile and Peru were amply discussed in a calm and serene spirit. The date for the next meeting was not fixed."

It was said later that the next meeting probably would be held on Monday.

At a press conference held by a member of the Chilean delegation later in the day it was explained that the three meetings thus far held by the two delegations were in the nature of informal conversations. No minutes were kept of the discussions in these meetings. At a later date, as progress is made, formal meetings will be held, it was explained, at which minutes will be kept of the proceedings and signed by the two delegations. In addition to these two classes of meetings, there will be from time to time plenary meetings, similar to that held on the opening day, when Secretary of State Hughes addressed the conference.

The Bolivian Legation's statement sets forth that the course of the Tacna-Arica negotiations shows thus far that this international controversy can be solved satisfactorily only if it is "met in a broad spirit of Americanism and with the sincere endeavor to establish in America a durable peace, adjusting once for all the differences arising from the conflict of 1879, which affected Bolivia, Chile and Peru."

Unless a settlement is made among all three contenders, it is held, there will remain cause for disquietude, and lack of mutual confidence such as is necessary for peace and prosperity.

Some intimation of the hope that the United States will endeavor to bring about a settlement satisfactory to all concerned, is contained in the concluding sentence of the statement, which reads:

"If such arduous problems as naval disarmament and Eastern questions which affected the greatest powers in the world were solved, under the auspicious initiative of the United States, there is every confidence for the belief that the present controversy will be adjusted in the same satisfactory manner for these three interested nations."

While unwilling to venture a prediction as to the outcome of the present negotiations, persons in the closest touch with Latin-American affairs are inclined to believe that some compromise allowing Bolivia to present her case may be arrived at before a final agreement is reached.

In Chilean delegation quarters much irritation was shown as a result of the activities of the Bolivian interests since the conference here opened. It was stated that Bolivia had already been partly responsible for the failure of former efforts at an understanding between Chile and Peru, and it was intimated that if she succeeded in bringing the present conference to an impasse, the effect upon Chilean public opinion might be such that Bolivia would never get her much desired outlet to the Pacific. On the other hand, if Bolivia showed a tendency to be reasonable and allow Chile and Peru to settle the present difficulties, Chile would then be ready to give consideration to Bolivia's claim, it was declared.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (Associated Press).—Despite the delegates' expressions of confidence that they will be able to compose their differences in the Tacna-Arica conference without outside help, The Associated Press was informed in an authoritative quarter today that arbitration has already entered into the discussions as a possible means of final settlement. One of the delegates was said to have suggested to his colleagues that there be an immediate discussion of arbitration in principle, the exchanges of opinion of that subject to proceed simultaneously with the effort for a direct and unaided agreement.

Boy Drowns in Newtown Creek.

Several boys, among them William Havens, 7 years old, of 141 Norman Avenue, Williamsburg, went in swimming in Newtown Creek at the foot of Bridgewater Street yesterday. Havens got beyond his depth and disappeared under the water. Five hours later his body came to the surface and was taken from the creek by a police boat.

Aged Man Killed by Horse.

Abraham Pearlman, whose age was said to be between 93 and 107 years, was killed yesterday afternoon in front of his home, at 56 Moore Street, Brooklyn. He was run down by a horse driven by Jacob Tropp of 422 Bushwick Avenue. The victim stepped from behind a pushcart in front of the wagon.

To Sell Astor Lots in the Bronx.

About 2,000 lots in the Bronx, near the Westchester Avenue and Bronx subways, belonging to the William Waldorf Astor estate, are to be sold at public auction in June. The sale, which was ordered by the executors, is to be conducted at the Hotel Astor by Joseph P. Day and J. Clarence Davies.

HOLD STORE CASHIER IN $61,000 THEFTS

Delivery boys have robbed the firm of H. Milgrim & Co., ladies' tailors, of 2,121 Broadway, of more than $61,000 in the last two years by holding back c. o. d. payments, it was said yesterday, after the arrest of Ralph Brosky, cashier of the firm for more than ten years.

Brosky was placed in the Tombs yesterday after delivery boys employed by the firm had charged that he had devised a system under which he gave them c. o. d. slips when they were about to deliver suits and dresses which were supposed to be charged on the books of the firm. After collecting the money they divided with Brosky, according to their story. In each case the amount remained on the books as an unpaid debt.

Customers protested when attempts were made to collect from them later. When this occurred in several cases, causing the firm much trouble, an investigation was started and two of the boys, Samuel Schlimowitz, 16 years old, of 21 East 105th Street, and George Fein, 21 years old, of 72 East 110th Street, were accused of theft. They pleaded guilty and confessed to Assistant District Attorneys Edward Weil and Richard C. Murphy, the attorneys say.

The boys faced the Grand Jury, which returned an indictment against the cashier. Brosky insisted yesterday that he was innocent and that the story had been built up against him by the two boys in order to win consideration for themselves.

Hyman Bushel, lawyer for Brosky, asserted that the boys had access to the C. O. D. slips, committed the crimes entirely by themselves and did not divide with the cashier.

ASKS MORE SEA MAIL PAY.

Otherwise Oceanic Steamship Line May Have to Quit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Because the Ocean Steamship Company's mail contract expires June 30 and no provision has been made for renewal, this company, which is the only American passenger line in the Pacific running to points below the equator, may have to go out of business, according to Frederick S. Samuels, assistant to the President of the company, who is in Washington.

Efforts are being made by the Shipping Board, the Postmaster General and the Secretary of the Navy to have the line maintained.

The Shipping Board will take up the matter Monday. Vice President Love of the Emergency Fleet Corporation thinks it would be a "crime" to permit the Oceanic company to go out of business. Secretary Denby is anxious to have the service maintained because it provides the only American line to Samoa.

AGREE ON ZARA AND FIUME.

Italy and Jugoslavia Said to Have Determined Their Status.

ROME, May 19.—The newspaper Tribuna says that an agreement has been concluded between Italy and Jugoslavia fixing the status of the Adriatic seaports of Zara and Fiume.

Lamar Case Again Postponed.

Hearing in the case of Dave Lamar was adjourned for the fifth time yesterday afternoon, until next Monday at 2 P. M. Lamar and Mrs. Estelle Allison of 125 East Fifty-sixth Street are accused of swindling Mrs. Genevieve Brennan, 140 West Fifty-eighth Street, out of $6,300 in an oil stock transaction. The hearing was set for yesterday morning, and adjourned until the afternoon, when Magistrate Max S. Levine granted the further postponement.

The two lower floors of the building were badly damaged. Fire starting immediately after the accident was brought under control quickly.

"Mr. Dunbar had been carrying on investigations to learn how to separate most effectively certain gaseous mixtures by first liquefying the mixture and then drawing off one of the gases as a vapor. The investigations involved the determination of the properties of several binary mixtures, including hydrogen-methane, hydrogen-nitrogen and methane-nitrogen. In order to get the low temperature necessary for liquefying these mixtures a bath of liquid oxygen was used. Liquid oxygen will explode if brought into contact with any combustible substance, such, for example, as hydrogen-methane or oil. The cryostat used to separate oxygen and helium was not, however, being used when the explosion occurred.

"The investigations in which Mr. Dunbar had been engaged were the outcome of work started by the Government during the war for the separation of helium from natural gas. It was hoped that the knowledge of the physical properties of these mixtures which could be obtained from such experiments as were under way would permit the scientific design of apparatus for carrying out such operations as the helium separation and also more efficient commercial production of oxygen and nitrogen."

He is of the opinion that the greatest factor likely to cause a downward trend of production would be a flood of imports, and this is one of his reasons for hoping for an early passage of tariff legislation. Aside from a consideration of the merits of a protective tariff, it has been represented to the White House that business interests are impatient over tariff delay; that whether duties on articles are high, low or nil, manufacturers, merchants and importers have difficulty in arranging their schedules until tangible legislation comes from Congress.

Sees a Labor Shortage Coming.

From the information he has received, President Harding has come to the conclusion that instead of unemployment the country faces a labor shortage. He was told by steel executives last night that their industry already is experiencing a labor shortage, and that this, together with a resumption of normal operations, is a matter of concern to the whole industry. Some of the steel men are of the opinion that there will be a critical shortage of labor within three months, particularly of unskilled labor. For this limitation of immigration was blamed.

The President was gratified today over the results of the steel dinner and looked upon it as proof of the applicability of his "conference idea" to other fields. He was impressed with the harmony of the meeting and the virtual unanimity of the steel men in favoring the abolition of the twelve-hour day. It was explained at the White House this afternoon that Mr. Harding made no attempt to "steam roller" the gathering into agreement with his suggestions. By way of response to the President's request, the steel men, quite unexpectedly to Mr. Harding, made the motion for delegating a committee of five to study ways and means of carrying out the reduction of the twelve-hour day to the three-shift plan. The President, it was said at the White House, has every confidence that the twelve-hour day will be abolished.

Some of the steel men who expressed their views to the President last night appeared to favor the eight-hour day in principle, but declared that there were no practical difficulties in the way of its accomplishment in the industry. It was said that the men themselves, particularly foreigners, were unwilling to continue upon the eight-hour plan that has been in force in many of the steel mills during the slump in the industry. A few steel men told the President that their men favored the twelve-hour day on account of higher wages.

Samuel Gompers Is Critical.

Objection that this was the case was made today by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, who made the following comment upon Elbert H. Gary's statement, issued after last night's dinner:

"Judge Gary says that 'all favored the abolition of the twelve-hour day, if and when practicable,' a statement which means absolutely nothing.

"If the White House conference was called to discuss the twelve-hour day, I am unable to see where any progress was made. We take the conference as being something of an indication of the public condemnation of steel trust practices, but it is difficult to see any sincerity in the 'if and when practicable' formula.

"The excuse that foreign-born workmen oppose the eight-hour day because it reduces their earnings is not an alibi for the steel industry. It is unfounded, but even if true, would be additional condemnation of the practices in that industry. The production of steel can and must be placed on a basis where it affords an American standard of living with an American workday of eight hours. The Steel Trust has a reserve fund of $500,000,000 in undivided surplus, which indicates its profit-making powers.

"The meaning of Judge Gary's statement is that the steel industry intends to abolish the inhuman twelve-hour workday when it gets ready and not before.

"The naming of an investigating committee to inquire into the question of the work day under the auspices of the Iron and Steel Institute is additional deception. The steel trust long since investigated and in its annual reports has made promises of abolition of the long work day. No additional proof of the inhumanity and general undesirability of the twelve-hour day in the steel industry is needed. Nothing was ever more completely branded as indefensible and destructive.

"It is typical of the present day colossal effrontery of big business that it should use the White House itself as a rostrum from which to give to the country its latest example of cynical deception, more emphatically and perhaps more fitly described as what the American people are accustomed to call 'bunk.'"

WOULD QUIZ MAKERS OF VOTING MACHINES

QUOTES FROM SALESMAN

Shows Company Allowed $135 for Each Machine for "Assistance" in Addition to Salaries.

David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, said yesterday that the testimony taken in his voting machine inquiry had made it difficult for Secretary of State John J. Lyons to "go over the hurdle" and award the contract for voting machines for New York City to the Automatic Registering Machine Corporation of Jamestown, N. Y.

Commissioner Hirshfield demanded that officials of the concern submit to examination by himself, and he promised to show why that particular company asked $940 apiece for its machines from New York when it sold the same article to Syracuse for $750.

The statement of the Commissioner of Accounts yesterday took for its text an Albany dispatch which announced that Secretary Lyons would conduct an exhaustive inquiry into the various prices the Automatic Registering Machine Corporation charged different counties of the State before he awarded any contract.

Refers to Illinois Inquiry.

Mr. Hirshfield referred Secretary Lyons to the testimony of R. D. Bemiss, for many years a salesman of the Jamestown company, given before an Illinois legislative committee on April 21, 1914.

"From the testimony of Mr. R. D. Bemiss, page 578 of the Illinois State Legislative Committee's report," said Mr. Hirshfield, "it appears that his compensation as salesman for the voting machine company was $50 per week and expenses, and that Lausterer, the President of the Automatic Registering Machine Corporation; Samuel C. Hamilton, its present representative, and Carl Lomb, its backer, at that time, were connected with this voting machine corporation, the same as they now are.

Mr. Hirshfield said that Bemiss's testimony showed that the company later changed its system of compensation and that "the money paid by the company for the sale of voting machines, in addition to salary and expense account, was paid to the salesman in the form of a lump sum of $135, called 'commission,' for each machine sold, and that thenceforth all payments for outsiders for 'assistance' and 'in forming acquaintance and introducing agents to public officials' were made out of the $135, and, of course, the agent himself made such arrangements as he cared to make with local persons for 'influence' and 'assistance.' Whatever he saved out of the $135 belonged to him, but no statement was ever made by the agent to the company as to how the additional $135, or any part of it, was spent.

"It has been testified before me that voting machines can be manufactured for about $400 apiece. Adding to that the salesman's salary, commissions and the $135 for local assistance and influence, would bring the price of the machine up to about $750, at the same time leaving a fair margin of profit to the manufacturing corporation.

Cost of "Assistance" in Boston.

"The same witness, R. D. Bemiss, further testified before the Illinois State Legislative Committee (page 579 of the report) that while in the employ of the corporation in 1912 he went to Boston on voting machine business and after his return talked with Barr, who was the same voting machine corporation's representative in Chicago, and told Barr that $135 per machine was not enough for 'assistance' and 'influence' in Boston and that Barr answered that he did not think $135 per machine was enough for 'assistance' and 'influence' in Chicago. Perhaps there is the reason for the raising of the price to $940 per machine to the City of New York, or $190 more per machine than paid by the City of Syracuse.

"Now I say to my friend 'Jack' Lyons: Perfunctory investigation by him will not clear his skirts, should he commit the folly of placing an order for these voting machines for the City of New York, and that, to my mind, the only way he can make an 'exhaustive investigation' of the subject is by requiring Lausterer, Hamilton and other officials and representatives of this voting machine corporation to submit to an examination before me concerning the cost of manufacturing these machines and of all expenditures for 'assistance' and 'influence,' if any, in connection with putting through the Legislature this anti-Home Rule bill, which seeks to impose upon the City of New York this unwarranted expenditure of millions of dollars, out of which this corporation and its friends will make an estimated profit of a million and a half."

Secretary of State Lyons, who was in New York yesterday, declined to comment on the statement of Commissioner Hirshfield.

NYACK, N. Y., May 19.—A weary horse drawing a muddy-wheeled buggy in which was seated an aged man staggered along Main Street here this afternoon and came to a halt in front of the Post Office, where a man stepped from a crowd gathered around the vehicle and accused the old man of horse stealing. The accuser was Ernest Wood, Sheriff of Pike County, Pennsylvania, who said the horse and vehicle had been stolen at Milford, Pa., 150 miles from Nyack, on Thursday morning.

"I'm Emil Crolur, 80 years old, and I've come to Nyack to get a job," asserted the aged driver of the horse in reply to the Sheriff's questions. "I've got some of my carpenter tools right here in the buggy, and my tool chest was expressed to James Schreiver here in Nyack." That was the only statement offered by the old man in response to the charge of the Sheriff.

John Jones, owner of the horse, who had pursued Crolur in Wood's auto from Milford, was curious to learn how the suspect had eluded them on the road. Crolur smilingly told Jones that he went "right along the road" from Goshen, N. Y., where he had stopped a few hours on Thursday night. He had compelled the horse to travel 100 miles without stop from Milford to Goshen.

"Crolur, whom I had never seen before, but had supposed was a resident in some near-by place in Pike County, came to my place on Thursday morning and hired this horse for $3, saying he was 'going fishing,'" said Jones. "When he failed to return that night I got a warrant and notified the Sheriff."

Chief of Police Furey of Nyack arrested Crolur as a fugitive from justice. Police Judge Haas turned Crolur over to the Sheriff when the prisoner said he was willing to waive extradition. Crolur told the court his home was at Hartley, a few miles from Milford. But Jones had to leave his horse behind when they started back with the prisoner, because it needs a veterinary, food and rest, and will be held for its recovery in Perry's stable.

FINDS LABOR AIDING EUROPE TO RECOVER

J. B. Aldred, Returning on the Aquitania, Tells of Increased Production.

J. B. Aldred, head of several utility companies, returned from Europe yesterday on the Aquitania of the Cunard Line. He said he had installed a large hydro-electric plant in Italy.

"I am returning from my third European visit in two years," he said. "My observations lead me to believe that Europe is slowly recovering from the conditions resulting from the great war. Not as the result of ideas developed by conferences, but from the slow but sure working of fundamental economic conditions, such as the return to normal efficiency of labor and its attendant increased production of the necessities of life.

"America's part rather than taking the form of voluntary contribution to the lessening of the liability of European nations, will more properly take the form of contributing to the efficiency of the productive capacity of these nations by the application of capital in those directions which will tend to still further stimulate activity along natural lines and only in such ways as shall meet the test of business judgment."

Arnold Daly, the actor, said he had come back to arrange the preliminaries for the fall production of "The Last Night of Don Juan," by Edmond Rostand. "It is Rostand's greatest work and it makes George Bernard Shaw look like a space writer," he said.

Sinclair Lewis, author of "Main Street," accompanied by Mrs. Lewis and their young son, stepped ashore after an absence of a year spent in the Kent Downs, England, and in Italy. He said his next novel, "Babbitt," a tale of a tired business man in a city of 200,000, would soon be published.

William H. Todd, president of the Todd Shipyards Corporation, posed for the motion picture men with Jack Dempsey, who was employed by the Todd shipyard at Seattle during the war. The two met for the first time aboard ship.

It was said a well-known ocean gambler was discovered among the cabin passengers by Purser C. T. Spedding, who cut short his activities for the voyage.

HARDING WILL STATE STAND ON PHILIPPINES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—It was stated at the White House today that the commission of Filipinos, due to arrive in Washington next month to present its views on Philippine independence, would be cordially received by the President. The further statement was made that the Administration was prepared to discuss the problem fully, and it was hoped that the commission would go home "with something more definite than they have had for the last three or four years."

This announcement caused no little discussion today, but the general opinion was that it did not forecast the granting of independence to the Philippines at this time. It is believed, however, that the Administration will make a definite statement of its views to the commission.

It is pointed out that the Wood-Forbes commission, which investigated conditions in the Philippines, reported against granting independence at this time. The Administration approved this report, and has since put the stamp of approval upon Wood's work as Governor.

Secretary Weeks, it is understood, thinks the Filipinos are not yet ready for independence. The War Department has signed statements from leaders of practically all factions in the Philippines advising against immediate independence.

WOMAN COMFORTS CONVICT.

Writes Doomed Man She Believes He Did Not Kill Her Son.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, May 19.—While Rutger Warder, a Sing Sing death house prisoner, hovered between life and death following an operation for appendicitis, prison attendants announced today that Mrs. Mary Werner, the mother of Henry Werner, whose murder he is alleged to have plotted, has written him several letters to cheer him up. Prison attendants, who censor Warder's mail, assert that the woman believes Warder is not responsible for her son's murder.

When Warder was arrested a woman with whom he was friendly was also arrested. The jury acquitted the woman, although Warder accused her of plotting the death of Werner.

Warder was stricken with acute appendicitis and taken out of the death house and operated upon by Dr. Amos O. Squire, head prison physician, Thursday night in the Sing Sing Hospital. Warder's condition was serious this evening. Everything possible is being done to prevent his dying and escaping the law.

Warder is kept locked in a special room with a guard, to prevent an attempt at escape or suicide, as long as he is out of the death house.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes declined to make public the letters of Mrs. Werner, who lives in Herkimer.

BOND CLUB BEATEN ON A 'PERFECT DAY'

Vanderlip's Guests, After Scarborough Outing, Find Solace in the "Bawl Street Journal."

The Bond Club of New York, composed of the younger generation of Wall Street, went up to Frank A. Vanderlip's place at Scarborough yesterday and discovered that what the bond baseball team needed was Charley Sabin, a young pitcher of promise, and, incidentally, Chairman of the board of the Guaranty Trust Company. The baseball team of the Boston Bond Club, composed of ex-captains of the Harvard, Yale and Wesleyan nines, demonstrated the need of Southpaw Sabin.

Last year when the chaps who buy and sell bonds went up to the Sleepy Hollow Country Club, Sabin was on the mound and he was invincible. Yesterday, he couldn't go with the rest of the boys because there was a convention of Vice-Presidents of the Guaranty Trust Company being held in Southhampton, and the result was: Boston 6, New York 3.

Boston won the inter-city golf match also, taking seven of the ten match games played. In fact, the only thing that New York managed to snatch off was the tennis contest—Harold Throckmorton and Karl Behrm taking two out of three sets from Nathaniel Niles and Harry Johnson. As the Bawl Street Journal, an eight-page newspaper issued in a spirit of "satire in its proper use," expressed it—"it was a day of gloom for The Street."

"Mysterious Stranger."

Yet it was not all gloom for New York, for it was reliably reported in financial circles that the Mysterious Stranger in the Gray Hat was a New Yorker, and praise went to Allah for that. This person, it appeared, turned up at last year's field day and by standing near a device—involving red-and-black and a ball—just guessed himself into extra dividends. He was there again yesterday, hat and guesses, and although nobody seemed to know him very well, he departed carrying a token from nearly everybody.

Yes, and also of the silver-lining order was a 500-kronen bond of the City of Vienna, the late capital of one of the late enemy. The bond was in the throes of an epidemic of German lithographic art, and had a flock of coupons attached. A trifle of the silver-lining phase of the free bonds—each one got one—was the lack of authoritative quotations on their value. Some said they were $25 and others figured them down to 25 cents—yes, to nothing at all, unless one were papering the garage.

About 300 members of the club deserted the Street and its worries and woes and took the 10 o'clock special out of the Grand Central Terminal. By the time the 300 had foregathered on the golf course and had found the hip-pockets in their sports suits, recorders of wagers on the merits of Boston golf versus New York had wavered and collapsed and collapsed and wavered.

Teeing off for Boston were F. J. Amory, R. W. Brown, J. B. Chase, W. C. Chick, Thomas M. Claflin, G. P. Gardiner Jr., Prescott Bigelow, William Hunter and H. H. Marden. The Wall Street hopes were Schuyler Van Vechtin, Ned Currier, Caryl Sayre, Robert Donald Gibson, Clarkson Potter, Irving Brown, Everett Bacon, Fred Clarkson, William Scarborough and Arthur Griffin.

"Indoor Sports."

It was noon before the matches were finished and then everybody hiked over to the country club for a buffet luncheon. After the luncheon came what the program called "indoor sports," and this involved the entry of the gray-hatted one. He left immediately after, in time, he hoped, to invest the proceeds of the little jaunt in something with gilt edges.

But, after all, it was the baseball game that was the big event. Right up to the last minute Sanger Steel, President of the club, had hoped to get a radio from the congress at Southampton announcing that Charley Sabin would be up to toss a wicked spitter high, low, close and unasked at the Bostonians. But no, the Vice Presidents had barricaded Sabin at Southampton and he couldn't get away. This news made the Boston team and rooters so confident, so certain of themselves one might have thought they'd cornered all the codfish stocks. One of their pitchers, warming up in front of the clubhouse, even went so far as to hit a morning newspaper man in the knee with a wild pitch. The newspaper man later said he was glad he had been awakened, because he had been dreaming that he had just bought some stock.

When the two teams trotted out on Mr. Vanderlip's Beechwood baseball field they lined up as follows:

BOSTON.	NEW YORK.
R. W. Emmons, 3b.	H. T. Sawyer, ss.
George Fitts, ss.	F. S. Barr, cf.
Edward W. Mahon, p.	A. M. Milburn, 2b.
R. Harte, c.	J. C. Anderson, rf.
W. Stanwood, 2b.	L. L. Vivian, 3b.
G. A. Percy, cf.	W. Taylor, 1b.
L. Parsons, lf.	C. Park Jr., lf.
R. Blewell, rf.	W. Scarborough, c.
H. R. Hardwick, 1b.	C. E. Bacon, p.

The appearance of the redoubtable "Eddie" Mahon of Harvard football and baseball fame on the mound—and Charley Sabin away down there at Southampton—increased the area of gooseflesh on the New Yorkers. And wasn't Hardwick, Captain of Harvard, '15, out there on the first sack—why, every way one looked Harvard or Yale started up.

New York Hopes.

But New York cheered up, for there was Bacon of Wesleyan and Crescent A. C. fame, ready to display his wares, and Murray Lee of Columbia and Princeton was eager to do his bit. And don't forget that "Rabbit" H. T. Sawyer was Captain of Yale in '20, and that "Babe Ruth" Anderson last year walloped two three two-baggers.

Yet all the "don't forgets" were of no avail. True enough, Bacon did hold them in the first inning and was ahead until the fourth, when the rainstorm came along. After that inning, however, Boston and the rain got in their work and it was all up. About all New York could do was read The Bawl Street Journal and they found it paid.

For instance, right on the front page of the mock newspaper that was a duplicate of its genuine namesake in all save content, was this head: "J. P. Morgan and Kuhn, Loeb Combine To Enter Retail Trade—New Firms to be known as K. L. Morgan & Co.—Will Take Over The Equitable Building," and a sub-head stated that "the Government will investigate."

Throughout the burlesque newspaper, with its amusing advertisements, were many startling stories, each of them a satiric slap at somebody in the Street, prompting the editors of the newspaper to say that they appreciated "the fact that there is about $10,000,000 worth of libel" in their columns.

After the ball game came dinner, a boxing tournament with A. A. U. boxers, and at 11 o'clock last night what the club officials called "the end of a perfect day."

EDISON URGES SCHEME OF LONG FARM CREDITS

Wants Special Currency for Loans on Crops Held in Government Warehouses.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Proposed by Thomas A. Edison, a new plan for extension of long-term credits to farmers was taken under consideration today by a committee of the Senate agricultural bloc.

The Edison plan, as outlined by Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas, Chairman of the bloc, and members of a special committee considering the matter of farm credits, contemplates issuance of a series of farm currency through a central Federal farm bank. The currency would be lent to farmers for one year, repayable at the rate of 1 per cent. a month, with a lien of 50 per cent. of farmers' crops as security. Mr. Edison proposed a twenty or twenty-five year average of prices of agricultural products as the basis for the 50 per cent. value loans.

The committee was told by Mr. Edison that he had been studying the subject of farm credits at the request of Henry Ford. Some members of the committee said Mr. Edison's suggestions were worthy of study, while others declared them impractical.

No interest would be charged farmers for the money lent to them under Mr. Edison's plan, but the borrowers would be required to pay the overhead for a chain of Government warehouses, in which crops upon which loans were made would be stored. Such warehouses, under Mr. Edison's plan, would be erected by his system of building by poured concrete.

A brief submitted by Mr. Edison to Senator Capper outlining his plan contained the following proposals:

"Upon receipt of any commodity and after proper weighing, a preliminary receipt for the same is to be given. It is then to be manipulated or graded, and three sets of sealed samples taken, one being given to the owner and two being kept by the Government. The Government thereupon will issue a receipt in duplicate for the commodity, one receipt setting forth the quantity and grade of the commodity. The other receipts the same thing, and in addition gives the holder the right to receive in Federal reserve currency at any national bank he may choose 50 per cent. of the average value of the commodity, as determined by the prices over a period of twenty-five years, without any charge other than the cost of service and a contribution to the sinking fund. For this the bank may make a definite charge for obtaining the currency from the district reserve bank. The duplicate receipt is kept by the owner, and contains his equity over and above the loan of 50 per cent. This duplicate is available for a loan at a national bank, or it may be sold on the Exchanges or held by the farmer until he desires to sell. Both certificates may be split up in fractions at the pleasure of the Administration."

Federal storage of and loans upon bituminous coal as well as agricultural products was also suggested by Mr. Edison.

WEEKS OFF COMMITTEE.

Resigns as National Committeeman From Massachusetts.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 19.—Secretary John W. Weeks has resigned as National Committeeman from Massachusetts. His resignation is in the hands of the Republican National Committee and it is expected that before the end of the month it will be forwarded to the State Committee, which will fill the vacancy.

William M. Butler of New Bedford has been selected as a successor to Mr. Weeks, and it is predicted that there will be no opposition to the choice. It is understood that Edward A. Thurston, a former Chairman of the State Committee, who was ambitious to succeed Weeks, has agreed to step aside in the interest of party harmony.

Opposition to Senator Lodge's reelection is believed to be very slight, and the Republican workers are said to be enthusiastic over the coming campaign.

Mr. Weeks succeeded ex-Senator Crane as National Committeeman in 1920. When appointed Secretary of War it was believed that he would resign, but at the request of the President he continued as National Committeeman.

pects were reported to have complained that the package contained $40,000 worth of securities when it was stolen from the City Hall Post Office by a postal employe, and that one of the band had "double-crossed" his confederates.

Immediate Round-Up Arranged.

It was said the three postal inspectors were not aware that the band had for several days been planning hold-ups of several post offices until last Thursday. Discussion about the contemplated hold-ups had been confined to only four members of the band and at a place other than the regular rendezvous, it was said.

Plans for the immediate round-up of the band men were formulated. Four inspectors, accompanied by detectives assigned by Inspector Coughlin, head of the Detective Division, rode to the East Houston Street candy store at 5 P. M. Thursday and arrested Fogel and Steinberg. The arrests were made as quietly as possible and the two suspects were taken to the office of the postal inspectors in the General Post Office.

Goldsmith, the inspectors had learned, was a partner in a clothing house, and four inspectors and three detectives assigned to take him into custody had to loiter around his home until 9 o'clock in the evening before he was arrested. In the meantime other inspectors and policemen had arrested Shapiro and Gelles at their homes, and Weinstein was arrested when he reported for work in the General Post Office. Feldman had been decoyed to the General Post Office under promise that he was to be reinstated to his clerkship there, and he was taken up to the office of the postal inspectors.

Mr. Glover was present when the seven men were submitted to a grilling. It was said that the seven had confessed to the parts played by them in the theft and disposition of the canceled bonds.

How the Bonds Were Stolen.

Inspector Doran said that through the confessions the manner in which the bonds were stolen first became known to the Government officials. He said it was admitted that Steinberg and Fogel actually perpetrated the theft. Steinberg was alleged to have confessed that when he was at work on the second floor of the General Post Office Building on July 18 last he placed a canvas sack containing the $1,477,000 in cancelled bonds on his shoulder and, passing the hundreds of clerks in the distributing room, made his way to a porter's closet in the northwest corner of the building, where Fogel was in hiding.

Steinberg then was alleged to have thrown the sack to Fogel, who, after ripping it open, transferred the bonds to a large paper bag. Steinberg then hurried back to the distributing room, and five minutes later Fogel was alleged to have gained the street with the loot.

Steinberg and Fogel were alleged to have told the inspectors that they kept the cancelled bonds under cover for almost two months before they attempted to dispose of any of them. It was decided eventually to venture the disposal of several of the bonds of smaller denominations through the proprietors of small business establishments, with whom others who had been drawn into the conspiracy were acquainted.

One of the first bonds thus offered, they were alleged to have said, resulted in the arrest of Mrs. Attell and two men who said they were Sol Geib and Sol Cohen. Mrs. Attell was alleged to have offered a $500 bond, the cancellation of which had been imperfectly erased, to a delicatessen dealer in Seventh Avenue. The delicatessen dealer attempted to dispose of the bond to the People's Bank in Seventh Avenue. Postal officials immediately were notified, and Mrs. Attell and the two men were arrested in an apartment in West Seventy-second Street near Columbus Avenue, where she was known as Ethel Bruce.

Unrecovered Bonds Burned.

Several weeks later von Eschen and Frank Hart and Henry Morris were arrested when they were alleged to have attempted to dispose of $30,000 worth of the stolen bonds in a brokerage house, and about a month ago the postal inspectors and the police arrested Jacob Wolfe, Louis Wolfe and Jacob Price when they were alleged to have attempted to negotiate the sale of $75,000 worth of the canceled bonds in another brokerage establishment. Mrs. Attell and the eight men were held in high bail when arraigned before Commissioner Hitchcock.

The postal inspectors said that when questioned about the whereabouts of the remainder of the stolen bonds Fogel and Steinberg said they burned thirteen $100,000 bonds and several packages of smaller denominations when they learned of von Eschen's arrest. The bonds found on Jacob and Louis Wolfe and Price had been passed before von Eschen's arrest, it was said.

The inspectors said they were unable to learn whether any of the fifteen persons under arrest had any knowledge of the plot which resulted in the hold-up and theft of more than $2,000,000 in money, jewelry and securities from a mail truck at Broadway and Leonard Street on the night of Oct. 24 last.

Fogel, Steinberg, Gales and Goldsmith were held in $25,000 bail when arraigned before Commissioner Hitchcock. Weinstein was held in $15,000 bail, and bail of $3,000 each was imposed in the cases of Feldman and Shapiro. All were charged with conspiring to steal from the mails.

The Outdoor Sports Season Demands a Light-Weight Corset

To correctly interpret today's fashions one must give more than a passing thought to the essential basis of careful dressing—correct corsetry.

With the sports costume, perhaps more so than with any other costume, the corset must be perfect fitting, yet so light-weight and lightly boned as to give the figure absolute freedom and the desired uncorseted appearance.

CREWLESS TROLLEY SPEEDS THREE MILES

DASHES OUT RICHMOND ROAD

A municipal trolley car of the Richmond line, on Staten Island, ran away from the Concord car barn last evening—no one seems to know just how—and bowled along, crewless, for about three miles on Richmond Road before a city fireman, outdoing Douglas Fairbanks in his most acrobatic rolet, stopped it.

The car—No. 302—had been standing at about 6 o'clock in front of the barn and presumably the motorman had left it to go inside. No one at the barn, apparently, saw it start, but a half mile down the road several expectant passengers were shocked to see it go sailing by with the single door at the front closed and no motorman.

"Trackless trolleys" had been heard of on Staten Island, and one passenger ventured the suggestion: "Mayor Hylan seems to be experimenting with guideless trolleys."

"Maybe it's a radio," was another suggestion. "Do you have to know the International code to signal it?" another inquired.

The car made good time along the road, taking hills and curves at a speed of about ten miles an hour, which is as good or better than a motorman can do. It did not slacken speed or sound the gong when pedestrians were sighted on the track or when automobiles crossed at intersecting roads. Luckily every one got out of its way. The road is double-tracked, so there was no danger of a head-on collision.

Near New Dorp several passengers were waiting for the car. When they saw it breeze by with no crew some one telephone ahead to the firehouse of Engine Company 167 and before the runaway trolley reached that point Fireman Joseph Foley was waiting for it. Seeing that the front door was closed, Foley jumped in behind the car, whose speed was being cut down by an upgrade. He caught one side of a window frame, pulled himself on and made his way, in "human fly" fashion, up to the roof. To get into the car he had to crawl over the rocking roof to the front end and through a window. This done, it was easy to shut off the power, which he found, was turned on full.

The car barn was notified and a crew was sent out to take the runaway back. Operating officials said they did not know how the car could have started. Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, has ordered an investigation.

TESTS TRADE RIGHTS OF FORMER ENEMIES

On the application of Harry D. Nims, counsel for the Hunyadi Janos Corporation, Federal Judge Knox yesterday signed a temporary order restraining Alexander F. Stoeger from selling or dealing in Hunyadi Janos water. The spring from which this water comes is in Hungary and before the war was owned by Andreas Saxlehner. During the war the agency for the sale of the water in this country was seized by the Alien Property Custodian and later was sold by the Government.

All of the American rights, including the trade mark, passed into the possession of interests now represented by the Hunyadi Janos Corporation. In establishing offices and agencies and in reviving the sale of the water, the new owners spent about $50,000. Recently it was learned that Mr. Stoeger had set up an agency for the sale of the water and was using the old familiar trade mark. Mr. Nims said that Mr. Stoeger had bought abroad 250 cases of the water, for which he paid 281,000 marks, or $333 in our money. Mr. Stoeger, it was stated, has described himself as the sole source of the water in this country.

According to Mr. Nims the question before the court is whether a business sold by the United States Government and bought in good faith can be subjected to competition using the same trade mark which was the most valuable part of the property purchased by the plaintiff.

Mr. Nims also said that the case involves an answer to the question as to what extent an alien concern, whose business had been taken over during the war by the United States Government, can now come back into this country and regain his business regardless of the rights attending its sale by the Government. It was said that this is the first case of the kind to be submitted to the courts.

DEPORTED FROM EGYPT UNDER MARTIAL LAW

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, May 19.—This week several British subjects in Egypt were arrested and deported by order of the military authorities. Immediately after his arrest counsel for one man obtained a writ of habeas corpus. When the military authorities failed to produce the prisoner before the British Supreme Court in Cairo this morning his counsel applied for a writ of attachment against the two officers who had charge of him. Counsel for the authorities tendered an apology for their failure to obey the court order, saying that it was due to a misunderstanding.

An argument followed as to whether martial law was legal, as the country was at peace. Counsel for the military authorities contended that Great Britain was still at war with Turkey, which claimed dominion over Egypt.

The Judge accepted the apology and refused to enter into the question whether martial law was legal, accepting the fact that martial law existed and had existed here since November, 1914. Leave to appeal was granted.

Traffic on Barge Canal Increases.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 19.—Traffic on the Barge Canal for the first two weeks of the 1922 season shows a marked increase over the same period in 1921, Superintendent of Public Works Cadle said today. Up to and including April 13 the total tonnage was 72,889. In 1921 it was 58,181 tons for the same period.

SLAIN YOUTH'S BODY IDENTIFIED BY SCARS

RUM RUNNERS SUSPECTED

May Have Shot Him Believing Him to Be a Prohibition Agent.

Further indentification of the body of the young man found murdered on a lonely road between Kensico and Chappaqua on Monday last as Clarence Peters, 19 years old, the son of Eldridge Peters of 19 Grave Street, Haverhill, Mass., was made yesterday through scars on the neck and back. The examination of the body yesterday was made after Sheriff Werner had received a telegram from Leonard A. Tilton, 102 Main Street, Haverhill, Mass., an undertaker, reading:

"Identify body of Clarence Peters by large scars on back of neck and back, and large mole on the chest. If correct undertaker is to ship body in a cheap casket, untrimmed, to Haverhill."

The sheriff looked over the body and found the scars and the mole where the telegram said.

That the body is that of Peters is also proved by finger prints taken of the dead man by Raymond Hill, finger print expert connected with the Sheriff's office, and which compare exactly with the finger prints of Clarence Peters in possession of the Naval Intelligence Department of Washington. The records in the Bureau of Navigation at Washington show that Peters served as an apprentice seamon in the navy anw was honorably discharged on Nov. 17, 1919. Sheriff Weiner sent a telegram to Alden M. Worcester, Marshal at Haverhill, saying the murdered man was undoubtedly Peters and asking him to send the senior Peters to White Plains.

The murder is one of the most mysterious and baffling that the Westchester authorities have had to deal with in some time. The vicitim was shot through the heart, but no revolver was found and there was no sign of a struggle. The police believe the man was the victim of rum runners who have been passing through Westchester County lately on their way to Connecticut and Manhattan. It is surmised the young man was murdered in some other place and brought to the scene in an automobile. There is also a theory that he may have attempted to hold up an automobile containing bootleggers with the intention of begging for a ride and that he was murdered in mistake for an officer.

TO CUT ACCIDENTS OF AUTOS AND MINES

National Safety Council Will Start School Here and Send Representative to Collieries.

So acute has the automobile accident situation become in New York that the National Safety Council decided at a meeting of the Executive Committee at the Hotel Commodore yesterday to establish a school here where safe driving will be taught. An attempt to bring down the fatality toll in mines by sending a mining engineer to all mining districts where he will spread safety propaganda will also be made by the council, with the co-operation of the Federal Bureau of Mines.

Remarkable progress has been made in cities where the National Safety Council is represented, said Arthur H. Young, of the National Harvester Company of Chicago, the President. In all these cities, including Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Louisville, Rochester, Syracuse, St. Paul, Kansas City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and others—thirty-five in all—the number of fatilities per thousand on the roads has decreased in proportion to the big increase in the number of vehicles.

Although chauffeurs are not licensed by the State until they have passed a driving test, there is still great need to inoculate into their minds the need for safe driving, said Mr. Young. This school, where courses in safety will be given probably free to all who desire them, will be estabished in New York within two months, Mr. Young said.

The council's program in the mining areas will be undertaken by C. L. Colburn, mining engineer of the Bureau of Mines.

Mr. Colburn will set out within a month, Mr. Young said. His task will be to make a survey of conditions in the mines, deliver lectures, prepare bulletins, and in every possible way spread safety propaganda. The National Safety Council will pay the expenses of the undertaking.

ROME STUNNED BY FIRE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 19.—The terrible fire which made so many victims and destroyed a great part of the historic hospital Santo Spirito has caused the greatest impression throughout Rome. The hospital was one of the oldest in the Eternal City, founded by Innocent III., and enlarged by Innocent IV. to enable it to care for foundlings and the infirm. A precious picture gallery and library adjoins it.

If the disaster had occurred in any other part of the enormous building the victims would probably have been fewer, but the fire first burst forth in two wards containing the infirm and chronic invalids, who were unable to save themselves. A perfect inferno of flames cut off access to the two wards containing thirty patients. The only way of escape was through a window. Doctors and firemen succeeded in penetrating in this way to one ward, saving twelve inmates, but in the meantime the ceiling of the next ward collapsed, burying over twelve persons. The terror and panic was heightened by the fact that the electric lights went out, leaving the place lighted by only the huge leaping flames. Undauntedly the firemen succeeded in penetrating into the ruins and carrying out twelve patients, but they were all dead through asphyxiation.

The doctors and nurses are still stunned and confused. Several nuns, overcome by emotion, cry silently. A crowd of relations outside the hospital implore the cordon of soldiers guarding the entrance to allow them to pass to see their dear ones, but orders are strict, and the mass falls back depressed and disconsolate.

Pope Says Mass for Fire Victims.

ROME, May 19.—Pope Pius celebrated mass this morning for the victims of yesterday's fire in the hospital of Santo Spirito, praying fervently for them during the elevation. He imparted a special benediction. Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, and other members of the Pope's household were present.

H. UPMANN DENIES BUYING FAVOR HERE

Says He Did Not Have to Spend a Cent to Facilitate Return of Sequestrated Property.

$1,028,517 ITEM EXPLAINED

Attorneys' Fees, Cost of Trip and Bank Expenses in 30 Months It Lasted Are Listed.

HAVANA, May 19.—Herman Upmann, President of the suspended bank of H. Upmann & Co., declared today that "neither in Washington nor New York did I have to spend a single penny to secure the favor of anybody in making better the official situation of our sequestrated fortune." He made the statement because of an item in the report of the accountants employed by the Havana Clearing House to examine the Upmann firm's books which lists $1,028,517 in liabilities as "expenses of H. Upmann in Washington to secure the return of properties seized as a result of the war."

Late today Upmann was held for trial on an indictment charging misappropriation of securities placed in his possession and released subsequently under bonds of $100,000 to guarantee criminal, and $1,000,000 to guarantee civil, responsibilities. Albert Upmann, his brother, was released and the charge against him dismissed.

The two men had been in jail since last Tuesday under provisional arrest, while Judge A. G. Sola of the First Instructional Court heard testimony relative to conditions which resulted in the bank failing to open for business on May 1 and the taking over of the institution on May 12 by the Federal Bank Liquidation Commission.

The trial date will not be fixed until the Liquidation Commission has had an opportunity to submit an official report on the bank's condition.

The order for the release of Albert Upmann was based on the fact that no testimony was presented at the Instructional Court hearing to disprove his original declaration that he had no hand in the banking business of the firm, but devoted himself exclusively to its tobacco interests.

The indictment of Herman Upmann came after a three-day investigation by Judge Sola into data contained in a report to the Federal Bank Liquidation Commission by the agents appointed to represent the commission on the Upmann Liquidation Board. This report followed the general lines of the incomplete report made by accountants employed by the Havana Clearing House and upon which the Clearing House based its refusal to advance a loan requested by the bank.

Numerous clients of the bank testified before Judge Sola that Herman Upmann had not been authorized to dispose of securities they had deposited with him. Among these was Manuel Flores y Pedraso, who testified that he had not authorized the hypothecation of $300,000 worth of securities or the transfer to the National City Bank by H. Upmann of a note for $225,000. Other clients, some of them listed as having deposited securities totaling more than $1,000,000, did not appear at the hearings.

According to the statement of Herman Upmann relative to the expenditure of $1,028,517 charged against him, the Clearing House accountants in making their report failed to include his explanation of the purposes to which the money was devoted. These he explained in approximate figures as follows: To attorneys in the United States, $210,000; to attorneys in New York, by order of the Alien Property Commission, $15,000; expenses of northern office, $3,000; personal expenses, $10,000.

The remainder of the total amount, he continued, was absorbed by personal and family expenses and by the banking house which, although closed for thirty months because of the war, was the cause of heavy expenses by reason of maintenance costs, salaries of personnel and other items.

EXPLAINS UPMANN DEALINGS.

Property Custodian Denies Frelinghuysen Had Any Part in Case.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Alien Property Custodian Miller issued today the following statement with respect to dealings of the Property Custodian with H. Upmann & Co., the German-Cuban banking house, which recently failed in Havana:

"There were three claims. One of them was a personal claim of Hermann Upmann; the other two were claims of H. Upmann & Co. The personal claim of H. Upmann of $21,023.91 was returned in cash, together with approximately 5,000 shares of Baragua Sugar Company preferred and common stock, and approximately 4,500 shares of the common and preferred stock of the Havana Dock Corporation.

"One of the claims of H. Upmann & Co. consisted of cash amounting to $107,131.17 and a considerable batch of securities, mostly Cuban sugar stocks and stocks of public service corporations in Cuba. Also American securities together with 1,000 shares of the Standard Shipbuilding Corporation. None of the securities, however, related to any corporation or woolen mills in the State of New Jersey.

"The two claims of H. Upmann & Co. were allowed March 1, 1920, and Dec. 28, 1920, by T. J. Spellacy, Assistant Attorney General under Mr. Palmer, and the personal claim of H. Upmann was allowed by the same official under date of March 17, 1920.

"An examination of the files shows that no communication from Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey was ever received, nor was he remotely connected in any way in the case, according to the files of this office."

Concerning the report that an audit of the Upmann company's books by the Havana Clearing House showed an expenditure of more than a million dollars by the firm in regaining the seized property, Mr. Miller said his office had no means of determining what the Upmanns paid private counsel in prosecution of their claims. Senator Frelinghuysen was brought into the case by a Havana newspaper, which declared some of the property involved consisted of stock in New Jersey woolen mills in which it said Mr. Frelinghuysen was interested. Senator Frelinghuysen has denied this.

TESTIFY AGAINST HETTRICK.

Master Steamfitters Tell of "Code-of-Practice" Methods.

Master steamfitters and members of the Steamfitters' Union were called yesterday as witnesses against John T. Hettrick, reputed author of the "code of practice" among steamfitters, stone cutters and plumbers, at the trial of Hettrick and four others for conspiracy in connection with the steamfitters' "code" before Justice Alvarson in the Supreme Court.

Francis J. Guinon, a master steamfitter, testified that he joined the "code of practice" in May, 1920, and got his first job several months later. He said he had failed to comply with the regulations of the code on a job he took on June 16 of that year. He said he submitted his bid first to the owner and builder before clearing it through Hettrick's office in advance. He said a man named York, employed as a clerk in Hettrick's office, after he had submitted his bid there telephoned him to raise his $2,500 bid $1,000. He did not raise the estimate, he said.

Walter L. Fleisher, President of W. L. Fleisher & Co., Inc., 31 Union Square, steamfitters, who admitted having joined the "code" group, testified that Hettrick said he would have to file bids with him, pay 1 per cent. on contracts awarded and a fee of $250. Fleisher said he had paid Hettrick between $800 and $900 in fees.

The trial will be resumed on Monday morning.

HEIGHTENS PARIS ART WAR

Decision Which May Affect Other Napoleonic Souvenirs Prompts the Query: What Is an Expert?

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 19.—At the very moment when art collectors, antiquity dealers, official and unofficial "experts" have Paris by the ears over the vexed question of the authenticity of the Louis XV. table sold at the recent Marquis de Ganay sale at Fontainebleau, the court has decided a matter of grave importance to collectors of Napoleonic souvenirs.

When General Husson, who served under Napoleon, died, he left all his belongings to his valet. The latter having in turn died, his heirs organized a sale of souvenirs, including the regimental colors of the Forty-second French Infantry, announced as having been presented by Napoleon himself to General Husson.

A collector bought the colors, paying a high price, and then presented them to the Army Museum in Paris. The Governor of the latter, General Malleterre, after a close investigation, refused the gift, experts having decided it was nothing but a copy. The angry collector thereupon took the matter to court, which yesterday condemned the valet's heirs to refund the price paid in the sale, as well as 500 francs damages. The court decision was given despite further expert opinion that the colors were authentic.

The unreliability of so-called expert opinion in art and similar matters has been thrown singularly into relief. The whole matter seems to resolve itself into the following question: What is an expert? Gathering by the opinion in art circles the reply apparently is: Anybody who decides to adopt the designation and possesses sufficient self assurance to practice.

It would be easy to quote offhand a whole string of cases in which expert opinion is at loggerheads over art matters. The claim put forward by an American collector that he possessed Leonardo's famous "Belle Ferronniere"—the painting which the whole world knew to be hanging in the Louvre—has received sufficient expert backing to make the authenticity of both pictures doubtful forever. Dr. Bode's Leonardo bust, which is really the work of a young English sculptor, is another striking case showing that even German art experts are not infallible.

Meanwhile, the discussion over the Louis XV. table from the De Ganay collection continues merrily. The newspapers print lengthy and weighty articles either supporting the experts or condemning them. Jonas, the antiquary who bought the table, promises to bring proof that the table was made quite recently, while the latest addition to the discussion is a letter from the Marquis De Ganay, printed this evening, saying the table always formed a part of his mother's collection and therefore cannot be new. When the judges are called upon to decide the matter, it will certainly be what is termed here a "very Parisian case."

BIG LOANS TO PACKERS.

Prosecution in Small Case Says $1,835,000 Was Paid to Curtis.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., May 19 (Associated Press).—Reducing to figures its mass of documentary evidence, consisting of memoranda, canceled notes and drafts of Armour & Co. and Swift & Co., the prosecution declared tonight, at the close of the fourth week of the trial of Governor Len Small, that $1,835,000 interest on packers' notes had been traced to the late State Senator Edward C. Curtis and that the loans and renewals made by Curtis to the packers amounted to more than $52,000,000.

Counsel for Small contended that the transactions between Curtis, his banks and the packers had no connection with the alleged conspiracy in which the Governor, Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, the late Senator Curtis, and his brother, Vernon, are accused of having defrauded the State.

Frederick W. Croll, Vice President and Treasurer of Armour & Co.; Arthur Colby, assistant to Mr. Croll, and W. W. Sherman, Assistant Treasurer of Swift & Co., were witnesses today.

Mr. Croll testified that he never knew Governor Small and never had any communication with him.

Mr. Colby said that cards of first entry of loans made by Armour & Co. were destroyed as late as September, 1921, three months after the defendant was indicted.

It was shown that Armour & Co. paid interest to Senator Curtis averaging 1 per cent. higher than they paid on loans from other sources. Mr. Croll explained that in transactions with Curtis consideration was taken of the fact that no interest was paid on money deposited in the packers' checking accounts in banks.

SEIZE CALIFORNIA VINEYARD.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19.—Federal officers today started the seizure of vineyard properties valued at $2,000,000, owned by the Theodore Gier Vineyard Company of Oakland. Orders for the seizure came from Washington after a report by wire of the seizure of a truckload of wine and raids on warehouses had shown a shortage of 46,000 gallons of wine from original shipments.

Gier surrendered Tuesday to Federal officers and posted a bond of $2,000. He appeared later before the Internal Revenue Collector and offered to pay taxes and penalties, but the Collector refused to accept on orders from Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Seizure of the Theodore Gier Vineyard Company at Oakland, Cal., was ordered from Washington as a result of a report from Federal Prohibition Director Rutter of California, declaring that Gier was engaged in bootlegging in untaxed wine.

Director Rutter, officials said, reported that he was in doubt as to whether he should proceed with the case or leave the matter in the hands of the Internal Revenue officials. He was instructed to make the seizure and to work in co-operation with the revenue agents. About 90,000 gallons of wine, prohibition officials declared, are involved in the case, upon about 15,000 gallons of which they allege taxes have not been paid.

FLEES FATHER AND VANISHES

Son of Tuckerton Farmer Missing Since May 10.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 19.—Southern New Jersey is being thoroughly searched for 10-year-old Henry Scheim, son of John Scheim, a farmer of Tuckerton, who disappeared from his home on May 10. No one has seen the boy since he ran across the field to escape his father's threats of a whipping because of a mischievous act in school.

Theories are advanced that the lad may have been kidnapped by tramps, become lost in the woods and died from hunger and exposure, or that he may have wandered into a cranberry bog quagmire and been unable to extricate himself. Some of the residents believe he may have met with foul play.

The lad was dressed in blue overalls and blue jumper and had a deformity of the feet.

FELIX DIAZ BEHIND REVOLT IN TABASCO

GOVERNMENT SENDS TROOPS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, May 19.—The situation in Southern Mexico is seriously complicated by a new outbreak in the State of Tabasco. Felix Diaz is showing his hand in the new movement. General Carlos Green, ex-Governor of Tabasco, has taken the field in command of the Diaz forces, Diaz himself being in New Orleans.

The capture of Frontera is supposed to have been effected by the rebels in order to have a seaport at which to unload the shipments of arms recently purchased in New York. Diaz agents have succeeded in shipping 7,000 rifles from that port. A Diaz agent in Spain has been trying to buy 20,000 Spanish Mausers, with ammunition. Reports from the Gulf of Mexico are to the effect that several small schooners have been seen, which fled at the approach of Government vessels. It is believed that these mysterious ships are carrying ammunition for the new movement.

General Serrano, Minister of War, is en route for Tabasco with 2,500 soldiers, escorted by Mexican gunboats. The warships are expected to co-operate in recapturing Frontera and also to search the Gulf for gun-running ships.

The failure of the local officials to defend the city causes much surprise in Government circles. General Mireles, commander in the State of Tabasco, is an intimate friend of President Obregon.

It is known here that heavy purchases of machine guns and ammunition have been made in the United States by enemies of the present Government. New Orleans is reported as the headquarters of the gun-runners, who are said to be American owners of small trading ships working in the Gulf of Mexico. It is expected that the Government will have the situation in hand in a few days, although the coming of the rainy season is a handicap to unseasoned troops.

Tabasco is suffering from a scourge of "paludismo," which usually kills its victim in a few hours after the first attack. The symptoms are similar to and often mistaken for those of yellow fever.

MEXICO CITY, May 19 (Associated Press).—General Serrano, Minister of War, who hastily left the capital yesterday on receipt of reports of the sacking of Frontera on Wednesday by 300 rebels under José Segovia, boarded the gunboat Zaragoza at Vera Cruz and is on his way to the scene of the trouble.

A War Office statement says that Segovia's forces were surprised and defeated yesterday morning at Las Palmas while celebrating their victory, and that several of the rebels were killed and others captured. The statement also denies the rumored defection of General Luis Mireles, commanding the Federal troops in the State of Tabasco, declaring that the Government has absolute confidence in him.

It is understood that General Serrano has called a war council of all the heads of departments in the isthmian territory of Tabasco and Chiapas, and if necessary will remain at Villa Hermosa until the campaign is well under way against General Greene, the commander of the rebels.

The uprisings in Tabasco, although frequent of late, have never been taken seriously here, as the State is not so strategically located that such movements could menace Mexico City and the north. Ever since his forced resignation as Governor, almost a year ago, General Greene has been reported engaged in revolutionary activities and for months was kept in Mexico City under surveillance, although not under actual arrest.

Two months ago he disappeared from the capital, and since that time the situation in Tabasco has been delicate. Greene was included in President Obregon's recent order that no leniency be shown in the future to leaders of rebellious movements.

POSSE PURSUES BANDITS IN JESSE JAMES HAUNTS

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 19 (Associated Press).—Hiding by day and traveling by night, pursued by Ozark woodsmen, militiamen and peace officers, three of the five bandits who Monday took $20,500 from a bank messenger here have been making their way north all week. Today Sheriff T. J. Harris reported by telephone that the three men are believed to be near Bagnell, in Miller County, seventy-five miles northeast of here. They were seen at dawn, the Sheriff said.

The bandits, however, saw their pursuers almost as quickly as they were seen and were back among the hills along the Osage River, where Jesse James and his companions of a generation ago were wont to take refuge. Despite motor cars and airplanes pressed into service, much of this foothill country is as inaccessible as it was in the days of Jesse James. High hills, thick woods, dense brush shut off pursuit and furnish cover.

Five hundred dollars in silver was picked up by the pursuers a few hours after the robbery. It was too heavy and had been abandoned. A stolen motor car went flat and was also abandoned.

Time and again the bandits have been reported to be surrounded and have slipped away. More than once they have been reported clear of pursuit, but the untiring posse has picked up the trail again.

Two of the bandits, believed to have gone West from here, are admitted to have escaped. For the three the hunt goes on.

JAIL FOR CRYING "BUTTER!"

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 19.—Can the words "Pommes de terre! Mottes de beurre!" [potatoes! butter rolls!] be interpreted as seditious? That is the difficult question which the Paris authorities must settle. They do not sound very terrible; but when Auguste Ortais shouted them in the street at the top of his lusty voice a policeman arrested him and took him to the station, where he remains pending a decision.

Perhaps in ordinary circumstances Ortais's mysterious words would have seemed harmless enough even to the most enthusiastic supporter of law and order. But the fact is that he shouted them when the Minister of Agriculture, M. Chéron, was passing, and, as the Minister had just taken certain measures affecting the prices of these useful articles of food which were not altogether popular, the suspicious policeman read into them a meaning which does not appear at first sight.

SEMENOFF IS FREED ON FRAUD CHARGE

WILL GO ON TO PARIS SOON

May Appear First, However, Before Senators to Deny the Stories of Atrocities.

Deciding that in part at least General Gregory Semenoff and his troops were acting under orders of a de facto Government when they committed the acts charged against them in Siberia, the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday vacated the order of arrest under which the former Ataman of the Siberian Cossacks had been held in $25,000 bail since his arrival here six weeks ago. Besides granting him his liberty to go anywhere he pleases and authorizing the return of the bond under which he has enjoyed partial liberty, the Court awarded Semenoff $10 costs and disbursements.

The arrest of the Ataman, which caused him to spend a period in Ludlow Street Jail when bond was not available, was in a civil action brought by the trustee in bankruptcy for the Yourovets Home and Foreign Trading Company, Inc., to secure a judgment for about $500,000 for woolen goods alleged to have been seized by Semenoff in Siberia. An opinion written by Justice Frank C. Laughlin, and concurred in unanimously by the other Justices, held that the plaintiff had failed to present competent evidence of the "conversion" of the goods by Semenoff or of the recovery of a judgment by the plaintiff in a court in Harbin, China. It is also held that the plaintiff failed to show that Semenoff was about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors, although it was charged that he was on his way to Europe with several million dollars.

The opinion says that the affidavit of Brig. Gen. Graves, who commanded American troops in Siberia, to the effect that Semenoff was a bandit and that an armored train under his orders had fired on American troops, killing two soldiers, "is not pertinent to the issues. It merely attacks the defendant's reputation and character, which are not an issue here."

General Semenoff expects to continue his trip to Paris as soon as he obtains his promised opportunity to testify before the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, which has been investigating charges that his troops committed atrocities in Siberia.

The General's counsel, Clark, Prentice & Roulstone of 61 Broadway, wrote to Senator Borah yesterday insisting on an immediate hearing of the General and his witnesses.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The Senate Committee on Education and Labor will not issue a subpoena for General Semenoff to appear before the committee. If the Russian General desires to tell his story and comes to Washington voluntarily for that purpose, the committee will grant him a hearing, otherwise he will remain unmolested so far as the committee is concerned.

RUTH AND MEUSEL SURE TO PLAY TODAY

Landis's O K Already Given Unofficially, Is Statement in Baseball Circles.

PLEA NOW IN HIS HANDS

It was a long time coming, but the baseball season will finally start this afternoon—the real season, that is, with Babe Ruth, Bob Meusel and the Ruthian home runs as the decorative trimmings. Judge Landis and the weather man permitting, Babe and Bob, no longer the pensive orphans of baseball, will return to the Yankee line-up at the Polo Grounds in the first game of the series against the Browns, and the Yankee Colonels last night were trying to figure out how to take care of all the fans who will want to see the Bambino get in action at 3 o'clock, at which hour the contest will start.

The Babe will be in the game, let there be no doubt about that. Judge Landis, in Chicago, is naturally coy and retiring about the matter. The Colonels, Ruppert and Huston, would say nothing yesterday. But through the underground channels of baseball spread the word that the procedure is all cut and dried, and on the best of authority it can be said that Ruth and Meusel will apply for pardon and the Judge will say, "Bless you, my children."

"Tell the fans that the Babe will be there," was the way one high baseball official in this city put it yesterday afternoon, and he followed this confidence with the request that his name be kept anonymous. Baseball tradition requires that nothing be said until the two players apply formally. Judge Landis would give no inkling last night as to his probable decision, but those close to the situation say that the New York club has received assurances that Ruth and Meusel's applications will be acted upon favorably as soon as they are received.

Wire for Reinstatement.

The Yankee owners lost no time in getting the players' plea before the Baseball Commissioner. At one minute after last midnight Ruth and Meusel were eligible to seek reinstatement, and at precisely the same moment the message was sent by telegraph, Colonel T. L. Huston himself attending to the matter.

Weather predictions for today are favorable. The weather man said last night that the rain was all finished and he predicted sunshine for this afternoon with high winds that may keep the mercury down in the thermometer. It will take steady rain to keep the fans away, and if the weather is what it should be the biggest crowd in the history of New York baseball will probably storm the Polo Grounds.

Ruth's return, while a considerable item in the afternoon's program, is not the only item. There is the little matter of the St. Louis Browns, only two games behind the league-leading Yankees, who will open a four-ply series today. In the offing will also be the figure of Ken Williams, the Browns' left fielder, who threatens to snatch away the sceptre that Ruth has worn for several seasons. Williams, a good hitter in his own right, has eleven home runs to his credit—a tremendous handicap for even a Ruth.

Thirty-eight days after the opening of the season Ruth will start in pursuit of his rival from St. Louis, and it is a fair question if he can overtake him. Few fans expect that Ruth will even come near his 1921 record of fifty-nine home runs. There are several factors against him. The season is a quarter gone. The big slugger has not hit at good pitching since the day before the season opened. He was operated on recently and had his tonsils and adenoids removed. He has lost twenty pounds and is probably not in the proverbial pink of condition.

Last Reserved Seat Sold.

The last reserved and box seat for today's game was sold yesterday, following the greatest rush, with one exception, that the Yankee office has ever seen. The exception was the sale of tickets for the world's series last October, when thousands stormed the local headquarters. About 3,200 tickets were sold yesterday and Thursday, but there are still about 35,000 left for the fans today.

Officials of the Yankees were anxious yesterday to avoid a repetition of the conditions during the 1921 world's series, when thousands stayed away because of fears that there would be no seats. It was emphasized that the 3,200 reserved seats are less than a twelfth of the total capacity, and that the other eleven-twelfths will be available on the first-come first-served basis.

"Any fan who comes reasonably early," said one of the officials yesterday, "should have no trouble in getting a seat. The best seats, of course, will go to the early birds, but after 12 o'clock, when the ticket windows open, we will be prepared to handle about 35,000 people, not counting those who are willing to take standing room."

The police are preparing for a rush of people to the park. If conditions warrant it, lines will be established in Eighth Avenue, the Speedway and the 155th Street viaduct.

Alterations in the Yankee line-up as a result of the addition of Ruth and Meusel have been decided upon by Manager Miller Huggins. In the shift Chick Fewster and Elmer Miller will give way. Whitey Witt will go from right field to centre, Ruth will be in left field again and Meusel will patrol his old beat in right. Ruth, incidentally, will assume his duties as Yankee Captain for the first time in a championship contest. Sam Jones is due to pitch for the Yanks, and their old jinx, Urban Shocker, is being primed by Lee Fohl of the Browns.

NO ANSWER UNTIL TODAY, SAYS LANDIS

Judge Retires Without Getting Ruth's Message—Will Reply at 9 This Morning.

CHICAGO, May 19 (Associated Press).—K. M. Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, retired tonight without having received a message from Babe Ruth, home run king of the New York Americans, asking reinstatement. While word came from New York that Ruth had sent a telegram from there at midnight addressed to Commissioner Landis and asking reinstatement, Leslie O'Connor, Commissioner Landis's secretary, indicated that it would not be considered before morning.

"The reply will probably be filed about 9 o'clock tomorrow morning," Mr. O'Connor said. When asked regarding the possibility of consideration and reply tonight, Mr. O'Connor said: "Not at this time of night."

A reply sent early tomorrow, if reinstating Ruth, would give him plenty of time to participate in tomorrow's contest between New York and St. Louis, it was asserted.

RUTH TO GET CUP TODAY.

Babe Will Be Honored by Baltimore Admirers at Polo Grounds.

BALTIMORE, May 19.—When Babe Ruth goes to the plate at the Polo Grounds tomorrow afternoon for his first game after the lifting of his suspension, he will be presented with a large loving cup, the gift of his admirers in his home town of Baltimore. The cup will contain dirt taken from around the home plate of the ball grounds at St. Mary's Industrial School, where Babe learned to play ball. The dirt was gathered by Brother Matthias, the man who "discovered" Babe.

WASHINGTON BEATS DETROIT IN NINTH

Rigney's Error on Brower's Grounder Lets In Run That Gives Senators 3-2 Victory.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Washington won from Detroit, 3 to 2, in the ninth inning today, when Rigney failed to handle Brower's hot grounder and let in the run breaking the tie which had held for five innings. Bassler's double and a wild heave in the fourth gave the Tigers their tallies.

LANDIS UPHOLDS PROTEST.

CHICAGO, May 19.—The protest of the Nashville Southern Association Club against the transfer, subject to recall, of Clarence Jonnard, Pittsburgh catcher, to Memphis, was upheld by Commissioner K. M. Landis today.

The Commissioner ruled that such a transfer would be in violation of Section 12, Article II. of the major and minor league rules, which provides that a player must be offered outright, with no strings attached.

YANKEES SMOTHER INDIANS BY 12-4

LOSERS USE 3 PITCHERS

Ineffectiveness of Speaker's Twirlers Makes It Easy for Mays—Baker Hits Homer.

It was the quiet before the storm at the Polo Grounds yesterday. Very few of the customers were there—most of them were saving their pennies for the doings today—and the game was as drab as the weather. The Yankees won the battle in the first inning, and the fans spent the rest of the afternoon figuring ways and means for prying entrance to the park about 2 P. M. today to see Ruth and Meusel in action.

It was too much, even for Tris Speaker, this disastrous finale to a disastrous series. The Indians lost by the generous count of 12 to 4, and they looked very bad. Along in the third inning Tris threw up the sponge and withdrew, taking half the Cleveland team with him. Reserves were rushed in to half a dozen positions, and Speaker sat on the bench and surveyed the wreckage.

The first inning was enough for the gray-haired leader of the erstwhile world's champions. With Allan Sothoron on the mound the Ruthless Yankees started out at full speed. They filled the bases with nobody out, and when Sothoron, tottering in the gale, passed three straight balls to Elmer Miller, Speaker threw up his hands, stopped the game and sent Sergeant Jim Bagby to the rescue. The Sarge was no visible improvement, but Tris kept him in, figuring that a little exercise would not do any harm to the old-timer's good right arm.

Yanks on Batting Spree.

In the sixth Duster Mails came in, but the game was gone by that time. The Yankee wrecking crew had a busy afternoon of it. They were on their last spree before Ruth comes back this afternoon. Elmer Miller celebrated his last afternoon for some time as a regular by jamming out two singles. Chick Fewster, whose address beginning today will be the bench, got himself two nice base hits. J. Franklin Baker, the home-run king of old, laced a four-base blow into the upper tier of the right field grandstand in the second. All the home boys were busy.

One of the net results was that another half game was added to the lead over the St. Louis Browns, who will be here this afternoon for a big series. The Yanks are two full games ahead now, and they handed this prize package over to Miller Huggins last night with a gesture of pride. Just where Hug expected his team to be on the night of May 19 is a question, but it is safe to declare that the little manager didn't expect as robust a lead as the Yanks now enjoy.

All in all, it was an easy afternoon for Carl Mays, who did the pitching for Huggins. After the chunky right-hander had blanked the Tribe in the first inning the Yanks stepped out and embraced a six-run lead. In the second frame they got three more, putting Carl in a position where he could afford to take it easy. Carl was never hard-pressed, and he bestowed the largess of ten hits on the poor Indians. Five of these were clustered in the second and third innings for the Tribe's four runs.

Six Hugmen Cross Plate.

The Yanks ran themselves ragged in the first inning, when the first six batters all carried in runs. It started when Witt laid down a bunt—feeling out Sothoron's weakness—and beat the toss to first base. Fewster walked and Baker dribbled another bunt at Sothoron, rattling Allan so much that he threw away past McInnis, Witt scoring, Fewster going to third and old Baker staggering to second. Sothoron threw three straight balls to Miller, and Sergeant Bagby was inducted to the mound. He passed Elmer, filling the bases.

There was nobody out and nobody was seen volunteering to get out. Pipp, at least, had no such intentions. He smashed a wicked single off McInnis's glove, scoring Fewster and Baker and conveying Miller to third. Bagby at once loaded the bases again by passing Ward. When Scott strolled, a run was forced in. Another came in when Schang filed to Speaker. A sixth tally developed from Mays's hot single to centre.

Baker's error, walks to Wood and O'Neill and a single by Bagby gave the Indians a pair in the second, and they got two more in the third when Speaker tripled to right centre, McInnis singled to third and Gardner and Wood shot one-baggers to right.

Sandwiched in between these events was another Yankee outburst, which J. Franklin Baker started with a homer into the grand stand. Miller's single, Pipp's walk, a sacrifice and Schang's hit to right were melded into two more.

The proceedings were very languid by this time and there was more of the same in the fifth, when the Yanks scored three and made it an even dozen. Witt dropped a Texas leaguer in right, Fewster hit to the same sector, Baker walked, loading the sacks. Miller emptied two of them with a single to left. After Pipp had beat out a bunt, Baker counted while a double play was in progress.

No More Scoring.

That was all the scoring for the afternoon. Wambaganss walked and Wood singled in the fifth, but no runs followed. Wamby tripled with two out in the seventh and died at third. In the eighth and ninth the Indians perished in order. Mails allowed only two hits in three frames. One was a single by Fewster in the seventh, the other a triple by Ward in the eighth. After legging it to third, Aaron tarried while the next two batters went out.

C. C. N. Y. NOSES OUT ST. FRANCIS IN NINTH

City College nosed out St. Francis College in the ninth inning of an exciting pitchers' duel yesterday afternoon at Lewisohn Stadium. The score was 3 to 2.

Rosonowitz, the Lavender's moundsman, held the Brooklyn lads runless until the seventh. Then the visitors tallied their initial count. To this they added another in the ninth, which tied the score at 2 to 2.

After Gillespie had driven Wallace across the plate with the tieing run in the ninth, Rosonowitz was taken out. With two men on bases and two out, Axtell, who was sent in to relieve Rosonowitz, retired the next batsman on the first ball pitched.

In a heavy downpour of rain in the Lavender's half of the ninth the City College team scored the winning tally. With one out, Murray clouted the ball to deep centre for two bases. Axtell filed to short left, but Salz, after two had been retired, banged out a Texas leaguer over second and Murray romped home with the winning run.

Curves and Bingles.

Graney went to centre field when Speaker banished himself in the third. Guisto, Wambaganss and Luke Sewell, a younger brother of Joey, were also introduced to an eager audience. McInnis, Gardner and O'Neill were the parties who took the remainder of the afternoon off.

Eleven Yankees went to bat in the palpitating first. They scored six runs on three hits.

One thing is certain—the Browns can't reach first place unless they win three games out of the four in the series which begins today. By taking this number the St. Louisans would have a few points margin on the Yankees. An even break will leave the Hugmen still in the van.

Urban Shocker is all primed for a shot at his old team mates, according to reports from Boston, where the Browns have been tarrying lately. Samuel "Bumpus" Jones will oppose him.

The Yanks bunted Sothoron to death. It was not so very long ago that Speaker declared in the public prints that the right-hander was all over his trouble in handling the little rollers.

Speaker's triple was a beauty. It shot on a dead line between Miller and Witt and fell to earth somewhere in the neighborhood of the right centre field fence, where Elmer made a quick recovery.

The same Speaker fanned easily in the first frame, a thing that Tris is not guilty of very often. With the count three and two, Mays sent up a slow sailer and Spoke took a fast lunge. He missed by a foot.

Mails looked ready to work a full nine innings, but Sothoron and Bagby are still in hopeless condition. As long as their pitchers are bad, the Indians will be no heavy obstacle for the Yanks to hurdle over. Bad weather at the Dallas training camp is responsible for the twirlers' shortcomings, according to Tris.

Miller Huggins may shoot Joe Bush at the Browns during the coming series. Bullet Joe's hand is healed, and Hug is only waiting for an opening. Jones, Hoyt, Bush and Mays may be the order against Lee Fohl's clansmen.

The gates will open at noon or thereabout today, but there will be plenty of seats—something like 35,000—for the fans who arrive at a reasonably early hour. The crush will come shortly before game time, when a thousand fans will want to jam in where only one fan jammed before.

They are the Ruthless Yanks no longer.

HARD HITTING FAILS TO WIN FOR ROBINS

Brooklyn Outbats St. Louis but Loses, 10 to 6—Hornsby Makes Seventh Homer.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, May 19.—Just as it seemed as though the Brooklyn Robins had mended their ways and had decided to "go straight" they fell by the wayside again. In a game featured by heavy hitting they were defeated here this afternoon by the St. Louis Cardinals, the score being 10 to 6. Twenty-seven hits were made, twelve by the winners and fifteen by the losers. These hits totaled thirty-eight bases.

In some respects the game resembled a track meet more than baseball. It was a series of sprinting events, with Branch Rickey's athletes doing most of the sprinting.

Bill Doak was on the mound for the local brigade, and managed to gain his sixth victory of the season. This was not because of any particularly brilliant pitching on his part, however. The Robins nicked him hard and often, but not to the same purpose that the Cards nicked Clarence Mitchell, Al Mamaux and Arthur Decatur, the three twirlers Uncle Wilbert Robinson hurled into the game. As a result of the defeat, Brooklyn tonight is resting in seventh place in the National League standing.

Brooklyn employed thirteen players, but nine could have lost just as gracefully. Of the fifteen hits made by the Dodgers, seven were propelled by the bats of Ivy Olson and Jimmy Johnston. The former made four, of which two were doubles. Johnston made three, all singles.

Hornsby's Seventh Homer.

In the fourth inning, Rogers Hornsby made his seventh home run of the season. He drove the ball over the screen in front of the centre-field bleachers for one of the longest hits ever made here.

For a game in which there was so much free hitting, it was a truly remarkable performance, in that Ray Schmandt and Bert Griffith, who played first base for the Dodgers, had only three putouts between them.

The Dodgers were first to score. In the first inning they grabbed a brace of runs. Olson led off with a single, but died stealing. Johnston bounced a hit off Doak's shins. Tom Griffith hit over Mann's head for two bases, Johnston stopping at third. Wheat doubled to centre and Johnston and Tom Griffith rushed home.

Things were peaceful until the last half of the third, when Mitchell blew up and the Cards collected seven runs. Doak had been retired before Mann beat out a roller over second. Toporcer singled to right and Mann advanced to the midway. Stock doubled to left, Mann scoring and Toporcer taking third. Hornsby was purposely passed and the bases were loaded. Fournier bounced to Mitchell, who tossed to Miller for a force-out at the plate, but the catcher dropped the ball, Toporcer scoring. McHenry singled through Janvrin, Stock and Hornsby counting and Fournier reaching second. Schultz singled to left, Fournier scoring and McHenry pulling up at second.

Mitchell Departs.

That was enough for Mitchell and his place on the mound was taken by Mamaux. Clemons was safe on Janvrin's fumble, filling the bases once more. Doak singled to left, McHenry and Schultz registering and Clemons taking second. Smith batted for Mann and filed to Tom Griffith. Toporcer, up for the second time, ended the agony by flying to Wheat.

In the fourth the Cards scored another on Hornsby's prodigious home run drive to the bleachers.

In the fifth round the Dodgers got one run back. There was one out when DeBerry was sent in to bat for Mamaux. He singled to left. Olson hit over Heathcote's head for two bases and DeBerry pulled up at third. While Toporcer was throwing out Johnston, DeBerry scored and Olson skipped to third. Tom Griffith, however, was an easy out, Hornsby to Fournier.

When the Cardinals went to bat for their half Decatur was on the firing line for Brooklyn and Bert Griffith was covering first base.

Fournier's Triple Scores Two.

Two more runs were hammered in by the locals in the sixth canto. Toporcer walked. Stock singled to centre and Toporcer took second. Hornsby fouled to Miller, but Fournier tripled and Toporcer and Stock checked in.

In the eighth Brooklyn got three runs. Wheat singled for a starter. Myers also singled, putting Wheat on second. Bert Griffith hit into a double play, Doak to Toporcer to Fournier, Wheat taking third. Janvrin walked. Miller singled to centre, scoring Wheat and putting Janvrin on second. Decatur singled to right and Olson singled to centre, scoring Janvrin and Miller with the last runs of the game.

SKEETERS TRIUMPH EASILY OVER ACES

Consistent batting coupled with effective pitching yesterday enabled Jersey City to defeat Reading, 5 to 2. Returning to Jersey City after a two weeks' tour, the Skeeters showed to excellent advantage in their first line-up at home, in spite of the absence of the regular infielders, McCarren and Holt, who are laid up with injuries.

The Skeeters assaulted Weinert's delivery for ten safe drives, including two doubles and a triple. Jacobs made a single, a two-bagger and a triple.

Jacobs hit safely in the first inning, went to second on Donelson's sacrifice and scored the Skeeters' first run on Zitman's two-bagger.

In the fourth the home team scored two more runs. Braun singled, but was forced by Killinger. Hanson drove Killinger home with a double and on Jacob's triple Hanson crossed the plate with the run that eventually proved to be the winning one.

RUTGERS IS EASY VICTOR.

TROY, N. Y., May 19.—Heavy hitting by Rutgers, coupled with costly errors by Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute gave the New Jersey collegians a victory over the Troy engineers here this afternoon by a score of 15 to 2. Pitcher Browne, for the home team, was supplanted by Smith, a freshman, in the sixth after Rutgers had scored six runs on eight hits and two errors.

YALE DEFEATS HARVARD.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 19.—Yale beat Harvard at lacrosse today, 4 to 3, outplaying the Crimson until late in the second half, when the home players did all their scoring quickly because of the fast work of Wobber, Young and Rouillard. Yale got a one-point lead on Frederick's goal in the first half, and McMartin scored once at the beginning of the second. What proved to be the winning goal was caged by Caldwell, who later was hit on the head and obliged to retire. Yale was decidedly the better team in a very rugged match.

DEMPSEY, SPORTING MONOCLE, BACK HOME

READY TO FIGHT ANY ONE

Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, returned home yesterday on the Aquitania, declaring his readiness to fight any man who questioned his right to the title, or who had the support of boxing followers as entitled to a championship match. The titleholder, sporting a monocle, and feeling in wonderful condition despite his ocean voyage, expressed his willingness to box Harry Wills, giant New Orleans negro, or any other heavyweight, provided suitable inducements were offered, and his manager, Jack Kearns, gave his consent. All he wants, said Dempsey, is for some promoter to come along, guarantee him what he thinks his services are worth, and he will be found ready to defend his title. The champion unhesitatingly made this clear in response to a question as to whether he would undertake a bout against Wills.

"I'll fight Wills," said Dempsey. "Certainly. Why not? I'll fight anybody. All they have to do is show me a promoter who will guarantee my end, pick out a spot where the fight can be held and find the man the public thinks has the best chance against me. It doesn't matter whether it is Wills, Brennan, Willard or any other heavyweight you can mention. I'll be ready just as soon as Kearns says the word. I'm not particular about opponents. The best for the public will be the best one for me, too. All I want now is some money, some exercise and a fight.

"I haven't heard anything directly about a bout against Wills in Montreal. That is, nobody has communicated personally with me or with Kearns on the proposition. All I know is what has been in the papers. But I haven't any objections to fighting Wills in Montreal or any place else. They say they have a nice country up that way, and I like the looks of Canadian money.

"We've signed for London promoters for a bout with Carpentier, to be held some time between now and June, 1923," continued Dempsey. "People over there are crazy about another fight between Carpentier and myself, and indications are that it will prove successful. Whether I will fight here before I return to England I don't know. That will depend entirely upon what develops. I am booked for about ten weeks in vaudeville, resuming work which was interrupted by my trip abroad. I won't lose any time on that. In a few days I plan to leave for Los Angeles to visit my mother. Then I expect to return to the stage."

"How much training would you need for Wills?" Dempsey was asked.

Carries Monocle Expertly.

Dempsey was accompanied by his manager, Jack Kearns; his trainer and secretary, Teddy Hayes, and Joe Benjamin, California lightweight. The party established itself at the Hotel Ansonia. Dempsey was first off the boat, stepping ashore with the monocle held expertly in his eye. Asked if he had affected the monocle permanently, Dempsey replied: "You're not in the swim abroad unless you have one of them, y'know. But I'm in America now."

The monocle, Dempsey said, was a gift from an Irish Lord, one of several gifts he received abroad.

The champion, amid a great reception from the crowd, which waited patiently while the ship was being nudged into her berth by a flotilla of tugboats, dashed off to the hotel without delay. Kearns stood behind to look after the baggage, and while the customs authorities were performing their duties spoke freely of the champion's plans.

"I don't know anything about the Montreal offer right now," said Kearns. "I haven't heard from anybody on the proposition and don't know when I will. I do know, however, that Dempsey cannot fight on July 1, no matter who is selected as his opponent nor where the bout is planned. He's just getting over a sea voyage and will have to get his land legs again. Then it will require at least two and possibly three months of training before he enters the ring.

"I don't think he will engage in a bout here until September, at the very earliest. By that time he will be ready for Wills, Willard, Brennan, or anybody else, just as long as a promoter is found who will give him what he is worth. We're ready now to talk fight, but there's little chance of a heavyweight championship battle until September.

"Dempsey's next important fight right now appears to be scheduled for abroad. Articles have been signed by us for another battle with Carpentier either in London or Paris. The people over there are wild to see the champion in action against Carpentier, and we plan to go over there again before another year."

Condition Appears Superb.

Dempsey appeared in superb condition. He said he weighed about 200 pounds. The champion said he had received a cable from South America offering a $425,000 purse for a bout between himself and Luis Firpo, Argentine heavyweight champion. To the cable, Dempsey said, he made no response. Two English bulldogs were part of the Dempsey entourage. The champion was presented with the canine pets before leaving for home. Dempsey plans to take the dogs to his home in Los Angeles, where he has an elaborate and varied kennel.

Dempsey reviewed his trip abroad and discussed some of his experiences during his tour. The champion expressed himself as highly pleased with the receptions accorded him every place he went. In discussing the Carpentier-Lewis fight, Dempsey said that it was a match between a good little man and a good big man, in which the good big man won.

Vincent (Pepper) Martin, Brooklyn featherweight, and Jack Sharkey, west side Italian, will clash this afternoon in the feature twelve-round bout at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn. The contest will be the first important match for Sharkey as a featherweight. Martin recently jumped to the front of the country's featherweight ranks through his one-round knockout victory over Babe Herman. The Brooklyn boxer plans, in the event of a victory over Sharkey, to seek a match against Johnny Kilbane, holder of the world's featherweight title. A ten-round bout, an eight-round contest, another of six rounds and a four-round preliminary will precede this bout.

Benny Valger, "French Flash," will oppose Johnny Reisler, Harlem lightweight, in the main twelve-round bout tonight at the Queensboro A. C., Long Island City.

At the Commonwealth S. C. tonight Manny Wexler and Terry Miller and Barney Adair and Willie Fentour will clash in twelve-round bouts.

Two twelve-round bouts at the Ninth Regiment Armory tonight will bring together Pete Hayes and Charley Murray and Billy Brown and Danny Davis.

Joe O'Sullivan and K. O. Joe Daly will be rivals in the main twelve-round bout tonight at the Ridgewood Grove S. C., Brooklyn.

The main bout of twelve rounds tonight at the Forty-seventh Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, will bring together Joe Glick and Young Michaels.

Decision on Dempsey-Wills Bout Likely to Be Made Today

Whether Jack Dempsey will be signed to defend his world's heavyweight title against Harry Wills in a bout scheduled for Montreal probably will be known today, following a conference between Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, and Frank Flournoy and Tex Rickard of Madison Square Garden. Dempsey and Kearns attended the bouts at the Garden last night. They entered during the sixth bout. The champion received a great ovation as he took his seat at the ringside. Flournoy and Kearns conferred for a short time, after which Kearns announced he planned to confer with Rickard and Flournoy today.

LEONARD OUTPOINTS BARTFIELD EASILY

Professional boxers pummelled and cuffed each other for the benefit of their own organization, the National Sports Alliance, last night in a series of ten four-round bouts at Madison Square Garden. Though only a disappointingly small crowd witnessed them, the bouts lacked nothing in competitive interest.

Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, was a spectator and was introduced from the ring. Senator James Walker, father of the law under which boxing was restored here, addressed the crowd of about 3,000 from the ring and made an appeal for support for the N. S. A.

Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, and Soldier Bartfield, veteran Brooklyn welterweight, met in the feature bout. Leonard gave his rival an advantage of fourteen pounds in weight and a thorough boxing lesson. Against the brilliant champion the comparatively sluggish Bartfield was like a novice. Leonard won the decision after four interesting rounds. It was announced that Leonard weighed 137 pounds and Bartfield 151.

Bartfield Swings Wildly.

Bartfield cracked over a high right to the face in the second round, but took several stinging rights and lefts in return. Bartfield rallied in the third round and forced the champion to the ropes several times under a wild assault. Bartfield jabbed with his left to the face and hooked the left to the stomach repeatedly. The face attack made Leonard's mouth bleed.

Early in th efourth round the pair collided head on and Leonard emerged from a clinch with the bridge of his nose skinned and blood trickling down his face. The gore spurred the champion into furious action, and he had Bartfiel dreeling and on the verge of a knockout in the closing thirty seconds from a fusillade of crushing rights and lefts to the jaw.

Pete Hartley, Leo P. Flynn's "Durable Dane," jabbed his way to a one-sided victory over Jimmy Santon, the Denver shock absorber, in the eighth bout, and Dave Rosenberg slugged his way to a victory over Tommy Robson, Malden, Mass., middleweight, in the ninth bout, which served as a semi-final.

The entertainment opened with a four-round bout between Sammy Good, California welterweight, and Billy Wells of England. Wells received the decision. In the two succeeding bouts honors were evenly divided. Holly Seamon and Jimmy Cooney, Harlem lightweights, battled to a draw in the second bout of four rounds. In the third, Sammy Nable of the ast side and Billy Mascot, Calfironia bantamweight, also fought to a draw. Neither bout was exciting.

Featherweights in Stirring Bout.

One of the best battles of the night was witnessed in the fourth encounter, which provided a clash between Tommy Noble, English featherweight, and Tony Zaccone of the west side. This contest started inauspiciously, but when the boxers were admonished to put zest into their efforts the action improved. Through the closing three rounds the Garden rang with the cheers of the comparatively small crowd. Zaccone fought hard, but Noble landed oftener and more cleanly than his rival and earned the decision at the final bell.

Piet Hobin, Belgian welterweight champion, outpointed Tony Lyons, a local product, in the fifth bout. This was a briusing affair, in which head-to-head fighting prevailed.

Joe Leopold, Denver featherweight, received the decision over Kid Sullivan of Brooklyn in the sixth contest. The verdict was highly complimentary to Leopold. In the opinion of the majority of the spectators, it was an injustice to Sullivan. The announcement let loose a storm of disapproval.

Abe Goldstein, Yorkville flyweight, gained the decision over Frankie Gennaro, former international amateur champion, in the seventh bout of four rounds.

HEISMAN REMAINS AT PENN.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 19.—The University of California track squad, consisting of fifteen men, arrived here early this afternoon to spend a week as the guests of the Cornell track team while en route to Cambridge for the annual intercollegiate track meet on May 26 and 27.

No meet is scheduled to be held between the two teams, but there may be some informal competition while the Westerners continue their training for the intercollegiates.

Pal Moore and Asher Matched.

DENVER, May 19.—Pal Moore, the Memphis bantam, has been matched to meet Babe Asher, former bantamweight champion of the A. E. F., in a twelve-round bout here May 29.

HAMMETT ADVANCES IN HARLEM TOURNEY

Tennis Cup Holder Defeats Fisher in Critical Match—Bowman Also Wins.

Some of the best tennis of the week was played yesterday afternoon in the Harlem Tennis Club's singles tournament, and this despite the fact that the courts were still heavy from the rain. Three of the four matches in the fifth round were played, the fourth, between Dr. George King and Henry H. Bassford, being held over to this afternoon. The semi-finals will be held tomorrow afternoon and the final for the Harlem Cup a week from tomorrow. But for two days of rain, it would have been possible to reach the final tomorrow.

Alfred D. Hammett, present holder of the cup, won one of the most critical matches of the tournament when he eliminated Kenneth D. Fisher, former Staten Island champion, in the round before the semi-finals. Hammett and Fisher were the finalists in this tournament a year ago, when they figured in a five-set match. Hammett repeated his victory yesterday, and this time he won in straight sets. The scores were 11—9, 6—2.

The first set was a ding-dong tussle with both men playing in top form. With Fisher's swift drives and Hammett's chop strokes both working well, the result was a toss-up until the very last of the twenty games. It was not a battle of service, as each broke through the other on several occasions. The test was one of steadiness, and the University Heights Club player won it by a hairline margin.

Fisher would have had a far better chance had he been the possessor of an effective volleying game. But he advanced to the net rarely, and, when he did, Hammett lobbed to the baseline for the points. With Fisher staying back, Hammett's chops, which gained added effectiveness in the heaviness of the court, kept his opponent eternally on the run and wore down his resistance. Hammett's marksmanship was superb and most of his chops landed close to the sidelines. Fisher was unequal to the strenuous task in the matter of covering court that Hammett required of him, and the latter's victory in the second set was decisive.

Fisher Defeats von Bernuth.

Before he started the Hammett match Fisher had gained a hard-earned victory over Anton L. von Bernuth in the fourth round, defeating him in two 7-5 sessions. Hammett had won more easily in the same round from R. D. Golden.

The meeting of Herbert L. Bowman, Quaker Ridge champion, and Elliot H. Binsen, North Side champion, in the fifth round, was won by Bowman by scores of 6—3, 6—3. Bowman was the steadier and more accurate of the two both at the baseline and at the net. Binsen did a great deal of excellent shooting, especially in forecourt, but had hard luck in missing the lines by inches only in many of his shots.

He made heroic efforts to keep Bowman away from the net, but the latter was able to meet most of his attempts at passing shots and was also reliable overhead. Many of Binsen's lobs were short and gave Bowman easy openings. In his driving Bowman persistently refused to make mistakes, while at the same time applying such pace and direction to his strokes as to force Binsen into numerous errors off the ground.

The soft condition of the court seemed to bother the former Fordhamite more than it did Bowman, but while the former's shots, especially his volleys, lacked a bit of their customary sting, his opposition was at all times formidable and the tennis of both men was of an excellent order. One break through service was enough to enable Bowman to win in both sets.

In the second session each won on service until Bowman was leading at 4—3. The latter broke through in the eighth game. The first time the match point was up in the succeeding game Bowman tried a trick underhand cut service, but lost the point when Binsen tossed the ball back just over the net and caught Bowman flat-footed in back court. Bowman took the game finally after deuce had been called twice.

King the Favorite.

Previously in the day Bowman had won his fourth-round match from E. Rodgers of the Harlem Club, who put up a stalwart battle for one set and then faded. The scores were 9—7, 6—1. In the same round Dr. George King found his strokes working admirably against Paul Martin of the University Heights Club and won by 6—1, 6—2. King is playing at the top of his form, and his chances of taking the cup looked especially bright to those who watched his brilliantly aggressive performance against Martin.

Percy L. Kynaston of the West Side Tennis Club gained the semi-final round at the expense of H. C. Tremaine of the Westfield (N. J.) Tennis Club. Tremaine was more than a match for Kynaston in steady driving in the opener, and he also had Kynaston in serious difficulties in the early stages of the second session. Once Kynaston had taken the lead, however, and evened the set-count, he went ahead in business-like fashion and won the rubber almost as he pleased.

Kynaston's control was exceptionally good in the rubber. He kept Tremaine traveling from one side of the court to the other in defending his baseline, and the Jerseyman's attempts to take the net usually resulted in his being passed. Greater experience and consistently good head work played an important part in Kynaston's success.

In tomorrow's semi-finals Bowman will meet Hammett at 3 P. M., and Kynaston will play the winner of today's King-Bassford match at 4 P. M.

Harlem Challenge Cup Singles—Fourth Round—Herbert L. Bowman defeated E. Rodgers, 9—7, 6—1; Alfred D. Hammett defeated R. D. Golden, 6—3, 6—0; Kenneth D. Fisher defeated Anton von Bernuth, 7—5, 7—5; Dr. George King defeated Paul Martin, 6—1, 6—2.

Fifth Round—Bowman defeated Elliot H. Binsen, 6—3, 6—3; Hammett defeated Fisher, 11—9, 6—2; Percy L. Kynaston defeated H. C. Tremaine, 8—10, 6—3, 6—1.

TENNIS STARS RETURNING.

Tilden and Richards Will Arrive Today From Pacific Coast.

William T. Tilden 2d, national and international tennis champion, and Vincent Richards, national doubles champion with Tilden, will arrive in this city today after their trip to California, where they won the East-West series despite the fact that the champion was defeated in singles by William M. Johnston, to whom he lost also in the Pacific Coast championship tournament. Tilden will play tomorrow in both singles and doubles in exhibition matches for the benefit of the American Committee for Devastated France to be held at the Oak Tennis Club, Larchmont Manor. In the doubles he will pair with Phil Bettens, one of the best of the Pacific Coast junior players, who has accompanied Tilden East.

Harold A. Throckmorton will play in singles against Francis T. Hunter, indoor champion, and another of the exhibitions will bring together Miss Martha Bayard and Miss Florence Ballin. The matches will start at 3 o'clock. They were to have been held last Fall in the series then in progress for the French benefit, but were postponed because of bad weather.

WILL OPPOSE BOXING BILL.

Washington Commissioners Against Holding Bouts in Capital.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The Commissioners of the District of Columbia, the executive governing body of Washington, today voted to oppose the bill recently introduced by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts to legalize boxing and wrestling matches in the capital.

The Commissioners acted after receiving a report on the bill from Major Daniel Sullivan, superintendent of police, in which he declared the art of self defense was commendable and should be encouraged, but added: "I do not believe that the holding of the big professional title contests should be encouraged in the national capital."

COCHET SURPRISES BY BEATING ALONSO

BRUSSELS, May 19 (Associated Press).—Young Cochet of France, world's covered court tennis champion, furnished a surprise in the sixth day's playing in the international hard court tournament today by defeating Manuel Alonso, the Spanish star, 6—3, 6—3, 4—6, 6—4.

The Frenchman won his match by superior volleying and clever cross-court and backhand strokes. Alonso, who was off form, having strained his side in Tuesday's match, made many double faults and netted with great regularity, but Cochet's game was so excellent that many spectators believed Alonso might have been defeated even if he had been playing in top form.

Cochet's playing in the tournament has been a revelation. He qualified for the semi-finals in the singles, for the men's doubles with Borotra and for the finals of the mixed doubles with Mlle. Lenglen. He is not yet 20 years of age and will begin military service in two months. After his match with Cochet, Alonso said:

"That youngster's game today would have beaten me at my very best."

Borotra of France, in the men's singles, defeated Van den Bemden of Belgium, 7—5, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3, and thereby won the right to meet Count de Gomar of Spain in the semi-finals. Cochet, by virtue of winning today's match, will play in the semi-finals against Mishu of Rumania.

While Alonso was not in his best form in the singles, he and Count de Gomar defeated Erik Tegner and Olsen of Denmark, 6—4, 6—3, 6—1, thereby reaching the semi-finals in the men's doubles.

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California reached the semi-finals in the women's doubles by winning from Mrs. Peacock and Mrs. Satterthwaite, 6—1, 6—3. The French champion and Miss Ryan appeared invincible. Their victory over the British combination was accomplished much more easily than the score would indicate. Mrs. Beamish and Miss McKane of England reached the finals and will play Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Ryan.

Cochet and Mlle. Lenglen defeated H. Roper Barrett and Miss McKane, 6—3, 6—1, and will meet J. B. Gilbert and Mrs. Beamish in the finals of the mixed doubles.

The weather for today's playing was very unfavorable, as a strong wind was blowing, and most of the playing was done in a drizzling rain.

NORTH SIDE TENNIS PLAY STARTS TODAY

Play will start at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon on the courts of the University Heights Tennis Club in the seventh annual tournament for the North Side championship in singles and the twelfth annual singles tournament conducted by the club. It will also be the second tournament for the Tribune Bowl, which has to be won three times to become a player's property. It was won last season by Elliot H. Binsen, who will play through in defense of it. The entry list exceeds 100 players, and is headed by Fred C. Anderson of the Terrace Kings County Club, Brooklyn, first of the players whose places in the draw are seeded.

The other players having selected positions are Herbert L. Bowman, Dr. George King, runner-up to Binsen last year; Kenneth D. Fisher, Ingo F. Hartmann, Henry H. Bassford, Charles Chambers, Percy L. Kynaston and Anton L. von Bernuth. The tournament will be refereed by Jonas W. Mersereau.

TENNIS STARS SAIL TODAY.

Mrs. Mallory and Miss Sigourney Off for Wimbledon Tourney.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, women's tennis champion of the United States, will sail today on the Cedric, for England, where she will play in the British women's championships at Wimbledon, beginning on June 26. Accompanying her will be Miss Edith Sigourney, of the Longwood Club, Boston, who was Mrs. Mallory's partner in her trip abroad a year ago.

On the eve of her departure, Mrs. Mallory gave out the following statement:

"I am starting a trip to England for the third time in the hope of winning the championship at Wimbledon. That has been one of the ambitions of my tennis career, and, naturally, I hope to see it realized."

Mrs. Mallory will probably compete in several minor English tournaments, for the sake of practice, before starting at Wimbledon. She will probably enter the Queens Club tournament. In doubles, Miss Sigourney will be her partner. They will be abroad about two months.

COLUMBIA EXPECTED TO SWEEP HARLEM

Back on home waters again and facing an opponent none too formidable, Columbia's varsity crew will try to regain this afternoon some of the ground lost in the Childs Cup race last Saturday. The Blue and White will row the varsity and junior varsity eights of M. I. T. on the Harlem this afternoon, and the indications yesterday were that Coach Jim Rice's two eights would win by a comfortable margin.

These two races will be the chief features of the regatta on the Harlem, but there will be two other events for the rowing devotees. The first will be a brush between the 150-pound crews of Columbia and Pennsylvania, the latter combination being the one which rowed as the varsity in the Childs Cup encounter at Princeton last Saturday. The other race will bring together the sophomore and freshman crews of Columbia in an interclass tussle that promises close competition.

Each of the four races will be over the Henley distance, one mile and five-sixteenths, beginning at University Bridge and ending a short ways north of High Bridge. The interclass event will be first on the program, at 2:45 o'clock. Then will come the junior varsity tilt at 3:15, the 150-pound crew race at 3:45 and the varsity contest at 4:15. Charles Sheaf of Harvard will be the referee.

The Pennsylvania and M. I. T. crews were on the water yesterday getting in the final strokes, and at the same time Coach Rice sent the Columbia oarsmen on a short paddle. Before the workout began Rice announced that he would use the same boating as against Princeton and Penn, this despite the fact that on Tuesday of this week he shook the first and second boats up considerably. Not willing to take any chances against M. I. T., the Blue and White coach has decided to stand pat with one exception. Griswold, who rowed at No. 2 on Lake Carnegie, will be displaced by Lovell. There will be a number of changes in the second Columbia varsity.

The course today will be guarded by Police Department boats, and the same regulations will be enforced as at the Yale-Columbia race several weeks ago. No craft of any kind except official boats will be allowed to follow the crew in any but the last race. Boats will be allowed to follow the varsity crews from the starting line for the reason that the officials do not care how much the course is churned up after that event. There will be anchorage space along the shore for boats.

With the Speedway still under repairs, automobiles will not be allowed to follow the crews, which means that the only observation facilities will be those from the hills on either side and from the two bridges near the finish line, which is only a short distance above High Bridge.

M. I. T. Varsity—Bow, Driscoll; No. 2, Molinar; No. 3, McCurdy; No. 4, Sayre; No. 5, Eaton; No. 6, Greatwood; No. 7, McCurdy; stroke, Brill; coxswain, Kean.

M. I. T. Junior Varsity—Bow, Evans; No. 2, Prouty; No. 3, Murdock; No. 4, Weller; No. 5, Scholtz; No. 6, Valentine; No. 7, Nowell; stroke, Dunlavey; coxswain, Follinsbee.

Columbia 150-Pound—Bow, W. Mayer; No. 2, Schiff; No. 3, Wallace; No. 4, Work; No. 5, Dresbach; No. 6, Schott; No. 7, Rousselot; stroke, Chrystie; coxswain, Dealy.

Pennsylvania 150-Pound—Bow, Wagner; No. 2, Beattie; No. 3, Henn; No. 4, Chesney; No. 5, Rohlfing; No. 6, Outcault; No. 7, Teaf; stroke, Barnhart; coxswain, Shumway.

PRINCETON FAVORED TO WIN CREW RACE

Yale Eight Is Conceded Little Chance to Beat Tigers and Cornell Today.

Special to The New York Times.

DERBY, Conn., May 19.—Eleven crews tonight took their final paddle on the Housatonic and four on the Quinnipiac River for the largest regatta which has ever been planned by the Yale navy. Four big Eastern universities—Princeton, Harvard, Yale and Cornell—will be represented. A total of six races will be rowed tomorrow afternoon, four on the Housatonic, two on the Quinnipiac.

The schedule for the Housatonic events is as follows, all daylight saving time:

4:15—Yale-Harvard class championship eights (in both cases the classes of 1925); 4:45 P. M., Yale-Princeton-Harvard, 150-pound varsity crews; 5:15 P. M., Yale-Princeton-Cornell freshman crews; 6:00 P. M., Yale-Princeton-Cornell varsity crews. All the crews will row two miles. All are eight-oared crews.

The Quinnipiac River races will be:

Noon—Yale-Princeton graduate crews; distance one mile; 2:00 P. M., Yale-New York Athletic Club juniors; distance one mile.

Captain Gibson and Coach Jim Corderry of Yale did not determine the make-up of the first Eli eight until tonight, when it was decided that James Stillman Rockefeller, son of William Rockefeller, Yale '92, would replace Gibson, who has a lame back, and that Pelly would be given seat No. 6, which was vacated by the illness of Walter Goodwin recently. No change was made in any of the Princeton, Harvard or Cornell crews since their arrival here.

The trains from New York City and New Haven are scheduled to arrive at the Shelton Station at 4 o'clock, and the observation train of thirty-one cars, the largest ever collected for a Housatonic regatta, will move up the course at 4:15. It is expected that the final event will be rowed by 6:30, and the crowd distributed again at the Shelton Station for special trains for New Haven and New York City. The train for New York City will leave Derby at 7:35, daylight saving time. Possibly another train may be sent from Derby to New York City at 7:20.

Princeton ruled a slight favorite over Cornell in the predictions for the outcome of the main race, because of its victories over Columbia and Pennsylvania. Yale, beaten by the Quakers and the Morningside Heights oarsmen in all four races rowed, and further weakened by the injuries to Captain Gibson, Tommy Haines and Walter Sheffield, is believed to be due for another defeat by several lengths.

Weather predictions indicated ideal conditions for the races. The crews were drenched by showers this morning, but rowed this afternoon in sunshine. The river is extremely high from the three days of rain, and the current is running strong from the swollen stream. High winds and rough weather prevailed this evening.

The varsity crews will be boated as follows:

Yale—Bow, Whitney; No. 2, Carman; No. 3, Littler; No. 4, Rockefeller; No. 5, Ellis; No. 6, Pelly; No. 7, Haldeman; stroke, J. Freeman; coxswain, Chase.

Princeton—Bow, Iredell; No. 2, Harburg; No. 3, Morgan; No. 4, Lewis; No. 5, Sinclair; No. 6, Woolverton; No. 7, Jackson; stroke, Milne; coxswain, Scull.

Cornell—Bow, Kells; No. 2, F. C. Baldwin; No. 3, Strong; No. 4, Luhers; No. 5, Hearn; No. 6, Baker; No. 7, A. G. Baldwin; stroke, Fillius; coxswain, Nicholson.

Haverford Wins Track Meet.

HAVERFORD, Pa., May 19.—Haverford College easily defeated Franklin and Marshall in a dual track meet today, 81 to 31. Kurtz of Franklin and Marshall was the high scorer with 14 points.

SYRACUSE AND NAVY MATCH OARS TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 19.—So powerful does the Syracuse varsity appear, and so capable of driving its shell through the water at a fast clip, that the feeling is general that Ten Eyck has one of the best crews of the year and one which will give a great battle tomorrow to the midshipmen in the regatta with the Navy.

All the crews worked out today, the visitors being on the water morning and afternoon. Varsity, second and freshmen crews will meet in their respective classes, all the distances being two miles.

The boatings:

Syracuse—Bow, Page; No. 2, Quigg; No. 3, German; No. 4, Howard; No. 5, Brower; No. 6, Hoople; No. 7, Hordil; stroke, Worden; coxswain, Marvin.

Second crew: Navy—Bow, Dahlfren; No. 2, Wanselow; No. 3, Kirkpatrick; No. 4, Strobecker; No. 5, Washburn; No. 6, Moss; No. 7, Walsh; stroke, Kendall; coxswain, Tracy.

Syracuse—Bow, Gilvray; No. 2, Rogers; No. 3, Ballard; No. 4, MacInnes; No. 5, Phifer; No. 6, Brown; No. 7, Donohue; stroke, Engren; coxswain, Mang.

MISS CECIL LEITCH LOSES GOLF CROWN

Three-Time British Women's Champion Defeated by Miss Joyce Wethered, 9 and 7.

WINNER WILL PLAY HERE

Morning Round Very Close, but Titleholder's Game Goes to Pieces in Afternoon.

SANDWICH, England, May 19 (Associated Press).—Miss Cecil Leitch suffered the most overwhelming defeat ever administered to a finalist since British championship golf matches for women were inaugurated, when she lost her title as British woman's open golf champion to Miss Joyce Wethered today, 9 up and 7 to play.

It was in the afternoon that Miss Leitch went off her game, for the morning round was nip and tuck from the start, and at the finish of the first eighteen holes Miss Leitch was 1 down. The cards of both women for this round showed the same figures—41 out and 43 in.

Thus the gallery was at fever pitch when the afternoon play began over the Prince's Club course here. Miss Leitch complained frequently of the spectators moving and talking at critical periods in the game.

After halving the first hole of the afternoon play, Miss Leitch sliced a brassey shot among the sand hills and lost the second hole, 5 to 4. Both were bunkered on the short third, but got out well. Miss Wethered holed a six-yard putt and became 3 up. At the fourth Miss Leitch was repeatedly bunkered and then seemed to go off her game entirely. Miss Wethered then was 4 up. By winning the fifth she became 5 up, but Miss Leitch recovered a hole at the sixth. On the seventh and eighth Miss Leitch went into the bunkers and the challenger became 6 up, with ten to play.

Position Seemed Hopeless.

Miss Leitch's position now seemed hopeless. On the ninth she missed a brassey shot and thus at the turn was 7 down.

The experts were amazed at the collapse of the champion. She stopped twice while putting on the tenth green until spectators ceased talking; then missed a putt and became 8 down. The match ended on the next green, when Miss Leitch, seeing she had lost, kicked the ball away and congratulated her opponent.

The cards:

Miss Wethered Consistent.

Miss Wethered, who is the holder of what is known as the closed title in amateur play, open only to residents of the British Isles, played consistently in the tournament for the open championship. She was 1 up on the morning round with Miss Leitch today, and by a superlative exhibition this afternoon effectively widened her margin of the morning and prevented Miss Leitch from establishing a record for a fourth consecutive championship victory.

Miss Wethered was defeated by Miss Leitch in the open championship last year and was beaten by Miss Leitch in the final for the French open championship at Fontainebleau. In the Fontainebleau tournament Miss Wethered had previously eliminated Miss Alexa Stirling, the American woman golfing star.

Winner to Come Here.

The overwhelming defeat of Miss Leitch, for three years holder of the blue ribbon title of British women golfers, seems likely to stir the American women players to unwonted activity, for Miss Wethered, the new open champion, is expected to visit America in September in quest of the American women's title. Her brother, Roger Wethered, is an aspirant for the American amateur championship.

Miss Leitch failed to win the American women's title last year, having been eliminated in the tournament at Deal, N. J., by Mrs. F. C. Letts of Chicago. Prior to this she had been regarded as a superwoman of the links, having won the Canadian title from Miss Alexa Stirling and having defeated Miss Stirling in the first round of the British women's open tournament.

The final match aroused more than ordinary interest for the reason that this was the first occasion on which one golfer had succeeded in reaching a fourth successive final round in the open, as Miss Leitch had done, and also the first time that the same two players have figured in the deciding match for two years running.

The semi-final rounds yesterday were played under adverse weather conditions. There was a half gale blowing, accompanied by rain squalls, but both Miss Leitch and Miss Wethered showed remarkable power in overcoming the tricks of the gusty wind. Miss Leitch, particularly, got considerable distance on her drives against the wind, this feature of her play being described by the experts as "great."

MEDALIST WINS MATCH.

Marcus Green Moves Into Semi-Finals of Atlantic City Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 19.—Marcus Greer of Llanerch, medalist yesterday, will meet Tom Wootton, the Atlantic City star, in the upper bracket of the semi-final round tomorrow in the annual Spring tournament of the Country Club of Atlantic City over the links at Northfield.

J. J. Beadle, also of Llanerch, clashes with Fred W. Knight, marathon monarch of White Marsh, in the lower bracket. Knight is also a member of the Entertaining Club. This quartet survived the bristling action in the championship flight today.

First Sixteen, First Round—H. J. Hiemenz, Lancaster, defeated H. J. Gormley, Atlantic City, 4 and 3; M. Greer, Llanerch, defeated F. P. Keating, Pinehurst, 8 and 7; W. J. McFarlane, Atlantic City, defeated D. C. Clegg, Lansdowne, 1 up; T. Wotton, Atlantic City, defeated C. S. Johnson, Shawnee, 7 and 6; H. H. Tenney, Atlantic City, won by default from J. A. Barbour, Atlantic City; F. Knight, Atlantic City, defeated Dr. I. R. Bier, Linwood, 2 and 1; J. S. Davidson, Shawnee, defeated Alec Coles, Philadelphia Country Club, 3 and 2; J. J. Beadle, Llanerch, defeated E. O'Hanlon, White Marsh, 2 up.

Second Round—Greer defeated Helmens, 4 and 3; Wootton defeated McFarlane, 6 and 5; Knight defeated Tenney, 7 and 6; Beadle defeated Davidson, 1 up.

GOLF FINAL IS REACHED.

Miss Bowers and Mrs. Peterson Win in Maryland Tourney.

BALTIMORE, May 19.—Miss Effie Bowers defeated Miss Katherine Gans, 8 and 6, and Mrs. W. Fairfield Peterson won from Mrs. A. P. Brooks, 3 and 2, today in the semi-finals of the Maryland State Women's championship golf tournament. The final match will be played tomorrow.

PARIS, May 19.—Frankie O'Neill, an American jockey, won his three-thousandth race in France today. Since 1910 O'Neill has led the jockeys yearly, although during the war there was no racing. He rode three winners Wednesday and three more Thursday. An American parleying on the mounts won $3,000 on a five-dollar bet. Until the death of William K. Vanderbilt, O'Neill wore the black and white silks of the American millionaire. For the last two years he has been riding for A. Kingsley Macomber, who bought most of the Vanderbilt stable. O'Neill won forty-five races so far this year.

PRINCETON GOLFERS DEFEAT COLUMBIA

GREENWICH, Conn., May 19.—Princeton's star golf team today added another to its already long list of triumphs, defeating the Columbia University representatives by the one-sided total of 7 to 2 points on the links of the Greenwich Country Club. Princeton's victory was achieved despite the absence of its star, Rudy Knepper, who has dominated the Iowa State golf situation for several seasons and who was runner-up to Chick Evans in the last Western amateur tourney.

The Blue and White gained some consolation in the victory scored by Captain Schreibner over Big Bob Wintringer, the Tiger chieftain and the winner of the recent Lakewood tournament. The two had a battle royal over the links and the end of the round found them all even. Schreiber won at the nineteenth hole. The only other successful Blue and White player was Church, who defeated Stramer, No. 4 on the Princeton team, in the singles, 2 and 1.

Carruth, Sparks and Todd, all Tiger veterans, came through successfully against their opponents, Carruth defeating Martin of Columbia, 3 and 2, Sparks beating Cannon by the same score and Todd emerging a winner after a tightly-contested match with Johnson. The final Princeton victory in the singles matches was turned in by Fred Knepper, who defeated McGregor of Columbia, 6 and 5.

The Tigers won clean-cut victories in the doubles matches. As a result of the heavy rains, the scoring was rather high, none of the players succeeding in breaking 80.

Singles—Schreiber, Columbia, defeated Wintringer, Princeton, 1 up (19 holes); Carruth, Princeton, defeated Martin, Columbia, 3 and 2; Sparks, Princeton, defeated Cannon, Colombia, 3 and 2; Church, Columbia, defeated Stramer, Princeton, 2 and 1; F. Knepper, Princeton, defeated McGregor, Columbia, 6 and 5; Todd, Princeton, defeated Johnson, Columbia, 1 up.

Doubles—Wintringer and Carruth, Princeton, defeated Schreiber and Martin, Columbia, 2 and 1; Sparks and Stramer, Princeton, defeated Cannon and Church, Columbia, 2 and 1; F. Knepper and Todd, Princeton, defeated McGregor and Johnson, Columbia, 4 and 3.

VERNON DEFEATS BUXBAUM.

MASS. TECH LEADS IN TRACK GAMES

Qualifies 17 Athletes in New England Title Meet—Boston College Has 12.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 19 (Associated Press).—A close contest for the New England intercollegiate track and field championship tomorrow, between Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Boston College, was forecast tonight as a result of the preliminary events of the thirty-sixth annual title games. The engineers, winners of the past five meetings, came out of the trials today with seventeen athletes advanced to the semi-finals or finals tomorrow. Boston College, Eastern intercollegiate champion, carried over an even dozen.

Those who qualified and the best performance in each event follow:

BIG FIELD ENTERS FOR JERSEY TITLE

Leading Pros Will Compete In Open Golf Tourney Next Week.

Entries for the annual New Jersey open championship to be decided at the Shackamaxon Country Club, Westfield, N. J., next Wednesday and the amateur-professional event which will preced it were announced yesterday by Secretary H. Y. Barrow of the New Jersey Golf Association. Forty pairs of amateurs and pros are entered in the Tuesday competition, while the field in the championship proper numbers eighty-four.

Included among the professionals who will seek th open championship honors left vacant by the transfer of Peter O'Hara to other parts are Bobby Cruikshank, who succeeded O'Hara as professional at the Shackamaxon Club; Cyril Walker, the Englewood star; George Fotheringham, who has returned to the metropolitan area after an absence of a year or so; George Kerrigan, the White Beeches home-bred professional, who made such a brilliant record in the South during the Winter months, and Clarence Hackney, the Atlantic City pro, who was a member of the team that invaded England and Scotland a year ago. Another star who is entered is Newton C. Mair, the New Jersey amateur champion, who is now enrolled in the pro ranks.

The leading amateurs included in the list are Eddie Wild of Baltusrol, who has returned to championship competition after a long lay-off due to an injury to his arm; W. E. Donohue of Shackamaxon, M. B. Kaesche of Ridgewood, A. F. Kammer of Baltusrol, J. E. Hale of Upper Montclair, Harry Coxe of Englewood, F. H. Gates of Mantclair, G. A. Paul of Hackensack and H. Y. Barrow of Baltusrol. Two of the leading amateurs will not be represented—W. M. Reekie of Upper Monaclair, former State amateur champion, and Oswald Kirkby of Knickerbocker. The latter is in Texas on a business trip, while Reekie is suffering fro man attack of blood poisoning.

The amateur-pro combinations that are favored to capture the honors on Tuesday are Coxe and Cyril Walker, representing the Englewood Club; Donohue and Cruikshank, representing Shackamaxon; M. B. Kaesche and G. Jacobus of Ridgewood, A. Nathan Jr. and Jack Forrester of Hollywood, G. A. Paul and Ted Weisser of Hackensack, and Hale and J. Richardson of Upper Montclair.

Powerful Tydol ignores the dead-line

You have your pet hill—the one you avoid when you take guests out driving! There's a dead-line on that hill—you can almost see it—where your motor stutters, gasps and dies in high; where you have to shift back to second.

Test Tydol Economy Gasoline on that hill. Step on the accelerator and unleash Tydol's hill-flattening power. Watch the zip to the pick-up—the sustained power that carries you up and up past the dead-line.

Tydol means new pleasure in motoring, for Tydol vaporizes fast, burns clean and enables you to run with the lean, economical 15 to 1 mixture. Insist on genuine Tydol. The orange and black pumps and signs are everywhere.

MONTANA HANDICAP IS WON BY TEDDY R.

SWEEP'S PROGENY SCORE

Offspring of Veteran Campaigner Run One-Two-Three in Quickstep —Lucky Button Leads.

Teddy R. showed clearly at Jamaica yesterday afternoon that he had inherited the liking of his daddy, Wrack, for soft going when he plowed his way through mud to a handy victory in the Montana Selling Handicap, the starred feature of a rather mediocre card. Following the Quincy Stable's colt over the finish line came the heavily played favorite, Tangerine, carrying the green and gold of R. T. Wilson Jr., and Mrs. T. O. Webber's Wynnewood, second choice in the speculation.

Form told its tale quite clearly, despite the saturated track. All of the six winners of the day were well supported at short odds, and three of them were favorites.

Tangerine, which as a two-year-old last year was unplaced in only three of his nine races, appeared to be the class of the Montana, and the gelded son of Olambala was the public's fancy over the other five entered for the mile and seventy yards journey. Wynnewood found backing, too, as did Teddy R.

Has the Early Speed.

Normal had the early speed and, beating the gate, jumped out to set the pace. He quit at the quarter pole and the veteran Wynnewood swung into the lead, closely attended by Tangerine. In this order they rounded the stretch turn, where the two leaders went wide, and Teddy R., outrun in the early stages, came through on the inside, saving several lengths, and led Tangerine at the close by a couple of lengths. Wynnewood hung on to the short end of the purse.

Three of old Sweep's progeny, all of them brown, like their sire, ran one-two-three in the Quickstep, a six-furlong sprint run as the fifth event. The Ascot Stable's filly, Lucky Button was all out at the end to beat Doughnut by half a length, with Miriam Cooper five lengths back. The favorite, Walter J. Salmon's Superlative, was unable to hit his stride in the going and finished last.

Jefferson Livingston's colt, Vennie, was easily best in the field of maiden juveniles which took the track for the dash which opened the card. The son of Colonel Vennie seemed to approve of the muddy going, and, after racing Jolly Sailor into subjection early in the race, just scampered along the rest of the way. His margin over Jolly Sailor, which hung on to the place without difficulty, was a length and a half behind Lady Monmouth, which had only nonmudders to beat for the short end of the purse, fell into third place. Vennie was the first winner for J. D. Odom since he returned to training horses after timing them for a while.

A quartet of platers composed the candidates for the claiming race for non-winners at this meeting, run as the second number on the program. At some stages of the betting it was 2 to 1 and take your choice among Camouflage, Gem and Anniversary, with Scourgeman the outsider. Camouflage, which revels in sloppy going, was heavily backed and closed favorite.

The public choice won, but it was a close affair. Camouflage made all the pace, but Callahan had to work his passage by urging his mount hard at the close to withstand the charge of Anniversary. The latter was only a head behind the victor and was a length and a half ahead of Gem, which did not care for the going.

Odds-on Choice Wins.

G. D. Widener's bay son of Dick Welles, Mizar, made a show of half a dozen others in the six-furlong sprint, third on the card. Sande rated the colt, which was an odds-on choice, behind the pace set by Refrain for a quarter and then drew to the front to win in a gallop by eight lengths. W. J. Salmon's Jocose, played from 6 to 1 down to 9 to 2, was an easy second, two lengths ahead of Bettie Blue.

The Greentree Stable's Tarn fought it out with Stephen Petit's colt, Finality, in the final dash for maidens, and the latter gained the verdict by half a length, with the old contenders beaten off.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 19.—The crew of Choate School, Wallingford, Conn., won the annual Harvard schoolboy rowing regatta on the Charles River today. Browne and Nichols School of Cambridge was second. The time for the three-quarter mile course was 4 minutes, 4 2-5 seconds.

Earl French to See Morvich In Exhibition Sprint at Jamaica

Earl French, Field Marshal of the British Army, and his staff will attend the races at Jamaica on Tuesday next as guests of President Street of the Metropolitan Jockey Club, and Morvich will show his dazzling speed for the edification of the veteran soldier. Benjamin Block, owner of the Kentucky Derby winner, learning that the Field Marshal had expressed a desire to see the great three-year-old, offered to send Morvich an exhibition sprint under colors. As the Southampton Handicap is booked for that day, Earl French, a lover of good horses, is likely to enjoy the occasion.

TO RACE FOR KING'S PLATE.

Historic Event Will Be Feature of Ontario's Opening Today.

TORONTO, Ont., May 19.—The sixty-third renewal of the historic King's Plate will feature the opening card of the Ontario Jockey Club's seven-day Spring meet beginning tomorrow. The King's Plate is to Canada what the Derby is to England.

The race, over a mile and a quarter, is confined to three-year-olds and upward, foaled, raised and trained in the Province of Ontario. Entries must never have left Canada for more than one month. Forty-four horses have been entered, but a majority are expected to be scratched.

Chick Lang, the jockey, has gone to Toronto to ride in the King's Plate at Woodbine today. He had accepted the mount before signing to ride for J. S. Cosden. He will return in time to ride at Jamaica on Monday.

To Captain Lehigh Wrestlers.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., May 19.—Al Schwarzbach of Jersey City, Lehigh University's 125-pound wrestler, was elected Captain of the team for next season at a banquet held today. Included among the dual meets for next season is a date reserved for Princeton, the first time these teams have met in years.

SCHAEFER VICTORY IS WELL EARNED

In defeating Walker Cochran in their match for the world's 18.2 balkline billiard championship at Chicago Jake Schaefer proved that he is a real champion. In spite of the fact that Schaefer had previously defeated Hoppe in three successive games, one at 400 points, another at 500 points and a third at 1,500 points, and in so doing played some of the most brilliant billiards ever seen, there were some who were prone to believe that he had caught Hoppe off his game and that Jake would not be able to stand the acid test for long. In Cochran, Schaefer met a player who for several years has been conceded to be one of the best in the game. In defeating him, 1,500 to 1,333, Schaefer proved that his game is sound in every respect, and that he is worthy of the mantel that drapes his shoulders.

However, both of the matches—that against Hoppe and the one just concluded against Cochran—have established the fact that the difference in the ability of these three players is very slight. Schaefer defeated Hoppe by a margin of 32 points, 1,500 to 1,468. He defeated Cochran by a slightly greater margin, but the 167 points that separated the men at the finish can hardly be called decisive.

Schaefer won all three blocks of the match, but in each instance the margins were slight, with the result that the affair was close and interesting throughout. The champion took the opening block by a score of 500 to 421, the second by 500 to 498 and the third by 500 to 414. A total of forty-two innings were played, giving Schaefer a grand average of 35 30-42 and Cochran 31 31-42. The titleholder made a high run of 202, while Cochran's best inning netted him 156. This cluster was made on the final night of play and pulled the challenger up into a truly contending position. Until he made that run it seemed that Schaefer was going to win with plenty to spare.

While both men played excellent billiards, it was not as brilliant as that which Schaefer and Hoppe showed in their match. Schaefer and Cochran were not as consistently good in their work at the table. They played in streaks. Had not such a high standard been set in the Schaefer-Hoppe event, the playing in the match just concluded would have been hailed as the greatest ever seen in a championship match of such length.

An analysis of the playing of both men discloses very little to choose between them. Both played sound games in all departments. Schaefer's edge seemed to be a slightly stronger line game. Cochran could not hold the balls together as well as the champion, with the result that his playing was more of the open-table variety, although on several occasions he showed some impressive work at the ends of the table.

Schaefer will not have to defend his title again until next September. The championship rules provide that he cannot be challenged during the months of June, July and August. Roger Conti, the professional champion of France, is next in line to challenge for the title, by virtue of having finished fourth in the international tournament. Whether the young French player will do so or not is problematical at this time.

NEW JERSEY TRAPS TITLE TO HAINES

Mount Holly Marksman Wins Amateur Singles Championship at Pitman.

Special to The New York Times.

PITMAN, N. J., May 19.—A new State trap shooting champion was created today when M. S. Haines of Mount Holly, shooting in his first State match, won the State amateur championship at singles, the stellar event of the nineteenth annual meet of the New Jersey State Trap Shooting Association, which is being held here over the traps of the Pitman Gun Club. Neaf Apgar of Plainfield is the new professional champion in this event, while Mrs. L. R. Piercey of Jersey City retains her title as woman champion.

It was a day of surprises for the old timers. Haines, who struck his pace when he broke straight in the 100 target registered event at the opening of the State shoot yesterday, kept going today and carried his run along to 126 before he missed a target. He broke 99 out of the first 100 targets during the morning, but dropped four of the final 100 in the high winds which made the targets extremely erratic this afternoon.

Clarence B. Platt of Bridgeton, three times holder of the State amateur title, had to be content with position of runner-up in this year's championship title, although he pressed Haines hard at every trap and finished only three targets behind him. The breaks of Haines and Platt in the rounds at the traps ran as follows:

A large gallery of spectators watched the finish of the championship contest this afternoon. Platt slipped at the start of his second hundred, missing four targets at the first trap. He dropped another at the second trap, but picked up one target on Haines at each of the last two traps. Fred Tomlin of Glassboro, holder of the State professional title, and also national 18-yard champion, dropped seven targets at the fourth trap today and lost his State title to Apgar.

RIGHTEOUS RELATIONSHIPS.

In his address before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States President HARDING expressed a number of interesting views. Possibly his ethical theory of foreign trade and the tariff is the most engaging of these:

> Let us sell things that Americans can produce advantageously to those who cannot produce them. Let us buy the things that they have to sell to us and which we do not produce. Out of such exchanges come righteous relationship and balances of trade and the continued forward movement of the great human procession.

It will be observed that Mr. HARDING's equation is not quite fairly balanced. We are to sell the things we produce advantageously, whereas the foreigners are merely allowed to sell to us, without question of their advantage, things we don't produce. It is a very simple theory, though it will appear somewhat primitive to many American manufacturers of today. Apparently, dogmas that Mr. MCKINLEY outgrew are still preserved in Ohio. How commerce can be anything except an exchange of commodities; how American commodities can be sent abroad unless foreign commodities come in; how our foreign debtors are to pay us save with goods; how "American productivity" is to be increased unless foreign productivity and buying power are increased; how a tariff whose main purpose is to throttle the importation of the stuff against which our own products must be exchanged—these difficulties it is not necessary for the perfect protectionist to bother about. Let us have a great moral tariff, commerce with a conscience, "righteous relationships."

As to "righteous relationships" with foreign nations, consider the protest of the glove and the porcelain industry at Limoges against our proposed conscientious tariff. They will have to shut up shop, throwing thousands out of employment, the Limoges Chamber of Commerce says. "We all hope," said the French Consul General here the other day, "that the tariff you "adopt will not be an insurmountable "barrier to imports, and thus also to "exports." We shall be hurt as much as France. Her buying is dependent upon her selling. So with other countries. As to buying only things that we don't produce, how is it that the United States was able to import in a year a million dollars' worth of hosiery and knit goods and export four million dollars' worth of the same commodities? Why is it necessary to conscientious commerce to jack up the tariff duties on hosiery and knit goods?

Just look at a specimen of the commercial conscience in the great tariff of righteousness, the little "joker" in the McCumber bill, borrowed from the emergency tariff. On cotton with a staple one-eighth of an inch or more long is slapped a duty of 7 cents a pound; also a duty of 7 cents a pound on manufactures of which cotton of that kind "is the component material of chief value." Now there is a little long staple cotton raised in New Mexico and Arizona, mighty little. All the cotton manufacturer has to do is to put a little long staple cotton in his goods and charge the customer the jacked-up price. All the way through, the McCumber bill is a bill to raise prices and the cost of living, to narrow foreign trade, to hamper the restoration of productive enterprise here and abroad. "We must always be right at home," says Mr. HARDING, "before we can be very helpful abroad." We shall be wrong at home and abroad, foreign nations and the United States will be harmed, not helped, by that tariff. If "we want to trade with the world," why pass a law whose essential principle is to prevent our trading with the world?

LORD GREY ON GENOA.

Mr. LLOYD GEORGE, with his invincible optimism and flair for political effect, is preparing for a triumphal return home from Genoa. He will try to outdo Lord BEACONSFIELD's famous bringing back from Berlin, "peace with honor." No one will grudge him the praise he deserves for his high endeavors, and whatever political capital he may be able to make out of his prolonged labors at Genoa he will certainly need in the trying weeks before him. But it will be hard for him to overcome a damaging criticism pronounced upon him before he reaches England. It was made by a former colleague of his in the Cabinet, a man of long experience and high repute in the conduct of British foreign relations, Viscount GREY.

The most serious charge which he brings against LLOYD GEORGE's great adventure at Genoa is that it was ill-prepared. It was too much in the nature of a happy thought, an improvisation. Light-heartedly and enthusiastically, the Prime Minister threw out his proposals for European peace and for recovered economic stability, without having first thought them through himself, and, what was even more perilous, without having sounded out the views of the other Powers chiefly concerned. It is Lord GREY's reasonable contention that the British Government should not have moved at all until it had accurately ascertained what support its program could count upon from France, and what would be the final attitude of the Soviet Government. Neither of these things was done. The inevitable result was the misunderstanding at Genoa, along with continued debating and bickering and the final discovery by LLOYD GEORGE that Russia was placing insurmountable obstacles in his path.

This could just as well have been found out beforehand, if the suitable diplomatic methods had been used. It is not a question of the old diplomacy against the new, but simply of taking obvious and common-sense precautions. Weeks were spent in futile wrangling at Genoa, which could have been avoided if prudent steps had been taken in advance to prepare the way for the conference, or to give it up if the clear indications were that it would end in futility.

English newspapers, even those not hostile to LLOYD GEORGE, are pointing the contrast between the Genoa conference and the previous one at Washington. Of the latter the scope was wisely limited. Although not all the items on its agenda were acted upon, the chief ones were successfully. Moreover, our Department of State had not omitted to get into touch with the foreign Governments long before the delegates actually met at Washington. Clear thinking and carefully collected information preceded the resolute action of Secretary HUGHES. Mr. LLOYD GEORGE trusted more to luck and to his unequaled talent for getting out of difficulties; but at Genoa the difficulties proved too great for even his unsurpassed agility.

THE TWELVE-HOUR DAY.

The forty-one steel executives who dined with President HARDING expressed "much favorable sentiment" toward abolition of the twelve-hour day, but were convinced that it is "impracticable" without unanimous agreement among employers. This statement strikes deeper than the question of the welfare of the workers, important though that is. A large proportion of the men prefer long shifts because of the increased earnings. When an individual company introduces the eight-hour day, they desert to other companies. They are mostly South Italian, Greek, Slavic and Turkish laborers, who live in squalor in order to make large savings from wages that to them are munificent. After a few years they return to their homes to become farmers, small traders and the like, thus rising a stage in the economic and social scale of their mid-European or Asiatic homes. That is their idea of human welfare.

To our manufacturers it has presented an opportunity purely economic. They have based their labor costs not upon a modern and American standard of living, but on a standard that is medieval, Asiatic. Both the steel mills and the coal mines were once manned by Americans born and bred, but these have been largely driven out by an impossible competition. As one employer confessed: "You can't get an American to work a twelve-hour day." The living conditions introduced by the newcomers are alike repugnant to the American sense of decency and dignity in home life. It is true that a portion of the foreign laborers remain and become in a measure Americanized. But under the twelve-hour day neither education nor citizenship is possible. Night schools, libraries, churches and even company welfare work become a farce. "Education" falls into the hands of the radical organizer, with results that have been plain enough. The half assimilated steel worker feels keenly his un-American standard of living and his resentment makes a strong appeal to our social sympathies. Those amateurs of Bolshevism, W. Z. FOSTER and JOHN FITZPATRICK, tried once to introduce "industrial democracy" among steel workers and have gained experience that will aid them greatly when they try again, as they will at the first opportunity.

The eight-hour day, with three shifts for continuous processes, is not an economic impossibility. In England, where steel workers are natives and have insisted on native standards, the shorter day has proved on the whole equally productive. In taking our problem in hand at the outset of a trade revival, President HARDING and Secretary HOOVER have shown themselves as forethoughtful as they are liberal and humane. If the forty-one executives fail to take "substantially unanimous action" toward Americanizing conditions, other means of reform will not be lacking. The recent extension of restrictions in immigration has fortunately dammed the flow of the kind of workmen who prefer the twelve-hour day.

"WORDS, WORDS, WORDS."

It is stated that up to Thursday 4,961,355 words had been telegraphed from Genoa by diplomats and journalists, and that more than 10,000,000 words had been transmitted by telephone. Have these vibrations, which, with varied wave lengths, have encircled the earth, all been wasteful dissipations of energy? Dr. JOHNSON said that he was not so blinded by lexicography as not to know that words were the daughters of men, while deeds were the sons of heaven. This seems to disparage the office of words; but it is only through the daughters of men that the sons of heaven get born upon the earth. The lines of the Captain in "The Terrible Meek" come nearer expressing the fact: "Words are powerful "things. All the good or bad that "gets done in this world is done by "words."

From these millions of words, telegraphed and telephoned by lines that have gone throughout all the earth, reproduced in billions of printed words, there may be born in due time "sons of heaven." The concentration of the attention of the world upon such a high-purposed gathering for peace can but issue in better deeds. The conference in Genoa may not lead, as LLOYD GEORGE hoped it would, to the discovery of Europe by America, but it may prove to be as one of the voyages of the great Genoese mariner which confirmed the theories of the globular earth, led to the discovery of the New World, to the extermination of the imagined monsters that guarded the terrae incognitae and to the adoption of a new cosmography.

RECOVERING THE INDEMNITY.

There was a hot time in Hamburg when a German liner brought in a thousand German-Americans who hadn't seen the old country for some years. Two hundred thousand Hamburgers met the boat, singing "Deutschland Ueber Alles," waving the black-white-red of the more or less defunct empire, and remarking cheerily that "Blood is thicker than water." Doubtless it is, but one may wonder whether the tourists are brought back to the Fatherland by the call of the blood or the lure of the beer.

Unless they have better luck than most Americans in Germany, they will soon be disillusioned. The flag-wavers and blood-thickeners, if they are like most other Germans, will proceed to collect from the returning German-Americans as much of the German indemnity as the homecomers happen to have in their pockets. So it goes all over Germany. The foreigner is being not only exploited but penalized. All sorts of special taxes are devised to equalize the difference between the mark and the dollar. Hotel and store prices for Americans are two or three times the amounts charged to Germans. Articles are sold on the solemn pledge of the salesman that there is no export tax, and when the departing American reaches the frontier he finds that he has to pay two or three times the value of his purchases as duty.

This is a brilliant example of German stupidity, but to regard it as a new German atrocity seems absurd. The Germans are doing what most European peoples are doing—only they are doing it several times harder. The confidence that in the course of time the American tourist can be made to pay the whole cost of the war is pretty general, at least in Western Europe, and within certain limits the desire to get even with the man whose money is worth more than your own is natural enough. But who are the victims of this process in Germany? The majority are well-to-do German-Americans, cherishing a lingering sentimental attachment for the old country. It may open their eyes to find that the old country regards them chiefly as sheep fit for the shearing. The Kaiser's Government was interested in the German-Americans only for what it could get out of them; apparently, Germany under the republic has the same point of view.

Aside from these sentimentalists, however, another class of Americans suffers more from German extortionate prices. Germany is full of American business men who think they can do certain things that will be profitable to Germany as well as to America. If they are driven out, disgusted, Germany will be hurt more than America. And as for the mere tourist, he will come from Paris, where he thinks he was robbed outrageously, to Berlin, and discover that French shopkeepers are mere amateurs in spoliation. What good the Germans think they will derive from creating this state of mind in American travelers only a German psychologist can imagine.

A TRACTION EXAMPLE.

Philadelphia Rapid Transit reports for April a decrease in operating revenue, but a greater decrease of operating costs. This year the balance for dividends has increased to $806,342 from $540,109 last year. There is an instructive contrast between the fortunes of the tractions in New York and Philadelphia. Here there is more business than can be cared for suitably, yet the companies are heavily embarrassed. In Philadelphia it was necessary to make business. In a decade the company has passed from insolvency and public odium to vigor and prosperity. No other case is known in which the wage earners own the largest single block of the company's stock and share with the management the credit of the joint accomplishment.

Mr. MITTEN, the "miracle man" in the case, has written a pamphlet contrasting conditions in Philadelphia with those in several other cities. Increases of rates in Philadelphia and other cities have been followed by decreases of income. The profits are in the short rides. Where fares have not been increased, the growth of business has been constant, as in New York. Here the profits are in the "preferential standees." In Philadelphia also, so recently as 1919, President MITTEN's company was $5,000,000 short of a 6 per cent. dividend, though the city profited by $113,000,000 increase in taxable values. Owners of realty benefited more. Boston, with $43,000,000 invested in tractions, has realized a deficit of $5,000,000.

Our city budget carries about ten millions of transit costs. But the City Club has shown that the property owners of the old city, Manhattan and the Bronx, could have paid the entire cost of the subways and retained $37,500,000 in increased values of their property. The city gained by tax values, without which the city budget could not be kept within lawful limits. Mr. MITTEN thinks that our traction laws are better than the practice under them. He approves our provision that the property benefited should share the cost of the subways, but adds that some part may properly be paid by the city at large. He thinks that the city should own the lines and lease them for private operation. In particular he counsels co-operation between the men and the management, which increased net income in Philadelphia $16,000,000 in a decade. The company ought to have an allowance to reward exceptional efficiency, and the men ought to have what Mr. MITTEN calls a "co-operative dividend" above their regular pay. Very good. But would Mr. MITTEN's plan work without Mr. MITTEN?

INTIMATE STORY OF A PRIMATE.

The late "John Daniel" did not live in vain. Why was that name given to the priceless specimen of Anthropopithecus gorilla, which in life was the inmate of the Barnum & Bailey circus and after death became the prize of the anatomist and the neurologist? Who was the original John? The specialists gathered around his treasured remains with their apparatus of scientific investigation to reveal to the world in what manner his brain-pan, his spine, his pelvis, his feet and his hands resembled those of man. Never before had a deceased gorilla undergone such an overhauling in the name of science. Few, indeed, have been captured in their native forests, and their lease of life in the cage has been brief. "Pussi" of the Breslau Zoological Gardens endured seven years of captivity. A gorilla that lives a year or two in contact with civilization is doing very well. Our own Dr. HORNADAY reported in 1903 that the first of the species (an infant) that was brought to the United States survived in the land of the free exactly five days.

From the time that the first skeleton of a gorilla was received by the Royal College of Surgeons in 1851 the number of specimens for dissection has been so small, and generally so unsatisfactory, that the inquest upon the late "John Daniel" had epochal significance. New York surgeons and scientists assisted at a zoological event of the first importance. The subject had been well preserved. He was intact, not a bone missing. On Wednesday eminent scientists lectured upon the late "John Daniel" before the American Society of Mammalogists. How few human beings are the subject of learned treatises such as were devoted to this Congo primate!

A neurologist reports the brain of the late captive as more nearly resembling that of man than do the brains of the chimpanzee and the orang-utan. It will be pleasing to Mr. WILLIAM J. BRYAN to learn that the proposition that man was ape-descended no one upheld. The sole commitment was to the theory that man was evolved from an early anthropomorphous type. From the history of primates in captivity in their native Africa it was concluded that gorillas shunned the wine cup, in contrast with the chimpanzees that are prone to imbibe too much liquor and make spectacles of themselves. Whether this proves that the gorilla is more or less like man must be left to the Anti-Saloon League. But there is nothing social about the gorilla. PROTHEROE says of him: "The overhanging "frontal ridge imparts to the features "a fixedly scowling expression, accentuated by the dark brown eyes where-"in glows a baleful, almost emerald "light, which, under the influence of "anger, adds the last touch to com-"plete the malignancy of his fea-"tures," and this authority observes: "Whatever structural similarity there "may be between man and the ape, "there can be no comparison in "intellect." In 1847 Sir RICHARD OWEN lectured on the skull of a gorilla which he had procured from an American missionary, but how much greater was the opportunity of our own men of science who assembled about the frame of the late "John Daniel" and took notes! Their monographs should be precious.

EUROPE STILL UNDER ARMS.

Hope of land disarmament was not realized at Genoa, as it had not been at Washington. Geneva, the home of the League of Nations, now reports that the mixed commission on armaments, created in September, 1920, has made no substantial progress in bringing about limitation of armies. "While the questionnaire," says the dispatch from Geneva, "merely asked for "statistical information, the mixed "commission and League officials "have learned from unmistakable "sources that there is no disposition "on the part of the European nations "particularly, and the world general-"ly, to disarm while the present polit-"ical situation in Europe continues."

The delegates to Genoa knew when they arrived that every Continental nation, with the exception of Germany, had a much larger army than it could afford to maintain, and they departed with a conviction that Russia and Germany were more under suspicion than ever. The cause of disarmament was little advanced by the proceedings at Genoa. The mixed commission of the League will not make its report until September, but Geneva sends out an estimate that there are 1,000,000 more men under arms in Europe today than before the World War. All the new nations keep up armies out of proportion to the ratio which their population justifies; evidently because they fear the future, not knowing what a day may bring forth.

What is the bearing of the European condition upon the military needs of the United States? Can we assume that this country is so isolated from Europe that in the event of another great war it could not be drawn in? The answer must be in the negative. "Based upon its population, the United States," says The Army and Navy Journal, "ranks twenty-fourth in the "organized military forces of the "world." Mexico's army is proportionately stronger. To fail to keep the United States Army up to a structural strength capable of expansion, as contemplated by the National Defense act, would be to ignore the bitter lessons of experience.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Unwritten Law Is Inapplicable.

Several of the Southern Senators are protesting—Senator WATSON of Georgia most loudly, of course—that one Captain MALONE, also a Georgian, was treated with excessive and undeserved severity by the court-martial which convicted him while serving in France of murdering another officer, and imposed a sentence of twenty years in prison, which he is now serving.

The facts of the killing are undenied, nor is it claimed that no punishment was deserved or that the man should be freed at once. Only that his term be cut in half is demanded.

As reason for granting this demand, it is asserted that the crime committed was a civil, not a military, offense; that the Captain should have been tried, therefore, before a civil, not a military, court, and that if he had been so tried he probably would have been acquitted under the "unwritten law."

It is possible, however, to doubt that even in Georgia Captain MALONE would have been acquitted. The man he killed seemingly had "broken up his home," as the saying is, but the Captain, instead of acting at once, in a heat of passion that probably would have saved his neck in any part of the country, allowed the unfaithful wife to get her liberty—by divorcing himself! Then she and the other man were married and with her three children by the other marriage she lived with the new husband. Later both men were ordered to France, the chances of service brought their regiments together, and at their first meeting the Captain shot his successor dead.

That seems like a deed far too cold-blooded to come under the "unwritten law," for there had been condonation of a sort, an acceptance of the situation, and a tacit agreement by everybody concerned that further action was unnecessary.

Other Cases Demand Their Notice.

It is not safe to judge with certainty the rights and wrongs in a case like the one which so interests the Southern Senator. No outsider ever knows or can know all the facts in one of them—the provocations to which the parties to it have been subjected. But so deliberate was Captain MALONE's vengeance, and so intolerable was it from the standpoint of military discipline, that the wonder is, not that he was condemned to twenty years in a Federal prison, but that he was not shot at a sunrise closely following his conviction.

In other words, he was treated with a lenience which clearly shows that whatever excuses for his deed there were had been well considered.

And why are the Senators so disturbed by his trial in a military instead of a civil court? They must have noticed two other cases in their own part of the country in which men accused of murder did not get a trial in any kind of a court, but, on what could not have been more than strong suspicion, were put to death, not only summarily, but with savage tortures. The men were black, but their right to a civil trial was unquestionable, while that of Captain MALONE is a good deal more than doubtful.

Yet the so sensitive Senators have had nothing to say to their colleagues about these lynchings, and if they were at all excited about them they controlled their emotions with complete success.

Certainly He Is "Defective."

In theory, however it may be in practice, some delicate problems must be decided before punishment is inflicted on the man who shot and killed DOUGLAS W. HAY, a policeman against whom the man had no grievance except that the policeman had served on him a summons to court for violating a city ordinance against throwing rubbish into the street.

To the general satisfaction, the law will act with a special promptness in this case. The killing, viewed as a killing, was most atrocious, and death as speedy as legal forms will permit is as clearly demanded as murder ever demands it. Nevertheless, the circumstances of the crime—the fact that it had no provocation or excuse that reason can admit—almost certainly would convince alienists and psychiatrists that the man who did it was a "psychopath," a "mental defective" of dubious or incomplete responsibility for his acts.

He showed all the signs of having yielded to an uncontrollable impulse, based on an obsession or a delusion of persecution. Nobody in possession of a sane mind, that is a normal mind, would have resented with such desperation the prospect at worst of paying a petty fine. To kill for such a thing was even more stupid than vicious.

But on that account should this "defective" escape the electric chair? Many experts could be found to say on oath that he should—to advise life imprisonment as the adequate, and only permissible, remedy. Jurors, however, are likely, and with reason, to take a different view—to think more about the protection of society from a deadly enemy than about the peculiarities of the murderer's intelligence. There are too many chances that, though sent to prison for life, the man some day would regain his liberty and that then he would kill somebody else against whom he had a fancied wrong to avenge.

Not All Mammals Dying Off.

To have eminent men of science solemnly declare that the "age of mammals" is more than likely soon to terminate has a somewhat awful sound for the proudest of that age's representatives—the members of the human species. The world, according to these high authorities, is not large enough to support man with his new and improved engines of destruction, and his new and not improved determination ruthlessly to exploit for his present needs and fancies his fellow-residents of the globe.

The queer feminine habit of wearing furs in Summer is playing, it seems, no small part in hastening the extermination of mammals—another chance for scolding women that doubtless will be utilized at once. But we do conserve some mammals while we are killing off others, so cows and sheep and pigs apparently are destined to last as long as we do, however it may be about horses. Dogs and cats, too, are not appreciably menaced, and rats and mice are not yet scarce—worse luck!

Fordney's Reference to Wilson.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The repulsive insolence of Representative Fordney's reference to our most glorious ex-President ranks him with his peers, those others who refreshed their souls by jeering at and spitting on one in his agony whom they could no more humiliate than the present-day jackals can reach the sublimely patient, noble and gentle sufferer they endeavor to insult.

Such utterances from such a source, while unable further to debase any lower the individual who makes them, do, however, serve further to render more contemptible our Government as represented by such miscalled "men."

Removal of Alderman President.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a discussion arising concerning the organization of our city government, the proposition was mooted that, while provision has been made in the charter for the removal for cause of various city officials, the law is silent on the subject of the removal of the President of the Board of Aldermen.

Of course, no reflection is by any means intended upon the present incumbent, but I am sure many readers of THE TIMES would be glad to be enlightened upon what might under certain circumstances prove to be a very important subject.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As our civic virtue doesn't seem to be anything to boast about, wouldn't it be just as well to change the name and symbol of the MacMonnies statue to "The Survival of the Fittest," or "He Who Scrambled on the Subway"? ROLAND BOTTOMLEY.

NOT IDLE TEARS.

"Tears destroy bacteria."—News item.

Two little bacilli perched on a nose
As happy as only bacilli can be.
One said to the other, "As ev'ry one knows,
Our presence is fatal wherever are we."
"Oh, yes," cried the second, "our power's complete."
And they chirp'd and they sang with bacterial glee,
"Dealing death and disease is surely our meat."

That saw the fell purpose the foe had in view.
Unclouded, undimm'd, the orb seem'd to know
'Twas helpless and that there was nothing to do.
But at once there blew in a small speck of dirt,
The eye suffered agony, a great tear it shed,
Which roll'd down the nose like a cataract girt,
And in a brief moment bacilli were dead!

AMERICANIZE STAFF ABROAD.

Ship Board Managers Eliminate Foreigners in Their Offices.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Joseph E. Sheedy, formerly European manager for the United States Shipping Board, who has been brought from London to serve as Acting Vice President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, in charge of operations, declared in his first interview with the press today regarding Shipping Board conditions abroad that every effort has been made to impress upon consignees and shippers that "American ships will always be in the business and that they need have no fear that the service will not be steadily improved."

The entire Shipping Board force in Europe, he said, had been Americanized and expenses considerably reduced. When he arrived in London on Oct. 9, 1921, Mr. Sheedy found 589 employes in the European organization with an annual payroll of $926,000. Today the personnel has been cut to 145, with a payroll of $460,000. Americans constituted 26 per cent. of the organization last October. Today they number 100 per cent., with the exception of three interpreters, and he said it was hoped the services of these could be dispensed with soon. The whole maintenance and repair division last October was 100 per cent. British, but within ninety days it became 100 per cent. American.

Mr. Sheedy said that when he took charge as European manager there were forty Shipping Board offices in ten districts. These districts have been reduced to four, covering the British Isles, the Northern, Western and Eastern Mediterranean. The number of Shipping Board offices in Europe has been reduced to eighteen. Work in the districts has been centralized. The Shipping Board offices retained are at London, Liverpool, Glasgow, Falmouth, Bristol, Dublin, Ponta Delgada in the Azores, Antwerp, Rotterdam, Hamburg, Bremen, Copenhagen, Gothenburg, Stockholm, Havre, Marseilles, Gibraltar and Constantinople.

Mr. Sheedy said the Shipping Board "is not spending a cent in Europe that could be spent in America," the principal contracts being for fuel, water and ballast. He said that progress had been made in the matter of port facilities.

"We have an appropriate berth at Tilbury," he said, "and one at Surrey Commercial, and within a short time we will have an additional berth in the Royal Albert docks, all in London, giving us equal facilities with our competitors. At Liverpool we also have one berth in the South Docks and have just been allocated one in the North Docks. At Antwerp we are to be assigned a berth in the Basin which will meet our requirements."

PAINTINGS TO GO ON TOUR.

Works in International Exhibit to Be Sent to American Cities.

The Carnegie Institute issues a statement to the effect that in response to the demand on the part of art institutions of other cities, a large group of European paintings in the Twenty-first International Exhibition at Carnegie Institute are to go on a tour of American cities at the close of the exhibition here on June 15. This will be the first year that a tour of this kind in connection with an international has been attempted on a large scale. In all probability, such a tour will be arranged for after each future international.

Some seventy European paintings have already been selected for the tour by a committee from the Museum Directors Association which visited Pittsburgh a short time ago. The plan followed was to select paintings which would show the present state of art in Europe.

Arrangements have been made to show the works at the Toledo Museum of Art, the Cincinnati Museum of Art, the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts and the City Arts Museum of St. Louis. Negotiations are also under way for an exhibition at the Memorial Art Gallery at Rochester, N. Y., and the Art Gallery of Toronto, Canada.

In speaking of the plans for the tour, Mr. Saint-Gaudens, assistant art director at the institute, said:

"Pittsburghers, through the Annual International Exhibition, have a better opportunity to study contemporary European art than people of any other city of this country, New York City not excepted. For a long time other cities have been anxious to enjoy some of the works in the International and this year the Fine Arts Committee has given its permission for a tour of a large group of the European paintings. We hope to continue this each year and in this way Carnegie Institute will be serving not only the people of Western Pennsylvania, but through this tour and similar ones, it will be sending the message of European art to other cities in this country. It will be performing an invaluable service both to European art and to American art, for we have much to learn from Europe."

SHANGHAI PLEA TO HARDING.

Americans Ask Settlement of Dispute Over Court.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

SHANGHAI, May 19.—The American Chamber of Commerce of China has cabled to President Harding urging an immediate settlement of the controversy over the American court here.

"The delay of nearly a year in settling the court matter is producing a desperate situation in American business and seriously affecting the whole American position in China," it is said in the message. "Arrested persons are awaiting trial here and cases involving large sums have not been settled, entailing a heavy loss to American prestige and offsetting the good results of the Washington conference."

W. S. Fleming, a Shanghai lawyer, a year ago made charges against Judge Lobinger, who was called to Washington to make an answer. It is believed that the charges are unfounded, but political considerations cause the delay. Judge Lobinger has a record of nearly twenty years on the Federal bench in the Philippines and in China. He is a native of Nebraska and was a professor in Nebraska University.

CONDEMNS TAX ON ALIENS.

Manufacturers Cite London Editor's Experience Here.

The directors of the American Manufacturers' Export Association yesterday approved the report of the Hague Rules Committee which endorsed the Hague rules.

They also adopted a resolution in which they condemn the interpretation of the Federal income tax law that imposes an income tax on aliens temporarily in this country on business, on income earned abroad. This resolution arose on complaint of a member who brought to the attention of the association the tax recently imposed on Ralph D. Blumenfeld of London amounting to $93.50, computed on his salary as a London editor for twenty-one days. While here he purchased $225,000 worth of machinery.

CANADIANS BACK LEAGUE.

Premier and Other Leaders in Manifesto Call It Only Hope for Peace.

TORONTO, May 19.—An appeal to the Canadian public for support of the League of Nations Society in Canada was made in a manifesto issued today through the Canadian press and signed by Premier W. L. Mackenzie King, former Premiers Sir Robert Borden and Arthur Meighen, and other Canadian leaders.

The League was called the only "effective and available instrument" for world peace now in existence, and the manifesto declared that it should be supported by the public in every nation now a member of the League.

SHIP SUBSIDY BILL TO BE READY JUNE 5

HARDING SURE IT WILL PASS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—With the closing of testimony today before the joint committee of the Senate and House, which has been holding hearings on President Harding's proposals for ship subsidy legislation, it is expected that the final revised form of the bill will be ready for introduction in the House by June 5. The bill will now be dealt with by a sub-committee and put into final form for submission to the House, with certain modifications embracing suggestions of the Administration, together with such amendments and omissions as the committee may deem wise to make.

The present program is to have the revised bill ready for introduction June 5 in the House, which is far ahead of the Senate in legislative matters. The lower branch of Congress will consider the ship subsidy measure while the Senate is wrestling with the tariff bill. The bill will remain on the House calendar a week, is expected to be disposed of in another week and ready for consideration by the Senate by the end of June. President Harding, it was learned today in an authoritative quarter, hopes the Senate will take up the ship subsidy bill while the tariff bill is in conference, but there is no certainty when the Senate's battle over the customs schedules will end.

It is proposed in the pending legislation that 50 per cent. of all immigrant traffic come aboard American ships. The Shipping Board believes that this feature alone, if enacted into law, will insure a volume of business in the North Atlantic that should give a large growth in our third-class passenger ships. Chairman Lasker said today that if we had had such a law when immigration was at its height a few years ago, "we should have had, without cost to the Treasury, a very respectable passenger fleet under the American flag plying between our shores and Europe when we entered the war."

Immigration to House Committee.

The immigration section—for the technical reason that it involves legislative matters coming properly within the legislative jurisdiction of the House Immigration Committee—will be eliminated temporarily from the revised bill and considered simultaneously in the Immigration Committee. After it has been reported to the House by the latter committee the plan is to add it as an amendment to the Subsidy bill.

The original naval reserve section of the bill also will be referred to the House Naval Committee for consideration. There will be changes in Section 19, relating to bills of lading, and Section 28 of the present Jones Merchant Marine law, providing for through preferential rates on American railroads for goods shipped abroad via American-flag bottoms when adequate facilities shall exist. A committee of the Shipping Board is now touring the ports of the country to ascertain whether such facilities do exist.

There have been several conferences between the Shipping Board and the Interstate Commerce Commission concerning those things in the Administration's ship subsidy measure which relate to the workings of these two Governmental bodies with a view to revision of those particular sections on a working basis satisfactory to both. The revised text of this part of the bill will be ready in a few days to be laid before the House Merchant Marine Committee.

The ship subsidy bill proposes direct aid to ships in the form of a cash subsidy, which, it is estimated, if we should ultimately develop 7,500,000 gross tons, sufficient to carry half of the overseas trade of America, will cost the Treasury approximately $30,000,000.

One of the indirect aids proposed by the bill would permit a deduction from Federal taxes equal to 5 per cent. of the moneys paid in freights as an allowance to shippers who route by American ships. The bill before Congress proposes a loan fund of $125,000,000 at 2 per cent. minimum interest to aid those who would build passenger and combination passenger and cargo ships to balance the fleet. The bill also proposes that the desirable tonnage owned by the Shipping Board be disposed of at world market prices to American buyers so that to the extent that the board can furnish ships there should be no capital charge differential inuring against American owners.

It is also contemplated that the President will declare the Philippines coastwise, so as to give American-flag ships exclusively the benefit of the commerce between the United States and the Philippines.

Computation of the Subsidy.

The subsidy would be computed on a differential basis of a combination of speed, tonnage and distance covered. The basic subsidy provides that every vessel of the United States entitled to direct aid shall receive a sum equal to one-half a cent per gross ton for each 100 miles covered, and increases with each knot, until at 23 knots and over, the ship, according to the Administration plan, would receive 2.1 cents per gross ton. In the discretion of the Shipping Board, wherever essential lines are needed and the subsidy proposed in the bill is not sufficient, a subsidy up to double the amount proposed would be allowed. Into the subsidy fund would be paid such tonnage dues as are collected, which are proposed to be doubled. No ships granted the subsidy would be paid for carrying the mails. The compensation they would receive would go to the Shipping Board. The fund for the Shipping Board is proposed to be derived by reserving 10 per cent. of the moneys collected in duties as a revolving fund.

A limitation of profits is proposed in the Administration's plan so as to forbid profiteering and insure that there be no diminution in the inspiration of incentive and the consequent facilitation of raising the necessity capital. This is proposed, as the bill now stands, to be accomplished by a proviso that after a ship has earned 10 per cent. on its capital, half of the earnings shall be returned to the merchant marine fund until the full amount of the subsidy shall have been repaid, and, after that, the ship would keep all the excess earnings.

President Harding is more interested in this measure than any other legislation now before Congress. His canvass of the situation convinces him that the bill, in the form in which it is to be revised as a result of the hearings and conferences between Administration and legislative leaders, will pass the House by at least fifty majority and that the Senate also will act favorably on the measure.

Charles M. Schwab, former Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, under whose administration wartime shipbuilding received its greatest impetus, in an interview before leaving Washington today gave his unqualified endorsement to the efforts of the Shipping Board to restore the merchant marine by means of the ship subsidy.

"I am heartily in favor of a ship subsidy," said Mr. Schwab. "I am heartily in favor of the plans recommended by the present Shipping Board and I congratulate it on the progress that it has made in the matter of reorganization. It is essential to the prosperity of this country that we have an efficient merchant marine, and in order to obtain one it is absolutely necessary that its operators receive Government aid.

"I have always been in favor of a ship subsidy and I hope that the present Congress will pass the bill now before it."

Mr. Schwab motored to Washington yesterday from his Summer residence at Loretto, Pa., to attend the steel leaders' dinner at the White House last night.

PRESBYTERIAN CALL IS 'ENFORCE LAWS'

Violation of Volstead Act, Says General Assembly Convention, Demands Action.

COOLIDGE TO MAKE ADDRESS

Criticism of Denominational Magazine's Attitude on Moving Pictures Creates Storm Among Delegates.

Special to The New York Times.

DES MOINES, May 19.—Because of what it termed boasted violation of the Eighteenth Amendment, the 134th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church today at its second session unanimously adopted a resolution calling on its members and all Christians for continued and increased activity in behalf of the maintenance and enforcement of all laws. The resolution was offered by the Rev. Dr. W. Beatty Jennings of Germantown, Pa. When it was suggested that the Assembly have a rising vote, every one got up.

It is considered that the Rev. Dr. Calvin C. Hays, pastor at Johnstown, Pa., who yesterday was elected Moderator of the Assembly, owes his office largely to the fact that for the last sixteen years he has been President of the Pennsylvania State Anti-Saloon League. One telegram of congratulation he received was directed to "The Pope of the Presbyterian Church."

Dr. Hays today named as Vice Moderator of the Assembly the Rev. Dr. William O. Thompson, President of Ohio State University. Dr. Thompson presided this afternoon.

The Moderator named the Rev. Dr. Clelland B. McAfee, Professor in McCormick Theological Seminary of Chicago, as Chairman of the Committee on Bills and Overtures. This is considered one of the most important appointments of the Assembly.

Vice President Calvin Coolidge, who is a member of the Congregational Church, will come here from Washington to deliver an address Sunday evening under the auspices of the General Board of Education of the Church.

A storm threatened when a Commissioner in the audience shouted out, "Is the Presbyterian Magazine going to continue to support the moving picture trust?" There was a moment of silence. Then the Rev. Dr. David G. Wylie of New York took the platform and declared that there would be no more movie trust advocating in the magazine.

"A little too much like a pink tea affair" was the way the Rev. Dr. George P. Shelton of Pittsburgh characterized the holding of an afternoon service on Sunday, rather than an evening service. He was speaking for the special committee on Christian life and work.

"No afternoon service can take the place of the evening service. We need to get red blood into our Sunday night worship," he said. "Another thing we need is to get back to the old-fashioned prayer meeting."

The Rev. Dr. William Hiram Foulkes of New York, in his report as General Secretary of the New Era movement, stated that the Presbyterian Church, through Presbyterian treasuries and for causes distinctively Presbyterian, had given $14,959,939 more in the year just closed than it had given before.

A feature of today's session was the presentation of a gavel to Dr. Hays. It is the product of a missionary field in China and buried in its centre is a tiny American flag.

Dr. George B. Stewart, President of Auburn Theological Seminary of Auburn, New York, explained to the assembly as chairman of a special committee that on July 1 next the first payment would be due on the $1,000,000 debt under which the Presbyterian Church is laboring.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 19.—Total receipts for foreign missions of the Southern Presbyterian Church during the last year amounted to $1,261,323, an increase of more than $90,000 over the receipts for the previous year, according to the report of the executive committee of foreign missions to the General Assembly here. Records of fifty-six years were broken in contributions of the last year to Southern Presbyterian Home Missions. Receipts which amounted to $548,431 were the largest in the history of the Executive Committee of Home Missions.

Southern Presbyterians Helped Contributions for European Relief.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 19.—Contributions amounting to $402,208 were received last year for Protestant relief in Europe, the Rev. James I. Vance of Nashville, Tenn., today reported to the Southern Presbyterian General Assembly in session here.

Of this amount, $100,000 represented the Laura Spellman Rockefeller Memorial. Contributions by denominations were: United Presbyterian Church, $10,796; Northern Presbyterian, $56,961; Southern Presbyterian, $17,000; Christian Church, $746; Methodist Episcopal, $51,500; Methodist Episcopal South, $9,500; American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society, $34,120; Reformed Church in the United States, $35,750.

Baptists in Jacksonville Convention Prepare for Drive.

JACKSONVILLE, May 19 (Associated Press).—Plans for completing the $75,000,000 fund of the Southern Baptist Convention will be outlined and an intensive campaign launched at a conference of Baptist leaders in Nashville on June 20 and 21, it was announced at the convention here today.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 19 (Associated Press).—The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, today perfected its plans for obtaining a superannuation fund of at least $10,000,000.

"Mob rule, organized or unorganized," was condemned and the pronouncements of the conference committees as to prohibition law enforcement, Armenian relief and other issues presented yesterday were approved.

LADY ASTOR ON MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Quebec, May 19.—Montreal is "a one-horse town," in the opinion of Lady Astor, who reached this city this evening, accompanied by Lord Astor, and delivered an address in which she bewailed the fact that in the Province of Quebec the women have not the vote in Provincial affairs, though all Canadian women have the Federal vote. However, said Lady Astor, she did not want to lecture Montreal, though "two-horse towns" did give women the vote.

She explained that she had come to Montreal largely because she was interested in women getting the franchise. Her contention was that backward countries denied woman the vote, and referred to Germany, where the "poor women carried the goods and their husky husbands walked along free." She said that could not happen in Canada or America, or in France. It was apparent that Lady Astor forgot she was in a province where women are not given the vote because, as the Quebec Prime Minister said, of the Latin temperament of the majority of people.

The women's organizations turned out in full force to meet Lady Astor. As her train passed through Ste. Anne de Bellevue, where a military hospital is located, a number of veterans boarded the train and shook hands with her. On arrival at the station she noticed a train hand on another train whom she had met in France when she served with the Canadian Red Cross, and she went over and shook hands with him.

MRS. HEARST GREETS WOMEN DEMOCRATS

Holds Large "Non-Political" Reception to Introduce New Club Officers.

MRS. HYLAN AMONG GUESTS

Hostess Says She Has No Candidate for Governor, but That Women Can Decide.

Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, in her apartment at 137 Riverside Drive, gave a large reception yesterday afternoon. Refreshments were served and Mme. Cechette of the Russian Opera Company sang. It was "non-political," Mrs. Hearst said.

Officers of the Women's Democratic Club, which held its annual election of officers a few weeks ago, were introduced. Mrs. Hylan, wife of the Mayor, was there. Mrs. John P. Sinnott, Mrs. Grover A. Whalen and Mrs. William Ashley were there also.

Mrs. Hearst, in a gown of soft gray and wearing pearls, laughed when she was asked if perhaps during the afternoon she was going to make a speech and announce a new candidate for Governor.

"Oh, no," she answered, her eyes twinkling. "I never make a speech and you may say at least that I have no candidate for Governor. Yes, certainly, I think the women of today are 'up and coming,' and they are pretty likely to vote for the right man if they like him and are interested in him.

"And if the women wanted a man I believe they would elect him. I vote and I believe in women's campaigning. The women work harder in politics than the men. It is only when there is a candidate up that the men work. They are occupied with their business and other things, but the women work all the time.

"I don't know why the year that the Governor is elected should be considered an off year in politics. The Governor is at the head of the State, and the women are directly interested in him and in his election, and they are not so directly interested in the election of a President."

"It means a great deal to be elected Governor of New York," interpolated some one. "It is the stepping stone to the Presidency. We in New York rule the country."

"At least we think we do," said Mrs. Hearst, with another laugh.

"Are you going to make a speech?" Miss Elisabeth Marbury was asked.

Mrs. Charles H. Alexander, Mrs. Alice Fischer Harcourt, Mrs. Mary Lilly, Mrs. J. Hedges Crowell, Mrs. Charles D. Hirst and Mrs. Harry Hastings were present. Mrs. Sadita E. Wilson, the only woman Deputy Sheriff of her county, also was there.

The officers of the Women's Democratic Club were the President, Mrs. John Enos Quinn; Vice Presidents, Mrs. John O'Leary, Mrs. Edward C. Hackney, Mrs. Ella O'Gorman Stanton, Mrs. Mathew O'Connell, Mrs. John Dumphy and Mrs. Emmett Ditney; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Alice C. Craft; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Martha Byrne; Assistant Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. J. S. Pesotti; Historian, Mrs. P. J. Gantt; Ways and Means, Mrs. Virginia Pierson, and Chairman of the Press Committtee, Mrs. John Robert Miller.

EARL FRENCH WILL UNVEIL BUST TODAY

Field Marshal Earl French will unveil a bust of Washington at the Hall of Fame at New York University this afternoon. Busts of Edgar Allan Poe, Maria Mitchell, astronomer; Mark Hopkins, educator, and Gilbert Stuart, artist, who painted the portraits of Washington, Jefferson and other early Americans, will also be unveiled.

The bust of Washington is a gift to the Hall of Fame from the New York Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Alfred H. Cochran, Regent, is Chairman of the committee which will present the bust. Edwin Markham will read a poem in unveiling the bust of Poe, which is the gift of J. Sanford Saltus. It was done by Daniel Chester French.

Alumni of Williams College, founded by Mark Hopkins, gave his bust, which will be unveiled by President H. A. Garfield of Williams. It is the work of Hans Hoerbst. The Maria Mitchell bust is the gift of her nephew, William Mitchell Kendall, and will be unveiled by President Henry H. McCracken of Vassar, where Miss Mitchell was Professor of Astronomy from 1865 to 1888. A committee, of which Herbert L. Pratt is Chairman, presented the bust of Gilbert Stuart, which will be unveiled by Miss Cecilia Beaux. It is the work of Mrs. Laura G. Fraser.

OUTLINE FOR WOMAN'S CLUB

Mrs. Willard Straight Tells Needs of 700,000 Workers.

A meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Willard Straight, 1,130 Fifth Avenue, yesterday afternoon, at which was outlined the plan for the new clubhouse for the Women's Trade Union League, to be called the Working Woman's Club House. A campaign is now being waged to raise $50,000 for the project.

The clubhouse will be in the factory district, somewhere between Fourteenth and Forty-second Streets. It is purposed to make it self-supporting by profits from a cafeteria, rent of the clubrooms to various organizations and membership dues.

In outlining the needs for the club house, Mrs. Straight said that there are 700,000 women engaged in "gainful occupations," and that such women, most of whom earn small wages, present a problem which should be faced by the more fortunate.

COUNT'S CASE POSTPONED.

Count Edward George Zichy, who recently married Miss Charlotte Gardiner Demarest, responded yesterday to the order obtained by Samuel J. Goldberg, who has a default judgment for $1,000 against him for damages to a taxicab, directing him to appear in the City Court to testify concerning his property. He smiled when told that the examination had been postponed until next Wednesday.

The adjournment was requested to await a decision of Municipal Court Justice Glore in Brooklyn, who is to hear on Monday an application by Count Zichy to open his default and permit him to defend the case.

HEADS COLGATE UNIVERSITY

Dr. Cutten, Once Yale Centre, Elected President.

Dr. George P. Cutten, President of Acadia University, Nova Scotia, has been elected President of Colgate University at Hamilton, N. Y., it was announced yesterday by James P. Colgate, Chairman of the Board of Trustees. The committee which nominated Dr. Cutten consisted of Dr. Willis E. Ford of Utica, Henry E. Colgate of New York and Wilfred W. Fry of Philadelphia.

Dr. Cutten was a once famous Yale centre. He has retained his interest in athletics despite his work as educator, writer and lecturer. During the war he was chief recruiting officer, and later head of the rehabilitating department, of the Halifax Relief Commission, an injury to his knee when he was a football player preventing him from going into active service. He is 48 years old. Before taking up educational work he was pastor of several Baptist churches.

RECEIVER FOR E. L. PATTON.

Bankruptcy Petition Is Filed Against Cotton Broker.

A petition in involuntary bankruptcy was filed in the Federal Court yesterday against Edward L. Patton, a cotton broker doing business at 61 Broad Street as E. L. Patton & Co. The petitioning creditors are H. W. Fairfax Advertising Agency, whose claim amounts to $400; R. Weinstein, $100, and Rankin & Young, $75.

Lester B. Freedman, counsel for the petitioners, said that Mr. Patton's trouble was due to the fact that he is a director in a concern charged with bucketing which caused his creditors to press him for settlement. Federal Judge Mack appointed Jesse W. Ehrich receiver.

DIGGING FOR STONES CARVED BY BACON

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 19.—Mysterious digging operations in the Chiltern Hills near Hitchin for some time have puzzled the country folk as well as archeologists. Mr. Safford, an Ohio man, formerly a resident of New York, is responsible, writes The Chronicle correspondent. He brought a party of laborers from London to undertake the work.

Four miles from Hitchin is a high, grassy moorland overlooking the Bedfordshire plains. It is traversed by an ancient British road, and there are also tracks of Roman construction. This is the scene of the excavations which have been in progress for weeks.

Under Safford's directions laborers dug many holes from six feet to twelve feet deep around a small conical mound which probably is prehistoric in design on the highest part of the moor. When questioned the laborers have given the impression they have been sworn to secrecy and in consequence there have been a plentiful crop of rumors about the real purpose of the digging.

Safford's explanation to The Chronicle correspondent of the operations is even more strange than some of these rumors that he is searching for a secret Baconian philosophy buried in various places in the form of emblems wrought in stone by a seventeenth century etcher in the confidence of the great Chancellor. Safford says he already has got together a considerable collection of these emblems marked on stones and he hopes to be able to publish an exposition of his theories with pictures of the emblems as illustrations. Safford believes Bacon committed the secrets of his philosophy to these emblems for reasons possibly best known to Bacon himself.

MODERN ARTISTS EXHIBIT.

Paintings and Sculpture on View Today at People's House.

There will open today at the People's House, 7 East Fifteenth Street, in connection with the bazaar of the Rand School Students' League an art exhibition with work by a group of the well-known exponents of the advanced modern school, given under the direction of Robert K. Whittier. The names speak for themselves: A. S. Baylinson, George W. Bellows, Ben Benn, Theresa Bernstein, Homer Boss, Louis Bromberg, Robert Chandler, Stuart Davis, Wood Gaylor, Robert Henri, Gaston Laphaise, William Auerbach Levy, Leander Leitner, John McPherson, Walter Pach, Morris Pantor, Willy Pogany, Hugo Robus, Bernard Karfiol, Frank W. Kidder, Maria P. Veniger, A. Walkowitz and Margaret and William Zorach.

There are some 100 paintings and twenty pieces of sculpture in several rooms on the fourth and fifth floors of the building. The exhibition will be open today from 12 o'clock noon to midnight, and will continue for a week. This is a free exhibition. A. S. Baylinson shows his distinctive portraits, one "The Lady with the Cigarettes;" Margaret and William Zorach have portraits, one, a child, by the former, a study in curves; Willy Pogany has a large portrait of Leo Larkadi and George Bellows, a life size portrait of Waldo Pierce. Theresa Bernstein shows a large group picture "The Meeting." W. Auerbach Levy exhibits a painting in delicate tones, "The Bridge." Leo Leitner a decorative, broadly painted picture of "Trees," and an interesting study of "Women's Heads" is by William Meyerowitz.

INJUNCTION HALTS CITY'S TUNNEL PLAN

HEARING SET FOR TUESDAY

Mayor, Board of Estimate and Other Officials Defendants—Project Illegal, Says Wallstein.

Upon the application of William J. Schieffelin, Chairman of the Citizens Union, Justice Leander B. Faber of the Supreme Court, Kings County, granted a temporary injunction yesterday restraining the city authorities from proceeding with their project of constructing a combined freight and passenger tunnel under the Narrows, connecting Brooklyn and Staten Island. He also directed them to show cause before Justice Lewis L. Fawcett next Tuesday why the injunction should not be continued during the trial of a taxpayer's action.

Mr. Schieffelin's action is brought on the ground that the construction of the tunnel would be the waste of from $60,000,000 to $100,000,000 of the taxpayers' money on an impracticable scheme, the chief purpose of which, it is claimed, is to embarrass or handicap the Transit Commission and the Port Authority, each of which has in contemplation the construction of a tunnel with which the tunnel favored by the Board of Estimate would interfere.

Mayor Hylan and the other members of the Board of Estimate, as well as the board's special committee, consisting of the Dock Commissioner, the Commissioner of Plant and Structures, Chief Engineer Arthur S. Tuttle and Borough Engineer Theodore S. Oxholm of Richmond, were made defendants. Leonard M. Wallstein appeared as attorney for Mr. Schieffelin.

Law Repealed, Says Schieffelin.

Mr. Schieffelin also contended that the law purporting to authorize the Board of Estimate to proceed with the construction of the tunnel had been repealed and that in any event it was unconstitutional. A statement issued by Mr. Wallstein on behalf of the Citizens Union said:

"The action is based upon the contention that to proceed with the project would be a sheer waste of public funds in an amount ranging from $60,000,000 to $100,000,000. The plaintiff's position is that the project is entirely beyond the power and authority of the Board of Estimate and that the statute under which the board has purported to act, namely, Chapter 700 of the Laws of 1921, does not authorize the present project, that it has been repealed and that in any event it was unconstitutional.

Justice Faber's order was made on the summons and complaint verified by Colonel Schieffelin and on an affidavit by Mr. Wallstein, setting forth the history and evolution of the project. This is the matter concerning which the Citizens Union wrote a letter of protest to the Board of Estimate, which the Mayor refused to permit the Secretary to read at its meeting of May 12 last.

"At the same time, the Mayor took occasion to abuse the Citizens Union and its officers. The union has not believed that such abuse merits the dignity of a reply, and, confining itself to the merits of the project, has brought this action to restrain the Mayor and his colleagues from wasting the taxpayers' money on pure moonshine."

Hylan Withholds Comment.

Mayor Hylan declined to comment upon the injunction when informed of the Citizens Union's action late yesterday afternoon, but is expected to have something to say about that organization, Mr. Schieffelin and Mr. Wallstein today.

As the project stands, the Board of Estimate has appropriated $580,000 for preliminary expenses for the construction of the tunnel, but immediate concurrence in the appropriation by the Board of Aldermen was blocked last Tuesday by its twelve Republican members. Under the rule the resolution concurring in the appropriation went to the Board of Aldermen's Finance Committee for two weeks.

A second appropriation of $3,500,000, designed for actual construction work on the shafts at each end of the proposed tunnel and on the approaches, which had been approved by the Board of Estimate, sitting as the Committee of the Whole, was filed by the board at its meeting yesterday. Borough President Matthew J. Cahill of Richmond said after the meeting that the board had decided to go slowly in the matter because of the possibility that the next Legislature might take the construction of the proposed tunnel out of its hands.

Persons who have believed that the Board of Estimate's interest in its tunnel was largely political and that its preliminary appropriation was designed to interfere with the Transit Commission and the Port Authority, said that Mayor Hylan and his colleagues would probably welcome Mr. Schieffelin's action, although they would denounce it publicly.

Competes With Other Plans.

The Board of Estimate's tunnel, which would carry both passengers and freight, is frankly competitive with the passenger tunnel from Brooklyn to Staten Island proposed by the Transit Commission, and the freight tunnel contemplated by the Port Authority to run under the Upper Bay from Greenville, N. J., to Bay Ridge, Brooklyn. Counsel for the Port Authority has already given an opinion that the law authorizing the Board of Estimate to construct a tunnel was unconstitutional. The same view was expressed recently by Governor Miller in a speech before the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce.

According to previous remarks by Mayor Hylan and other members of the Board of Estimate, it has been their opinion that construction of their Staten Island tunnel would prevent the construction of either of the other two. Objection to the board's tunnel was made recently by Le Roy T. Harkness, Transit Commissioner, who said no provision had been made for its operation or for connections at either end. Commissioner Harkness called attention to the danger of it lying idle in case it is constructed, and thus being a complete loss to the city.

Regardless of opposition expressed by the Mayor and the other members of the Boar dof Estimate, the Transit Commission announced yesterday that it would hold on May 24, 25 and 26 the first series of public hearings on its plan for the construction of new subways to cost $218,000,000.

Hylan Replies to Governor.

The proposed routes will be so considered that representatives of neighborhood and civic organizations and others interested may each have a certain day and period on which specific parts of the plan may be discussed. The schedule of such sectional hearings will be announced today.

Mayor Hylan, at the Board of Estimate meeting, replied to Governor Miller's charge that he was an "obstructionist." "The only obstruction that the members of the board are making," the Mayor said, "is the obstruction of the depredations of the traction gang."

The Mayor's remarks were made during a discussion of minor appropriations for the Transit Commission, which the courts have held are not within the discretion of the board.

"There are people going around the city talking about the Board of Estimate and saying some of its members are obstructing transit improvements," said the Mayor. "They are calling us obstructionists."

"There may be some obstruction to the re-election of some of the people who are going around talking about city officials," interjected Controller Charles L. Craig.

"I want to get this over correctly," continued the Mayor, looking pleased. "They say we are obstructing. They know we are obstructing the traction gang from getting a higher fare. I plead guilty to the charge that I am obstructing the traction crowd from getting $60,000,000 a year out of the people of the city. I want the people to get it thoroughly in their minds as to what we are obstructing."

Mayor Figures a Six-Cent Fare.

"We are obstructing the Interborough and the B. R. T. from operating with a flexible fare that would rise like a barometer," observed the Controller.

"Yes," responded the Mayor. "This unification scheme proposed by the Transit Commission will relieve the traction crowd of paying the city $11,000,000 in taxes. This would practically amount to a one-cent increase in fare. If they can get rid of paying that $11,000,000, it would be the same as a six-cent fare; but they're not going to get rid of that $11,000,000 and let the taxpayers of the city pay it."

Controller Craig remarked that $11,000,000 was enough to pay the interest on $218,000,000 for new subway construction.

"There may be some obstruction to that," the Mayor said.

The Transit Commission directed the receipt of bids on June 2 for the construction of a temporary car shed on the site of the Lenox Avenue shops, Lenox Avenue and West 147th Street, and for the installation of the necessary tracks and switches in that yard and in the East 180th Street yard in the Bronx. These additions to the facilities of these two yards, which serve the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, were made necessary by the commission's recent order to the company for the purchase of 250 new cars to improve its service. Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough, had testified that the operation of anything more than a few additional cars was impossible without increased yard facilities.

The temporary car shed at 147th Street is made necessary because the Board of Estimate failed to approve a contract for the construction of an addition to the present shops at 148th Street, for which bids were received more than a year ago. The commission directed readvertisement of this contract last Wednesday and that new bids be received on June 5, but the construction work is of such a character that the addition to the shops cannot be made ready in time for the needs of the Interborough for barn space to equip the new cars which the commission has ordered it to buy.

HIRSCH HELD IN BOND THEFT

Diamond Dealer Accused in Connection With Bank Robbery.

Henry Hirsch, a diamond dealer at 1,540 Broadway, was held in $30,000 for pleading next Monday by Judge Charles C. Nott in General Sessions yesterday on a bench warrant issued after his indictment for grand larceny in the first degree, in connection with the theft of $500,000 in Liberty bonds from the Chase National Bank. Hirsch was arrested just after he had been discharged by Magistrate Harris in the Tombs Court, before whom he was arraigned on an affidavit charging him with having acted in concert with the thieves who stole the bonds.

Besides Hirsch, those who have been indicted in the case are John W. Vardeman, or John W. Hollis, and his wife, now held in Savannah, Ga., and Arthur F. Chase, a former cowpuncher and up to the time of his arrest one of the guards at the Chase National. The Vardemans will be taken from Savannah to New York today.

JUDGE DENOUNCES PLEAS FOR ROBBERS

HE MAKES EXAMPLE OF ONE

Imposes 20-Year Maximum on Prisoner for Whom He Says Many Persons Sought Clemency.

People in New York still are appealing for mercy for worse highwaymen than Jesse James, according to Judge John F. McIntyre in General Sessions yesterday. Commenting from the bench upon intercessors for Thomas Lawry, 19, who entered a restaurant and held up customers with a pistol, in imposing a sentence of from ten to twenty years, Judge McIntyre said:

"I intend to make an example of crimes like this. Jesse James, the bandit of years ago, was a piker compared with some of the highwaymen operating today.

"I have been approached and asked to show clemency in this case by a number of people. I wonder if they are insane, to ask for mercy in a case like this. This crime wave prevalence here and throughout the country must be stopped.

"There is not a thoroughfare in this city which can be said to be free from robbers of your stripe. Fortunately most of these are not native New Yorkers, but have come here from elsewhere.

"You were a potential murderer. Had your victim or any other people in the place resisted your efforts to rob them, you would have killed them without giving it a second thought. The Legislature should make robbery in the first degree a capital offense, punishable by death. I regret that I cannot sentence you to fifty years in State's prison."

A total of more than 200 years in maximum sentences was imposed yesterday in General Sessions by Judges Rosalsky, Crain and McIntyre.

Judge Mancuso sentenced Francisco Sciarra, 35, to seven and a half to fifteen years in State prison. Indicted for murder in the first degree, he was convicted of manslaughter in the first degree. On Sept. 5 he cut the throat of Frank Bruno, a lodger at Mills Hotel No. 3, after a card game.

Judge Rosalsky sentenced Patrick Dealy, 27, of 385 Lenox Avenue, and Frank Devlin, 31, of 136 West 103d Street, to twenty years each in State Prison. Both are ex-convicts. On April 12 they held up the restaurant of Thomas Lloyd, 2,030 Lexington Avenue, and took $200 from the cash register. They were caught as they started for the taxicab in which they had arrived. Judge Rosalsky also sentenced Hubert Josephs, a negro, 20, of 3 West 137th Street, to serve ten years. He was captured while trying to hold up Detective William Hauptman of the West 135th Street Station March 8 in a hallway at 106 West 137th St. The detective killed one of the two negroes who accompanied Josephs. Charles Feary, 18, of 642 Third Avenue, who on March 18 robbed Samuel Kamerand, jeweler, of 577 Third Avenue, was sentenced to from eight to sixteen years in State prison. He had pleaded guilty.

Judge Crane sentenced four men to thirty-nine years and six months. One of them was Henry Sandford, 28, of 160 West 133d Street, who held up the same man twice in one day. Judge Crane also sentenced Julius Damio, 37, of 168 West 105th Street, and John Raggione, 35, of 139 Thompson Street to ten years each in State prison for holding up and robbing Joseph Riskin in East Broadway last month.

BRITISH LOCKOUT AVERTED.

Striking Cotton Spinners of Oldham District Will Return to Work.

MANCHESTER, England, May 19.—The threatened lockout of operatives in the cotton spinning trade to the number of 140,000 has been averted. The dispute was over the action of the workers at Royton and Middleton in the Oldham district, who were on strike against a new wage cut, the Master Cotton Spinners' Federation deciding to lock out the other workers unless the strikers returned.

Today announcement was made that the strike had been settled, and that the men would resume work Monday.

FIGHT FOR HOUSING TAKEN TO CONGRESS

WANTS MATERIALS LET IN

SHIP RATES CALLED BARRIER

Simmons Causes Flurry by Reading More Newspaper Protests on Tariff.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Charging that the sanctions of manufacturers of and dealers in building materials, due to a shortage of such materials, have brought about abnormal prices, and that these prices are the direct result of a series of criminal conspiracies, the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing of the State of New York has asked Congress to permit the importation of building materials now excluded through high tariffs. A memorial of the committee, submitted by Samuel Untermyer, its counsel, was filed in the Senate this afternoon by Senator Calder.

As soon as the memorial had been presented, Senator Robinson of Arkansas said that despite conditions such as were charged by the Lockwood committee there had been an urgent demand by New York brick dealers for higher duties on that basic building material and that the Senate Finance Committee has increased the duties from 20 to 225 per cent.

Replying to a question by Senator Robinson, Senator Calder said that if he had his way he would put bricks on the free list.

The increased duties proposed by the Senate Committee on Finance, Senator Robinson said, would accentuate existing conditions and would make it possible for the "domestic manufacturers to control absolutely the price of their product and to charge extortionate and unreasonable prices."

Text of the Memorial.

The memorial submitted by Mr. Untermyer for the committee reads:

"The undersigned, acting as counsel for and under the instructions of the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing of the Legislature of the State of New York, herewith presents this petition and memorial:

"The committee is now, and has been for upward of two years past, engaged in investigating housing conditions in the State of New York under various mandates from the Legislature of this State in the form of joint resolutions of the Senate and Assembly, copies of which will be found in the intermediate report of the committee, to which reference will hereafter be made.

"In brief, this investigation (which is still under way) has disclosed an alarming and increasing shortage of housing accommodations throughout the State, and more particularly in the City of New York, due in a large measure to the operations of illegal combinations among manufacturers of and dealers in well-nigh all the various lines of building materials and supplies that are necessary in construction, and in no small measure to corruption among labor leaders and to illegal rules, regulations and practices of labor unions.

Fines Called Ineffective.

"These illegal combinations among manufacturers, dealers, contractors and other employers, and among labor unions having their headquarters in New York, Chicago, Indianapolis and Cleveland, have been and are in many instances nationwide. Criminal prosecutions have been inaugurated at the instance of the committee by State and Federal authorities, resulting in many convictions, but these convictions, especially of employers, have in most instances resulted in the imposition of mere fines that have been insufficient to serve as an effective deterrent.

"The principal intermediate report of the committee outlining the results of its investigations to the end of January, 1922, is herewith submitted, from which a fair conception may be gathered of the outcome of its activities up to that time. Following the presentation of that report to the Legislature of the State of New York, accompanied by proposed legislation embodying the recommendations therein set forth, part of the program there recommended was enacted at the session that ended in March last.

"On account of the inability to present the report until shortly before the close of the legislative session, and for other reasons, the balance of legislation failed of passage although its most important features passed the Senate and were approved by the Governor.

Famine in Basic Materials.

"The committee is now still engaged in conducting the taking of testimony at its public hearings and finds the following situation has developed, and now is existing, which requires immediate attention at the hands of the Congress:

"A comprehensive program of housing construction has been perfected, part of which is under way, for which many millions of dollars have already been provided. A considerable part of this program is now actively under way, which if permitted to continue, will go far toward correcting the housing shortage, not only in the City of New York and throughout the State, but throughout most of the great cities of the country, the majority of which are affected by the housing emergency but in a lesser degree than the City of New York, where there is a shortage of housing accommodations of the cheaper class for about 400,000 people among the masses of workers, all of which is set forth in detail in the accompanying report.

"The result of this shortage has been an abnormal increase in rents, which the workers are unable to pay, and there have been and are consequent overcrowding and unsanitary and unlivable conditions. It was hoped and expected that the carrying out of the program of new construction would relieve this critical situation.

"The committee now finds that there is a famine in the basic materials required in building construction, such as bricks, sand, lime, cement, &c. The supply of these materials has been restricted in many cases through the operation of unlawful combinations and in other instances by reason of the phenomenal demand due to the increase of building activity that is essential to meet the emergency.

Abnormal Prices Demanded.

"The exactions of manufacturers and dealers in building materials due to this scarcity of supply have resulted in abnormal price increases and in some instances in the inability to meet the demands on any terms. Manufacturers and dealers are either unable or unwilling to satisfy these demands on a basis of reasonable prices over and above the actual cost.

"This situation prevails not only in the City of New York, but in many of the cities throughout the country, and for the same reason. Unless corrected, it threatens to paralyze the efforts to correct the present crisis.

"As illustrative of the extent to which oppression has been practised by these combinations above referred to, it appears from the evidence that at a time when the price of building sand was abnormally high, largely as the result of a monopoly in transportation facilities, a transatlantic steamer of the Munson Line brought as ballast into the port of New York a cargo of high class sand which it endeavored to market. Because of the then existing combination on the building materials market, no dealer or builder dared buy the sand, although it was of high quality, was greatly needed and could have been had for less than one-quarter of the price that was then being charged for a similar product. The steamship company was finally compelled at considerable expense to take the sand out to sea and there to dump it because of the grip of the monopoly.

Steamship Rates Hamper Imports.

"In this connection attention is also called to the incongruous fact that the Government of the United States, through the United States Shipping Board, is said to be itself a party to arrangements with foreign steamship lines to maintain exorbitant freight and passenger rates in the transatlantic trade, and as a result of these combinations there have been various increases in such rates that now are being maintained to the detriment of the building industry throughout the country.

"Unless this situation is corrected the continuance of these arrangements will materially interfere with the importation into this country of building materials unless Congress will, in fixing the tariff, make such reductions as will take into account the added cost of transportation due to the fact that our Government is party to combinations against which its anti-trust laws are directed.

"The only immediate remedy in sight is to permit the prompt importation into this country of building materials of the classes that are excluded through prohibitive tariffs, under cover of which the present profiteering demands are being exacted. The added cost of freight upon such importations due to combinations between the steamship companies increases the burdens to that extent.

"The committee would not favor and does not ask that the tariffs be fixed at a rate that will not yield the domestic manufacturers and dealers a reasonable profit over and above the present cost of production, but it has been demonstrated that the prices demanded have been grossly exorbitant, that they are the direct result of a series of criminal conspiracies between former competitors, and that the prices now exacted under stress of the present emergency are in some instances at least 50 per cent. above such reasonable profit.

"No relief that is not immediate will meet the situation. It cannot await the slow processes involved in the pending tariff revision by Congress. The committee asks that the subject be dealt with as an emergency measure, and that it shall be confined to the basic materials entering into housing construction which will involve a comparatively simple problem that can be readily dealt with.

"Respectfully submitted,

"SAMUEL UNTERMYER,

Assails Higher Brick Duties.

"The memorial presented by Senator Calder," said Senator Robinson, when the clerk had finished reading the document, "discloses a situation that is of very great importance. We have before us the report of the Lockwood committee touching on that indispensable building material, brick, and within a few hours we will proceed to the consideration of the schedule in which is included brick.

"Under the rates now imposed, 10 per cent. on fire brick, not glazed, 15 per cent. on glazed and similar brick, and 10 per cent. on other bricks, not including bath bricks, upon which there is a rate of 15 per cent., there are substantially no importations, and the brick industry in the large centres is absolutely controlled to the detriment of the public. The intermediate report of the Lockwood committee shows that for the first six months of 1920 brick delivered at the job in New York City cost $11.25 and that the selling price there was $28.75.

"Now, in spite of those conditions, the Finance Committee has brought here amendments to the brick schedule in the tariff bill increasing the existing rates from 20 to 225 per cent. on brick. I desire to ask the Senator from New York, who presented the memorial, if, in his opinion, any increase in the rate on brick is justified?"

Calder Declares for Free Brick.

"I would place brick absolutely on the free list, if I had my way," Senator Calder answered.

"The request for the duties on this material," Senator Calder continued, "came from the men who are on the border. Because of the fact that Canada charges a rate of duty of 25 per cent. against our brick, it was the disposition of some people in this country to have the same duty against Canadian brick that was levied against ours. I believe that the duty may be taken off, and not do any great injury to the manufacturers of brick; nor do I believe either that it would be of very great benefit to the consumers of brick.

"Let me add that we have had indictments and prosecutions and heavy fines levied against brick manufacturers in and about the city of New York, as the result of the investigation of the Lockwood committee. I am informed by people who claim to know that the combinations uncovered by that Committee do not now exist. I don't know whether that is true or not, but if they exist the people of New York City desire them prosecuted and the people responsible punished.

"The difficulty, however, is that we are today having tremendous building in and about New York City, and the men who manufacture brick have taken advantage of that great demand to raise prices unduly and, in my judgment, outrageously."

Warns of Strengthening Trusts.

"The point in the case is," replied Senator Robinson, "that with appalling conditions respecting building materials prevailing in New York, those who represent the organizations controlling the industry, at the same time that they were charging profits of from 200 to 225 per cent., at any rate enormous profits, were appealing to Congress for increased tariff duties and gave as their excuse the plea that unless these duties were levied their industry would be destroyed.

"The only effect of the proposed duty will be to give greater power to the combinations and trusts that are already controlling the right and privilege of the American people to build homes at a reasonable cost. I challenge Senators in the majority—and they can take their time while the brick schedule is under consideration to consider the matter—to give a reason for increasing the tariff on common brick. The manufacturers of common brick in this country have never been and can never be, by the nature of the industry, in competition with foreign manufacturers. If there is any purpose in the proposed increase, if it is to have any effect, it will accomplish the purpose of enabling the American manufacturers to enter into combinations among themselves to do elsewhere what they have done in New York City—rob the public."

Meant to Slay Bebe Daniels, Says Man Caught in Her Home

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—Deputy Sheriffs, answering a midnight call that there was a man in the home of Bebe Daniels, motion picture actress, intent on murdering her, arrested Charles Caprice, and today took him to a psychopathic ward to determine his mental condition.

Caprice, who surrendered without resistance, said that he came from San Francisco for the "express purpose" of slaying the motion picture actress under orders of a peddler of narcotics.

APPEAL TO CONGRESS OVER DAUGHERTY

SAYS HE CAN'T GET ACTION

Testimony Showing Profiteering in Court House Bids—Granite Men Tell of Union Abuses.

Declaring that although five months have elapsed since the Lockwood committee sent its report on the examination of the affairs of the General Electric Company to Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, Samuel Untermyer, counsel, yesterday suggested that the committee go over the head of the Attorney General and appeal to Congress in an endeavor to obtain belated justice.

Mr. Untermyer said that he had tried to get action on the case, but had not succeeded. His original position, which he repeated before the committee yesterday, was that sufficient testimony had been taken to disclose the urgent need for the prosecution of the General Electric Company in the Federal court at Toledo for criminal contempt on a charge of maintaining a monopoly of the sale of electric light lamps in the United States.

"We have been unable to get any action in the case of the General Electric Company thus far," he told the committee. "It is about five months since that testimony was presented here on which the distinct claim was made that there should be prosecution in the Federal court at Toledo for criminal contempt and prosecution of an indictment for maintaining a monopoly in electric light bulbs.

"I have tried and tried and tried again to get action in that case, but I have not been able to do so as yet. The subject is a simple one. It is largely contained in documents, and it would ordinarily require only a few days to put it into shape for prosecution."

After suggesting the appeal to Congress, Mr. Untermyer said he would decline to take any further responsibility in the matter. He said the committee had the facts, and he suggested that an executive session be taken to decide on what action the committee should take. A full attendance was not present, and the matter was put over until next week. A special meeting of the committee may be called in a few days to consider Mr. Untermyer's suggestion of immediate action.

Refers to Morgan Influence.

Mr. Untermyer also referred to the Attorney General's alleged tardiness in getting after the General Electric Company in a statement replying to Colonel William Hayward's defense of the Attorney General.

"He (Daugherty) has persistently refused our requests that the General Electric Company case and the cement cases be put in charge of Colonel Hayward," said Mr. Untermyer.

"Let him explain, if he can, his protracted non-action in the General Electric Company case, in which the influence of J. P. Morgan & Company has been and remains so potent, and his performance in another of these cases against our protest to which I will not at this time refer by name for reasons that Colonel Hayward understands.

"There are a dozen or more of these cases involving hundreds of defendants that are in danger of collapse because nothing whatever has been or is being done."

Mr. Untermyer declared he was not getting proper co-operation from Mr. Daugherty and nothing could be accomplished in the way of ridding the country of "industrial cancers" without the aid of the Department of Justice. He said he never expected to get co-operation from Mr. Daugherty, "where adverse influences of great financial interests are concerned, as in the case of the General Electric Company and a few others.

"The cases are dying from sheer neglect and will soon be dead unless Congress can be persuaded to do something to force the Attorney General's hand. That is what I am trying to bring about.

"In five cases out of every six that have been submitted to the Department of Justice not a thing has been done, and nothing will be done unless backed by public demand, which I propose to keep alive in so far as it can be done, notwithstanding Mr. Hayward's specious dodging of the facts or his contortion of my alleged motives, of which I am unaware, by which he foolishly seeks to cover his chief's tracks."

More Light on Court House Bids.

Because of the announced intention to open bids on June 2 for the new County court house, city officials were interested yesterday in disclosures by the committee of the extent of the profiteering in the collusive bids rejected after the Lockwood committee's revelations last year.

Patrick Ryan, builder of several bridges in this city and other large improvements, declared that not only was his offer to erect the structure of granite $601,000 lower than his next competitor, but that his bid was only about $127,000 above that of Henry Hanlein & Son, the successful bidder, who was to have used limestone for almost the entire structure. The Hanlein firm was a member of John T. Hettrick's "code of practice." Ryan was not. It was brought out that granite was two or three times as expensive as limestone and far more enduring.

"Even when the limestone men die they have granite tombstones erected over their graves," said Ryan in speaking of the durability of granite over limestone. "Go into any cemetery and you will find no limestone monuments."

Ryan's bid for an all granite court house was $2,490,000. The next all-granite bid was by John C. Rogers Co. for $3,109,000. Ryan testified that the Hanlein bid was $1,840,000 for limestone for the entire building above the first floor and basement and $500,000 for the granite construction of first floor and basement, making a total bid of $2,340,000.

Cheaper Offer From Indiana.

Michael Cohen, representative of Indiana limestone quarries, told Controller Craig, according to the witness, that his company would do the entire building in limestone for $700,000, but the witness said he told the Controller it would not be worth that much for nobody built court houses of limestone, as they would not endure because of weather conditions. Hanlein's limestone bid was $1,140,000 above that promised by Cohen.

Hanlein's bid for a nearly-all limestone court house was only about $127,000 less than Ryan's bid for an entire granite structure. The difference could have been made up in the carving alone, said the witness, as the carving in granite, hand work, was to cost about $175,000, while the carving on limestone, machine work, was to cost about $30,000 or $40,000.

Hanlein was charging the city at the rate of $14 a cubic foot for limestone, when he was asking $5 for it on a private business structure, said Ryan.

Ryan described the Board of Estimate meeting at which the contract was awarded to Hanlein. He was present, but was not permitted to speak. "I didn't get a chance," he said. He said that William P. Kenneally, then Vice President of the Board of Aldermen and Vice President of the Building Trades Council, told the Board of Estimate that union labor would not oppose the use of open shop steel on the Court House if the contract were made for limestone, so that local unions of limestone cutters could do the work.

Controller Craig then suggested that inasmuch as the Municipal Building was granite, the court house should be limestone, as "the contrast would be pleasing to the eye." The contract was then awarded to Hanlein.

Granite and Quarry Inquiry.

The committee got to the Court House situation by way of an investigation of two associations of granite and quarry men. One was the Building and Granite Manufacturers' Association, an organization of fourteen members in this city, and the other the National Building Granite Quarries Association, a nationwide organization.

Letters were read into the record showing how the local granite manufacturers obtained an agreement with the granite union requiring all work of less than 4,000 cubic feet to be brought into the city in the rough and not in the finished state so that the union men in this city might have the work.

Harry H. Sherman, Secretary of the national granite organization, told of the protest made by his members to James H. Duncan, President of the International Granite Cutters' Union, and of Duncan's reply that the arrangement had been suggested by the New York employers and afterward endorsed by the local union.

Jacob Schmitt, in charge of the subcontracting of stone work for Thompson-Starrett Company, said that after he had let a contract for stone to an outside firm he was visited by Samuel Squibb, business agent of the Granite Cutters' Union, who informed him that he might have trouble in getting the granite or in having it set. Schmitt said he was not a bit interested, but that the granite would be "set" or I would make a trip to the Court House."

The witness said he told Squibb that he could not buy as cheaply in New York as outside, and thereupon Squibb admitted to him that it was up to him to buy wherever he could get stone at the cheapest prices. He told of jobs he had done where the union violated its rule not to handle small jobs up to 4,000 cubic feet of granite if it was cut outside the city.

Charles L. Strong, New York representative of the Maine-New Hampshire Granite Corporation, said that the union rule had practically put his firm out of business for small jobs, so far as the New York market was concerned. Asked what he considered a small job he said he meant a job for up to 4,000 cubic feet, the price for that quantity varying from $25,000 to $40,000.

Labor Witness Complimented.

Squibb was then called and his frank and direct manner of testifying won a compliment from Mr. Untermyer and a spontaneous burst of applause from the audience. The counsel said that if more labor leaders were as intelligent and upstanding as Squibb the labor movement would be stronger.

Asked to explain the 4,000 cubic feet restriction, Squibb said that the resolution was adopted in the latter part of 1919 and it was intended to encourage the cutting of jobs up to 4,000 cubic feet in this city. He said that the resolution did not say that the union would not handle such jobs at all, and he added that the rule was not rigidly enforced.

He explained that in cases where the union heard an employer was contemplating letting a small job outside the city, he called on the builder "and by persuasive, not coercive methods," asked that in justice to the union men, the job be let in this city so that local men might cut the stone. He admitted that the enforcement of such a union rule might have the effect of eliminating competition.

Assemblyman Jesse asked if the union rule were applied to shoes and all other articles used in this State, whether it would not have the effect of increasing prices. Squibb thought probably it would. He admitted that if the rule were followed by other unions union labor would get the advantage of more work at the expense of free competition.

The witness, who is a member of the committee of the Building Trades Council negotiating for a new wage agreement with the Building Trades Employers' Association, went into the controversy quite fully, saying that the council has been trying to make a new wage agreement since last June, but that the employers insist on the council permitting the individual unions to make separate agreements with the employers. The employers insisted on an agreement for the balance of the year, while the unions wanted an agreement until 1924, the wages in 1923 to depend on the cost of living in 1922.

Wages in Building Trades.

Squibb was questioned about the demands of the union men for wages above the scale, and he said that unions were not in an agreement at the present time with the employers but were acting under a truce. He laid the fluctuating wage scale to the absence of an agreement, and promised that if an agreement were made and the employers co-operated with the union the workers would stabilize wages at the agreed rate, subject to the terms of the agreement.

The witness charged that the employers were attempting to weaken the unity and combined strength of the Building Trades Council by its insistence on individual agreements. He promised that if labor were scarce the unions would see to it that men were brought from outside to cope with the situation.

Randolph H. Almiroty, an architect, testified that the granite contract for the Excelsior Savings Bank was estimated for $17,200 by an outside quarryman and for $30,950 by a local granite manufacturer.

Through John Leslie, former Secretary of the local Granite Men's Association, and George F. Ethier, present Secretary, Mr. Untermyer brought out that the association on Sept. 1, 1921, decided that contractors should charge $15.75 for a $9 workman's day when the man was engaged on contract work. References to a code of practice were found in the books kept by Leslie, and he said he used the words carelessly in those days. He said there was no code of practice. Mr. Ethier said he was manager for Peter Neary & Son of Astoria, of which firm Assemblyman Edward Neary is a member. Assemblyman Neary was a member of the Lockwood committee until last Summer, when he resigned to devote his time to his campaign for County Clerk of Queens.

Former Senator Edgar T. Brackett, counsel to several of the executives of steel companies, sent a note to the committee that the men could not be present yesterday. Mr. Untermyer said they would appear next week. An adjournment until next Thursday at 10:30 A. M. was announced.

Editor, 69, Gives $10,000 to Aid Home Town In Joy Over His Conquest of Widow of 40

The celebration of his wedding by giving $10,000 to public institutions in New Brunswick, N. J., was made known yesterday by Hugh Boyd, editor and principal stockholder of the New Brunswick Daily Home News, who was married in the Broadway Tabernacle Congregational Church, New York City, last Thursday, to Mrs. May Roof, of Seattle, Wash. Boyd is 69 years old and his bride about 40.

Under the caption, "An Announcement and an Appreciation," in an article in the Home News yesterday, Mr. Boyd stated that his gratitude to the public for their support in his journalistic career (he has lived in New Brunswick for twenty-two years), would take the form of the following gifts:

One thousand dollars each to the First Baptist Church, St. Peter's General Hospital, the Middletown General Hospital, the Children's Industrial Home and the local Young Women's Christian Association's building fund, and $5,000 for a public comfort station to be built in the town of New Brunswick. In a postscript he said:

"There are existing causes for everything that happens. Perhaps to the conquest made by Mr. Boyd in Los Angeles where he knew Mrs. Roof) in the last six months is to be attributed his present benevolent impulse."

TARIFF EDITORIALS UP IN SENATE AGAIN

ATTACKS BILL GENERALLY

Asserts That There Is a Wide, Growing Revolt Against It Even Among Republicans.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Newspaper editorials attacking the Administration tariff bill caused another flare-up today in the Senate during the consideration of that measure. The editorials were read by Senator Simmons of North Carolina, a Democratic leader, in the course of an address in which he attacked the bill generally and asserted that there was a growing revolt against it over the country and even among Republican Senators.

In reply Senator McCumber of North Dakota, who is in charge of the measure, renewed his declaration that the newspapers attacking the bill were influenced by advertisements of importers and said that any professions to the contrary notwithstanding, the reading of the editorials was for the purpose of delay. He was joined in his attack on the publications by Senator Gooding of Idaho, chairman of the Republican agricultural tariff bloc, who said that the New York dailies were not going to permit a tariff on farm products if they could help it.

The discussion was brought to a close by Senator Heflin of Alabama, who attacked the majority for approving what he termed high duties on paints, salt and other necessities of the farming population. He ended with the declaration that the Republicans proposed to put a tax on "everything from the cradle to the grave."

In the course of his attack, Senator Simmons charged that the Tariff bill was the product of a "deal" among Republican Senators "which neither side to the trade was satisfied with."

"Protection on agricultural products is obnoxious to the 'Old Guard,'" he declared, "and duties on manufactured products are equally obnoxious to the agricultural interests."

He said that the "Old Guard" would not have been able to pass a bill with "these high rates on manufactures unless the agricultural element was placated."

Senator Simmons said that the bill had been "dictated by the high protectionists manufacturers of New England" and charged that all through the chemical schedule there was "the trail of the manufacturers of explosives and dyestuffs."

Asserting that he was from an agricultural State and did not want to see agriculture "slaughtered" by a tariff bill, Senator Simmons added that he was hopeful that Republican Senators from the great farming States would come to "see their error" before it was too late.

He told the Senate that the editorials which he had read to the Senate some time ago had had an "amazing" effect. Those in charge of the bill had remained silent up to that time, he said, refusing to offer any explanations, but now they not only explained the rates, but they proposed to modify some of the "high rates," originally proposed.

Referring to the fights that had been made on certain items by Senators Lenroot of Wisconsin and Norris of Nebraska, Senator Simmons said their attitude foreshadowed a movement that was "growing day by day not only in this body but in the country."

Replying to Senator Simmons, Senator McCumber said he did not wish to get into any long discussion with the newspapers "who get their advertisements from the importers and are necessarily influenced by their source of supply."

Referring to Senator Simmons's comment on the action of Senators Lenroot and Norris, the Finance Committee Chairman said it was not an unusual sight to see Democratic Senators "crawling and fawning and flattering and kneeling at the feet of some Republican Senators whom they think they can bring over to their views." He added that there might be some "flirting," but that Republicans would remain Republicans.

Another committee amendment was withdrawn from consideration today after it had come under fire from the Republican side. It proposed a duty of 40 per cent. ad valorem on strontium nitrate used in the making of the light signals of railroads and fireworks. Senator Willis of Ohio moved to cut the duty in half, saying that only one company manufactured it in quantity and that this company was under investigation by the Federal Trade Commission.

The Ohio Senator declined to name the company, explaining that he had always held that the Senate was not the proper place in which to attack or advertise corporations or individuals. Senator Smoot of Utah said, however, that the principal manufacturer was the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company.

Senator Willis asserted that the producer sold to one manufacturer of signal lights at a price below that charged to the other four or five domestic manufacturers and that if the committee rate became law those companies would be under a serious handicap.

After a three-hour discussion, in which half a dozen Senators participated, Chairman McCumber asked that the paragraph go over so that the committee might consider it further.

The committee rate of 2 cents a pound on potato starch was attacked by Senator Fletcher of Florida as being "without excuse," and too high to be of benefit to the Government as a producing project. Senator Hale of Maine said that unless the rate was retained there was little hope that the starch factories ever would get on their feet again.

Mr. Fletcher submitted an amendment, which was voted down, making the duty 1 cent a pound. The committee rate was then sustained without a roll-call.

PINCHOT FAVORS HARDING FOR 1924

Says He Will Urge a Unanimous Renomination if He Heads His State's Delegation.

COMES HERE ON BUSINESS

And Has to Defer His Plans for Fishing—His Lead Over Alter Is Now 12,001.

Special to The New York Times.

MILFORD, Pa., May 19.—Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for Governor, came back to the home of his ancestors today to rest, but his plans to devote the rest of the week to catching trout in the Pike County streams were spoiled by a call to New York on personal business.

Before he left he made a statement wherein he declared for the renomination of Harding for President in 1924. In the statement he said, speaking of State affairs first:

"During the campaign I repeatedly expressed my belief that no one could succeed as Governor of Pennsylvania under present circumstances by playing a lone hand. Being the candidate of the Republican Party, I have already begun to put that belief into practice. In addition to numerous consultations held before I left Philadelphia I have arranged for a number of similar conferences, which will take place at Milford.

"I do not care what the Democratic newspapers say. They are only trying to make trouble. I shall not comment upon their efforts to breed dissension in the ranks of the Republican Party.

"I have said several times since last Tuesday that my victory would mean a solidarity of the party in this State in the Fall and should not give the opposition party any cause for rejoicing. I say that again. I have not given a thought yet to the next meeting of the Republican State Committee and, of course, I think it is a little too early for me to be thinking of the State Chairman, the National Committee or the Attorney Generalship.

"Some people are even discussing my probable actions as head of the Pennsylvania delegation to the next national convention, provided I am elected Governor. They are linking this gossip with what they have chosen to term my possible Presidential aspirations. If I do get to the convention as the head of the Pennsylvania delegation, I expect to see just one event—the unanimous renomination of President Harding."

Mr. Pinchot, within ten hours of his arrival, had mapped out plans for an immediate investigation of the financial conditions of the State and had called to his aid Professor Clyde King of the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. King will arrive tomorrow. He and Mr. Pinchot will perfect the plans for the inquiry. The nominee is going to ask some of the leading financial experts of the State to give voluntary service in connection with the drafting of a report upon which a modern budget system can be devised. Mr. Pinchot wants this report prepared for submission to the first legislative session of his administration.

Sees No Repudiation of Harding.

Gifford Pinchot paid a flying visit to New York yesterday afternoon and was stopped long enough on lower Broadway to say that he did not see how his vote in Pennsylvania could be construed as a repudiation of President Harding. Mr. Pinchot said it between jumps, as he was trying to catch up with some of his personal affairs which he had neglected during the campaign.

Mr. Pinchot was curious as to whether the later returns had increased his majority over Alter. When asked to what he ascribed his success, he slapped his fingers into the palm of his other hand, and said:

"First, the women; second, progressivism, and third, the mismanagement and extravagance at Harrisburg."

"National issues?" he said, with a laugh. "I haven't had time to think about them, or what part they may have played. All I am sure of is that the vote is not a repudiation of President Harding."

"But don't you think that your nomination and Mr. Beveridge's are something more than a coincidence?" he was asked.

"I haven't been thinking of national issues, and I haven't had time to sit down and study all the causes," he replied. "The campaign has kept me so busy that local matters have been all I have paid attention to. I am up here just for the day to do a few things which I have neglected too long. I suppose I have a thousand telegrams to answer."

Mr. Pinchot started on his long legs again down the street, turning to shout over his shoulder thanks for congratulations and to say that he was "going after them."

Pinchot's Lead Now 12,001.

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—Official count of the vote at Tuesday's primary was begun today in all counties of the State and in several of the smaller counties it was completed before nightfall. Eight counties, reporting official figures, showed no change in the unofficial vote for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination, but additional unofficial returns from other counties increased the lead of Gifford Pinchot over Attorney General George E. Alter, until tonight it stood at 12,001.

A large number of the returns received tonight were from Northumberland County, where hitherto 60 of the 101 districts had failed to report. Northumberland's official count gave Pinchot a majority in the county of 4,423 and reduced Alter's vote by nearly 1,200.

Only 196 Election Districts out of 7,934 in the State are now missing. The unofficial vote in the 7,738 districts thus far heard from is: Pinchot, 501,381; Alter, 489,380.

HOUSING FOR 150,000 UNDER WAY ON APRIL 10

Mann Reports 1,340 Tenements With 115,000 Rooms Costing $129,000,000.

Housing for approximately 30,000 families, or 150,000 persons, was under way on April 10 last, according to figures made public yesterday by Tenement House Commissioner Frank Mann. The figures showed that 1340 tenements, costing approximately $129,000,000, with nearly 115,000 rooms, were in the course of construction.

Manhattan, 108 tenements, containing 4,976 apartments (20,195 rooms), at an estimated cost of $33,316,000;

Bronx, 349 tenements, containing 14,066 apartments (49,956 rooms), costing $52,368,500;

Richmond, 3 plans for 3 tenements, containing 165 apartments (666 rooms), costing $845,000.

According to Commissioner Mann, there were constructed in this city during the last twenty years 26,733 tenements, containing 413,488 apartments (1,787,171 rooms), costing $967,178,825.

For the period 1902 to 1905 inclusive there were constructed 3,776 tenements, containing 58,052 apartments (249,321 rooms), costing $119,500,276.

Girl He Shot for Refusing Him to Wed Him After All

Vincent Licardi, 20 years old, of 22 Stanton Street, obtained bail in Essex Market Court yesterday so that he could marry Margaret Polanti, 18 years old, of 235 East 117th Street, whom he shot and wounded on May 8, when she rejected his proposal of marriage. Licardi is in the prison ward at Bellevue Hospital and the girl is at St. Vincent's Hospital, but both are said to be recovering. Licardi, who shot the girl at the factory of the Regal Doll Company, 50 West Houston Street, had turned the automatic on himself.

25 DRY AGENTS HERE TO LOSE JOBS TODAY

ALARM SENT OUT FOR TUG

Collector of Port Wants the Bickle to Explain Transfer of Liquor From Seized Sloop.

Twenty-five Federal prohibition agents whose records he deems unsatisfactory will be dropped today from the payrolls of the Federal Prohibition Department by Ralph A. Day, Federal Prohibition Director. Mr. Day has just returned from Washington. Commissioner Haynes approved the move. It is reported that other agents will be dismissed within a few days for failure to produce results satisfactory to Mr. Day.

An alarm was sent out along the Atlantic Coast yesterday by George W. Aldridge, Collector of the Port of New York, for the capture of the 250-ton tug boat William C. Bickle, of the Forsyth Towing Line, 15 Moore Street, which is wanted to explain the tug's alleged connection with bootleg operations off the New Jersey coast. The legal department of the Custom House said it was charged the William C. Bickle took several hundred cases of whisky from the sloop Grace and Edna, which was seized a few days ago by the Government rum-searching boat Hahn.

The William C. Bickle, according to Captain George W. Tawes of the Hahn, left the sloop when the "prohibition navy" boat pulled alongside the rum-runner. Efforts to stop the tug were unavailing. Captain Tawes found more than 1,000 cases of whisky aboard the sloop, which was seized.

The tug is equipped with a wireless outfit of small radius, and an effort was made yesterday by officials of the towing line to communicate with her. Charles A. Mason, general manager of the New York Tow Boat Exchange, 11 Bowling Green, which has more than 200 tug lines as members, including the Forsyth line, said he believed the authorities were acting too hastily. He added that Mr. Forsyth, President of the concern, was a man of high character and ideals, and could not in any way be mixed up in bootlegging operations.

Line Disclaims Mystery.

Denial was made at the offices of the Forsythe Towing Company that there was any mystery attached to the movements of the William C. Bickle. It was said the tug was out on a cruise for business with the President of the line at the helm. Officials were emphatic in their denials that the tug had been used in handling smuggled liquors.

The John F. Hylan has been seeking the tug. It was reported that the tug eluded her pursuer after being sighted.

Captain Theodore H. Densmore, master, and Clinton Saunders, pilot, of the British sloop Grace and Edna, seized Monday off the Jersey coast, were taken yesterday to Newark and placed in the Essex County Jail in default of $2,500 bail each as material witnesses.

A young woman, whose name was not disclosed, was arrested in the afternoon at Bivalve, N. J., by the New Jersey State Constabulary. It was said she had been engaged in bootlegging among the oyster planters of that section. A man was arrested with her. His name was also withheld.

The trial will begin next Monday in the Federal Court in Brooklyn of Antonio Cassese, Captain Charles Oman and George Muller, who are charged with violating the Volstead act in connection with the seizure of the Edith at Bayville, Long Island, a short time ago with a large quantity of liquor aboard. Cassese is said to be in Miami, Fla., gathering witnesses.

Finds 3 "Withdrawal" Rings.

Zone Chief John D. Appleby of the force of general Federal prohibition agents announced that his investigations of forged withdrawal permits for the withdrawal of liquors in small quantities indicated that there were three separate "rings" of bootleggers using this method of obtaining liquor supplies. Permits for fourteen cases of whiskey do not have to be verified and the bootleggers took advantage of this fact.

Mr. Appleby said that five distillers in Kentucky and Pennsylvania are involved. He indicated that action will also be taken against the distillers as well as the drug firms which are alleged to have received the liquors on the forged permits. Mr. Appleby is also investigating alleged illegal withdrawals of liquors from warehouses in this State. According to Mr. Appleby, druggists in Manhattan, Bronx and Brooklyn had paid $20,000 cash in advance for the liquor consigned to them and seized in raids in the express offices Thursday in Jersey City and Brooklyn. The dealers in the forged papers charged $35 for a set of withdrawal permits. The price of the liquor was $35, making $70 a case that the druggists had to pay.

Prohibition agents Thursday night arrested Frank L. Alsano, 88 Nesbitt Street, Newark, formerly a holder of a sacramental wine permit, and seized 225 barrels and 1,100 bottles of wine.

MORSE CASE IS ARGUED.

Court Hears Pleas on Behalf of Four Other Defendants.

Argument on behalf of four of the defendants named with Charles W. Morse and others in an indictment for conspiracy to defraud by the use of the mails in connection with the affairs of the United States Steamship Company, was heard by Judge Augustus N. Hand in the United States District Court yesterday. Motions to quash the indictment and pleas in abatement were argued on behalf of Stuart G. Gibboney, William A. Harber and Martin J. Gillen. Demurrers were filed without argument by counsel for Arthur Kohler, Lawrence Bremer and Milton C. Quimby. George M. Burditt argued his own motion for a demurrer.

Judge Hand reserved decision on all the motions submitted and gave the defendants until June 1 to file briefs with the Government and until June 8 to file final briefs.

Former United States Attorneys H. Snowden Marshall and Francis G. Caffey appeared for Gibboney and Barber and Emory G. Buckner represented Gillen. United States Attorney William Hayward, his first assistant, John E. Joyce, and Fletcher Dobyns, a special assistant to the Attorney General, represented the Government.

Mr. Dobyns denied several assertions made by the defendants' counsel as to his connection with the case. He said that as special counsel for the Emergency Fleet Corporation he was paid out of the United States Treasury, and that he received no pay as assistant to the Attorney General. Mr. Buckner, for Mr. Gillen, argued that there were no facts submitted to connect his client with any crime.

DEMAND REMOVAL OF PRENDERGAST

Ridgewood Council, Charging That He Favors Gas Concern, Asks Governor to Act.

WANT CITY TO BUY PLANT

Community Resolution Sent to Albany Is Read at Board of Estimate Meeting.

MILLER WILL CONSIDER IT

Mayor Suggests That, Through Governor, Gas People Be Requested to Pay Service Head's Salary.

A delegation of members of the Ridgewood Community Council appeared before the Board of Estimate yesterday and asked that a public hearing be held to consider the question of the city acquiring the property of the Newtown Gas Company. The suggestion was made by James B. Emerick, Chairman of the council, who incidentally remarked that at the council's meeting on Thursday night a resolution had been adopted calling upon Governor Miller to remove William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the Public Service Commission. This resolution, Mr. Emerick said, had been sent to the Governor.

The quarrel between the council and the Public Service Commission began recently during hearings concerning the candle power of gas supplied by the Newtown company. Controversies increasing in bitterness between the representatives of the council and the commission culminated at a hearing on May 16, when Mr. Prendergast ruled that testimony of laymen would not be accepted concerning the quality of gas used for domestic purposes. He said only expert testimony would be admitted to the record.

At the meeting were about fifty persons, nearly all women, many of whom wanted to testify that the quality of gas sold them was very poor. The company is a subsidiary of the Brooklyn Union Company, which supplies the gas which the Newtown Company distributes.

One of the Tilts.

Mr. Emerick, incensed at the position of Chairman Prendergast, said: "The people have no standing here; they are beaten before they start." The remark was stricken from the record by order of the Chairman, but Mr. Emerick insisted that it remain in the record.

"You are impertinent," Chairman Prendergast retorted, and held that Mr. Emerick had no right to say what the record should contain. After a few more acrimonious remarks, the delegation withdrew with the intention of complaining to Mayor Hylan. Later in the day Judson Dykman, counsel for the Newtown Company, asked that the case be dismissed by Chairman Prendergast, who declined, saying that it should be kept open, to the end that better understanding of the situation might be obtained.

The resolution adopted by the council calling for the removal of Chairman Prendergast were as follows:

"Whereas, at a meeting of the Public Service Commission of the State of New York, held before William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the said commission, on the 16th day of May, 1922, the consumers of gas of the Newtown Gas Company were denied the right to testify in their own behalf, and their testimony heretofore given stricken from the record, but the gas company was permitted to introduce such evidence as it chose to offer, irrespective of its competency or materiality; and

"Whereas, this is only one of the many tyrannies, unfair and incompetent actions of said Commissioners, whose attitude has been at all times opposed to the consumer and in favor of the gas companies.

"Therefore, be it Resolved, That the Honorable Nathan L. Miller, Governor of the State of New York, be, and he is hereby, petitioned to remove said William A. Prendergast as Public Service Commissioner of the State of New York."

Mayor's Comments.

Mr. Emerick, who signed the resolution as the chairman of the council, read it to the Board of Estimate. Mayor Hylan asked:

"Who is this Commissioner who says that the consumers' testimony should not be admitted?"

"Commissioner Prendergast," replied Mr. Emerick.

Then the Mayor said:

"I understand that Prendergast would not let a woman testify that she could not get enough heat out of Newtown gas to boil an egg. Prendergast belongs to that high class who calls us obstructionists. I would suggest that you have the Governor appeal to the gas company to pay Prendergast's salary. It would be more appropriate than having the taxpayers do so. Those women who appeared before Mr. Prendergast were poor unfortunates, who, like myself, haven't the good fortune to be college graduates."

The Mayor supplemented this with a statement that to be able to testify before the Public Service Commission one would have to be a member of some Greek Letter College Fraternity.

Then, as an afterthought, he said:

"What surprises me is that Prendergast is not a college graduate himself."

Mr. Emerick closed the matter with this comment:

"You would be surprised how anxious Prendergast is to please the gas companies. He calls Mr. Dykman, the gas company's agent, 'Jack,' and one occasion, when he had to decide adversely to the gas companies he remarked, 'Now, you know, Jack, I've really got to do this.'"

Has Not Yet Reached Miller.

Governor Miller said last night at the Republican Club he had not been informed of the request for Commissioner Prendergast's removal.

"I suppose," he added, "that I shall see it when I reach Albany and shall then give it consideration."

Mr. Prendergast, who is in Albany, said he would consider it an honor if he were removed from office on such charges as those preferred against him by Mr. Emerick of the Ridgewood Council.

In reference to the charge that he had not permitted the consumers of the Newtown Gas Company to present their side of the controversy, he said:

"The fact is that the Legislature alone has the power to accord that right. Mr. Emerick, with his customary stupidity, did not know that. It is perfectly ridiculous."

ADVISED TO ACCEPT INTERBORO'S TERMS

SCRIP FOR DIVIDENDS DUE

Payment of Back Taxes, $2,000,000 for Improvements and Representation on I. R. T. Board Promised.

Additional details of the readjustment plan, proposed by Judge Julius M. Mayer, for the reduction of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company's lease of the elevated lines of the Manhattan Railway Company were made public yesterday in a letter to the Manhattan stockholders by their Stockholders' Protective Committee, signed by Alvin W. Krech, Chairman; Lewis L. Clarke, Bertram Cutler, Alfred Skitt, Frederick Straus and Thomas H. West Jr. The letter recommended acceptance of the plan and the deposit of stock, under the proposed arrangement, with the Equitable Trust Company.

On May 1, the Interborough was in default under its lease $2,755,000 for taxes in arrears and $2,100,000 for dividends due Jan. 1 and April 1, 1922. Further taxes of $1,000,000 will become due this month and a further payment of dividend rental will fall due on July 1.

The letter stated that among the benefits to Manhattan stockholders under the proposed plan would be the payment by the Interborough before July 2 of $2,500,000 toward the discharge of taxes on the Manhattan properties, the payment of the three instalments of dividends, amounting to $3,150,000, in scrip of the Interborough Company about Aug. 1, the payment of the balance of Manhattan taxes within twelve months, the expenditure of at least $2,000,000 on improvements to the Manhattan properties, and due representation for the Manhattan Railway Company on the Interborough Board of Directors.

They would also include surrender by the Interborough in the controversy over the $27,000,000 spent in improvements to the Manhattan properties, largely by third-tracking; the payment of dividends on Manhattan stock, beginning July 1, 1922, of 3 per cent. for the first year, 4 per cent. for the second year and 5 per cent. for the third and succeeding years; a provision that no dividends should be paid on Interborough stock until after Manhattan stock payments had been made with an additional provision for increased dividend payments to Manhattan stockholders after the payment of 4 per cent. on Interborough stock, and a provision that the Manhattan stockholders might retake their property in case of the failure of the Interborough to make the required payments.

"If the plan of readjustment should be adopted," the letter continued, "the appointment of a receiver for the Interborough, now imminent, would be avoided; the payment of dividends on Manhattan stock would be promptly resumed, the taxes and back rental would be paid in full, Manhattan stockholders would not be required to raise the cash necessary for independent operation, the probability of long and serious litigation would be reduced to a minimum, and a complete plan of rehabilitation of the Interborough properties would be provided for and should be carried out, involving the expenditure of upward of $20,000,000 provided for by the plan, in which the Manhattan stockholders will have a vital interest, as their new dividends should be predicated upon earnings of the system as a whole.

"If the plan should be rejected, a receiver of the Interborough Company would be appointed, who would take possession of and operate the Manhattan properties for a period of probably two years, during which it is probable that no Manhattan dividends would be paid."

The letter added that, if the Manhattan Company should retake its property, the stockholders would have to raise a total of $7,253,000 for back taxes and independent operation, $2,253,000 for back taxes, $2,000,000 for improvements and deferred maintenance, $2,500,000 to restore independent power facilities and $500,000 for working capital.

DUSKY TRIO AT WHITE HOUSE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Matthew, Mark and Luke were guests at the White House today.

Three dusky youths, wards of the Regent of Abyssinia, who have come to this country to complete their education, gave these names to the doorkeeper at the White House, for presentation to the President.

The task of guiding the "favorite sons" through the channels of an American education has been entrusted to Representative Moore of Ohio, who has selected the alma mater of President Harding in which to matriculate the trio. Upon leaving Washington, Matthew, Mark and Luke will go to New Concord, Ohio, to enter Muskingum College, the successor to Ohio Central College, where the President was a student.

Matthew, Mark and Luke have spent a year studying in India and it is understood that they expect to study in London and Paris before returning home.

FORD SEES 6,000,000TH CAR.

Watches Installation of Motor in His Big Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, May 19.—Twenty years ago Henry Ford made his first automobile. Yesterday morning he stood in his factory in Highland Park and saw the motor for car No. 6,000,000 assembled. Soon afterward the motor was installed and another completed automobile was rolled out of the shop.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—President Harding was asked in a memorial presented to him today by Thomas F. Flaherty, Secretary of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, "to assist in obtaining a proper observance of the postal eight-hour law."

Mr. Flaherty said that many clerks in the larger Post Offices were working ten hours daily, and added:

"We want to strengthen the President's position in his commendable efforts to secure a shorter work day for workers in the steel industry, but it is obvious that the Government must apply this principle in its largest civil establishment before it can consistently urge its adoption by the steel manufacturers."

GLOTZBACH CANCELS SUIT.

Says He Won't Oppose Matzenauer's Efforts to Get Divorce.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19.—Floyd Glotzbach, chauffeur, of Del Monte, Cal., today instructed his attorney to cancel his divorce petition filed several weeks ago as a counter-action to the suit brought by his wife, Mme. Margaret Matzenauer, grand opera singer. Her suit was instituted in New York after their separation.

Glotzbach said he would not oppose her efforts to get a divorce.

WILL HONOR OUR 40,000 BURIED IN FRENCH SOIL

Paris Legion Post Will Decorate Graves in Six Permanent National Cemeteries.

PARIS, May 19 (Associated Press).—The graves of 40,000 American soldiers will be decorated by the Paris Post of the American Legion on Memorial Day. This is 24,000 fewer than the number decorated last year, the reduction being due to the return of bodies to the United States.

While the legion laid flowers on American graves in 347 cemeteries last year, all the bodies remaining in France have now been buried in six permanent American national cemeteries, with the exception of sixty places where relatives have asked that the bodies be undisturbed.

Ambassador Herrick is Honorary President of the American Memorial Day Committee. The ceremonies will begin in the morning with services at Holy Trinity Church and a memorial mass at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. The Ambassador, escorted by all the American service men in Paris, will lay a wreath on the tomb of the unknown poilu immediately after the church services.

The principal ceremony will be at Suresnes, near Paris, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, where Ambassador Herrick and Major Gen. J. G. Harbord will speak. The exercises at Château-Thierry and Belleau Wood will be simple but impressive. General Harbord, who commanded the Second Division, will speak on behalf of the army, and Captain Frank W. Upham, the Naval Attaché here, will speak for the navy.

Major Gen. Peter Harris, Adjutant General of the United States Army, will be the chief speaker at Romagne, where 20,000 American soldiers were buried. General Harris lost a son in the fighting near Romagne.

Dr. Henry van Dyke will speak at Fère-en-Tardenois and Colonel J. G. Mays and E. C. Corrigan, the latter American Consul at Havre, will be the speakers at Thiaucourt.

The American Legion will send special delegations with flowers to the sixty scattered places in France where Americans who fell in the war are buried.

PLAN LEAGUE OF CITIES.

Hylan Receives Out-of-Town Delegation Fighting "Corporate Greed."

Mayor Hylan and the other members of the Board of Estimate received yesterday afternoon a delegation of Mayors, corporation counsel and public utility commissioners from New Jersey interested in the bill introduced in Congress by Representative Bacharach of Atlantic City to prevent Federal Courts from interfering with orders of State commissions having control of public utilities.

It is generally conceded that the bill has little chance to pass. The conferees yesterday resolved to organize an American League of Municipalities composed of cities of 50,000 or more inhabitants to fight the "growing menace of corporate greed," as the situation was described by Mayor Hylan.

Judge John J. Tracy, former President of the New Jersey Board of Public Utilities, told how decisions of the New Jersey Public Utility Commission had been set aside by going into the United States District Court. Mayor Hylan asked:

"Was Julius Mayer sitting there?"

STREET FAIR ENDS TONIGHT.

Park Avenue Benefit for Crippled Children Prolonged One Day.

With yesterday its first really satisfactory day as to weather, the committee of the big Park Avenue Fair, for the benefit of the Association for the Aid of Crippled Children, has decided to continue one day longer, and the fair will be open today from 2 o'clock to midnight.

Chauve Souris will be the feature at the cabaret at night, and Constance Bennett, daughter of Richard Bennett, who is just making her professional début, will dance. Tony Sarg will be the portrait artist for the day. New York's Cuban population has announced that it will celebrate the twentieth anniversary of Free Cuba at the fair. The animal booth has closed, for every pig, dog and cat has been sold. In the secondary animal booth there are still some hens, turtles, &c.

ACTOR IN ALIMONY TROUBLE.

Alex. Carr Faces Contempt Proceedings for Lax Payments.

Mrs. Mary Carr of 240 Riverside Drive, Manhattan, obtained an order from Supreme Court Justice Faber in Brooklyn yesterday, requiring Alexander Carr, an actor, to show cause on Monday why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court for violating an order requiring him to pay her alimony. She complains that he is $19,000 in arrears.

Mrs. Carr obtained a divorce in Nassau County in October, 1919, and her husband was ordered to pay $350 a month until Oct. 31, 1921, and $433 a month thereafter. Mrs. Carr says that her husband had paid occasionally. At one time she said he gave her an automobile in part payment and she sold it for $750.

EXPLAIN FRENCH ARMY COST

Increase Sought in 1923 Budget Is Only Apparent, War Office Says.

PARIS, May 19 (Associated Press).—It was pointed out at the War Office today that the increase in appropriations for military purposes, asked for in the 1923 budget, is only apparent, and that several hundred million francs were included to apply to this year's expenditures and for extraordinary purposes, such as the transportation of troops evacuated from Cilicia and other expenses connected with operations which were left out of this year's budget.

Even with this apparent increase of 294,000,000 francs over this year's expenditures, it was added, France next year will spend comparatively less than the 1,800,000,000 francs spent in 1914, if account is taken of the increased cost of everything the army has to buy.

DELAY MERGER DISCUSSION.

Steel Official Asks Daugherty for Postponement, and Obtains It.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Attorney General Daugherty was informed today by an official of one of the independent steel companies involved in the projected merger that the consolidation would be effected only after consultation with the Department of Justice.

The official, whose name the Attorney General did not disclose and who talked with Mr. Daugherty by long-distance telephone, requested a postponement until next Wednesday of the conference which Mr. Daugherty has asked the officials of the companies involved in the proposed merger to hold with him. The request was granted.

Mr. Daugherty said the official also informed him that the steel companies never had any intention of bringing about the merger without laying their plans before the Department of Justice.

C. E. Mitchell sees Harding.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—C. E. Mitchell, President of the National City Bank of New York, conferred with President Harding today but declined on leaving the White House to reveal the subject of the discussion.

WRANGLING UNIONS MAY HALT BUILDING

EFFORTS AT COMPROMISE

Only 15,000 Men in Quarrel, but Construction Will Be Tied Up if They Strike.

A jurisdictional dispute between two unions in the Building Trades Council threatens to cause unemployment next week among 115,000 workers in the building trades, it was learned yesterday.

The fight is between two organizations of common laborers, the Independent Laborers' Union, headed by Giovanni Dioguardia, with a membership of 15,000, and a local of the International Hod Carriers' Union, with a membership in this city of 1,200 men. Both unions have delegates in the Building Trades Council, although the hod carriers' local is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and Dioguardia's local is independent.

The dispute has its origin in the dismissal several weeks ago of some members of the hod carriers' local working on a job for the Caldwell-Wingate Construction Company of 381 Fourth Avenue. The company called on Dioguardia to supply laborers for the job in pursuance of an agreement existing between Dioguardia's organization and the Building Trades Employers' Association.

Dioguardia supplied the men and the Building Trades Council ordered him to take the men off the building. He refused, saying he would violate his contract if he did so, and the Building Trades Council called a strike of the other trades on the building, which has since been shut down. On four other buildings being erected by the same company Dioguardia's men are still being used, and it is expected that strikes will be called on these buildings.

Several days ago the Building Trades Council suspended Dioguardia, but took no action against any of the business agents of the twenty local unions in the Independent Laborers' Union. Since that action was taken the building trades cauldron has almost come to a boil, and dissatisfaction has openly been expressed that the council should continue to permit its men to work on jobs with Dioguardia's men.

A conference between Dioguardia's delegates and the Executive Committee of the Building Trades Council was held yesterday. The officers of the council, it was reported, attempted to compromise. The Dioguardia men refused to withdraw their workers, and an arrangement was made to meet the Executive Committee on Tuesday. If no agreement is reached by Tuesday, it was reported that in all likelihood action would be taken by the Building Trades Council to throw the Dioguardia men off the Caldwell-Wingate jobs on which they are engaged. Such action, it was predicted, would be met by retaliation from Dioguardia, who would order his 15,000 laborers to quit work. This would mean a virtual stoppage of all construction work in this city, as journeymen in the other trades would be unable to continue work without common laborers doing their accustomed duty. Little aid could be expected from the comparatively small local of 1,200 laborers in the Hod Carriers' International.

Samuel Gompers was questioned on the common laborers situation when he appeared as a witness before the Lockwood committee recently, and Samuel Untermyer then intimated the possibility of trouble in the near future if the jurisdictional fight was not settled. Mr. Gompers promised to do everything within his power to bring harmony out of the dispute.

CHICAGOANS DEMAND 1,000 MORE POLICE

Additional Judges and Prosecuting Attorneys Also Called For in Crime Wave.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 19.—Chicago, awake to the peril of its criminals and terrorists, adopted today a plan of campaign against the influences of anarchy, murderers, bomb throwers, labor sluggers, burglars and the lesser fry, which includes emergency measures designed, first, to prevent crime, and, second, to visit speedy and adequate punishment on the enemies of society. The city's plan includes the following main points:

1. The addition of 1,000 uniformed policemen to the force.

2. The assignment of four additional Judges to the criminal bench at once, with four more to follow later, so that all pending criminal cases may be tried without delay.

3. The expenditure of $100,000 for ten additional Assistant State's Attorneys to aid in cleaning up the criminal court docket.

These plans were decided upon following a conference between a committee assembled by the Chicago Crime Commission and State's Attorney Crowe and Chief of Police Fitzmorris. Once outlined, these men spent the day turning the plan into a reality.

The work of clearing up the recent depredations of labor terrorists culminating in the bombing of several buildings and the murder of two policemen, narrowed down today to the hunt for Charles Daudsukis and "Floater" Stanley. They are, according to John Miller, who drove the death car, the actual killers of Lieutenant Terence Lyons and Policeman Thomas Clarke.

The police practically admit that, with Daudsukis and Stanley in custody, they would be ready to go to trial. It is not known if any definite line on the whereabouts of the two men has been obtained.

Judge Harry B. Miller of the Superior Court granted habeas corpus petitions in favor of Fred Mader and "Big Tim" Murphy, returnable next Tuesday. Murphy, Mader and Cornelius N. Shea, another labor official, are in prison under murder indictments in connection with the case. Their lawyers based the application for the writs on Article 7, Section 2 of the State Constitution, which guarantees the admission to bail of defendants in capital offenses unless "proof is evident or the presumption great." The attorneys argued that the facts developed indicated that neither Murphy nor Mader actually committed the murders.

ELECTRIFY PARIS ROADS.

French Railway System Places $8,000,000 Contract.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., May 19.—Contracts aggregating $8,000,000 have been placed by the Paris-Orleans Railway for eighty freight locomotives and eighty heavy high-speed passenger motor cars as part of the program for the electrification of the main lines with a 1,500-volt direct-current system. This equipment will be furnished by a group of French manufacturers, headed by the Compagnie Française Thomson-Houston, representatives in France of the International General Electric Company.

The first part of the new 1,500-volt section will cover 125 miles of dense main-line traffic between Paris and Vierzon. The motor cars will replace and extend the present suburban steam service out of Paris.

The Paris-Orleans Railway is one of the six great systems in France.

CHILD LABOR CONTROL IN CONSTITUTION ASKED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Members of the House Judiciary Committee sought today to ascertain if any Federal regulation of child labor could be enacted into law. The decision by the Supreme Court last Monday that the tax heretofore imposed on the products of child labor was unconstitutional has dismayed those who desire Federal supervision and there has been strong pressure brought to bear upon the Judiciary Committee to provide some substitute that will stand the constitutional test.

Senator Johnson of California today offered in the Senate a joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to give Congress the right to regulate employment of children under the age of 18. Senator Johnson declared that, as a result of the court decision, the only way to deal with the situation was by constitutional amendment.

Representative Fitzgerald of Ohio already has introduced in the House a proposed constitutional amendment whereby the labor and working hours of youths and young women under 18 years of age would be controlled by the Government.

TROWEL TO WOMAN'S PARTY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Perhaps the most interesting greeting that has come to the National Woman's Party in connection with the dedicatory ceremonies next Sunday of the new National Headquarters of that organization is a silver trowel to be used in turning the ground for the cornerstone, sent by Mrs. Charlotte Pierce of Philadelphia, the only survivor of the first woman's rights convention at Seneca Falls, N. Y., in 1848. This trowel will be brought to Washington by Miss Caroline Katzenstein of Philadelphia. On it is an inscription:

"In memory of the Seneca Falls convention of 1848, presented by its sole survivor, Charlotte L. Pierce, in thanksgiving for progress made by women and in honor of the National Woman's Party, which will carry on the struggle so bravely begun."

Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont of New York, President of the National Woman's Party, who gave $250,000 for the new National Headquarters, and Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer of New York, arrived today for the dedication ceremonies. Leaders of eight State delegations reached the present headquarters of the National Woman's Party to take part in the celebration.

CAPT. HOWARD LOSES SUIT.

Fails to Recover Gift Made to Wife on Second Honeymoon.

Captain Alfred W. Howard, former Captain of racing yachts, lost his suit yesterday to recover from his wife a half interest in his home, worth $7,500, at 187 Eighty-first Street, Brooklyn. The suit followed a brief second honeymoon which ended, Mrs. Howard testified, when the Captain hit her on the jaw.

The Howards were married several years ago after a salt-water romance in which Captain Howard rescued her from a wrecked ship. They did not live together long, but some weeks ago Captain Howard sought a reconciliation, and the couple went to the Hotel Bossert on a second honeymoon. During this Captain Howard deeded a half interest in the house to his wife, and after she left him the second time charged that she only went back to him to get the property.

Justice John MacCrate refused to believe this, and said:

MARION CHICKS FOR HARDING

100 on the Way by Parcel Post—May Join Laddie Boy.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Acting Postmaster General Bartlett received word today from Postmaster French Crow of Marion, Ohio, that 100 day-old chickens were on their way via parcel post to Washington for presentation to President Harding.

Mr. Bartlett said that the chicks would be sent to the White House immediately upon their arrival from the President's home town, and that they probably would be permitted to revel about the White House grounds along with Laddie Boy. There was no disposition on the part of either Mr. Bartlett or Postmaster Crow, it was said, to convert the executive gardens into a barnyard, but it was felt that the chicks should have at least a brief sojourn amid Presidential surroundings.

SUES HOSTESS FOR $15,000.

May C. Reardon Asks Damages Because of Auto Accident.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 19.—The ruining of her clothes and severe injuries to her body are alleged in the suit of May C. Reardon for $15,000 damages against Marjorie J. Rogers of Scarsdale, filed today in the Supreme Court here.

The plaintiff asserts that recently, while a guest of the defendant on an automobile ride, her dress was ruined and she was injured about the head, face and body, when the automobile collided with another car on the road between Dobbs Ferry and White Plains. She alleges the defendant was careless in driving the machine.

PAIR SHOOT MAN IN BACK.

Accusio Dimino, an olive oil dealer, was shot in the back of the shoulder yesterday afternoon as he stood in front of his store at 11 Elizabeth Street. One hundred yards away is the old Elizabeth Street Police Station, closed by Commissioner Enright's order a few days ago. Dimino was talking with his brother-in-law, Samuel Sciafini, the latter told the police, when two men walked casually up to them, whipped out revolvers, fired five shots at Dimino and ran. Sciafini dragged his brother-in-law into a hallway and telephoned for an ambulance.

Patrolman O'Neil of the Oak Street Station, hearing the shots, started up Elizabeth Street and arrested a man running through the crowd. Sergeant Meehan, a mounted policeman, chased and arrested another man running away.

The prisoners said they were Louis Machordi, an olive oil merchant living at South Beach, Staten Island, and Victor Caprano, a hackman of 2,023 Boston Road, the Bronx. They denied being connected with the shooting. Dimino at St. Vincent's Hospital did not identify them. Near by the police found two revolvers containing empty shells.

Caught in Chute, Suffocates.

Charles Wilson, 36, a steamfitter, of 406 Bergenline Avenue, West New York, was killed yesterday at the plant of the New York Butchers Dressed Meat Company, Eleventh Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street. While making repairs on the second floor he fell into the chute carrying ashes to the street. His body caught in a bend in the pipe and he was suffocated by the time the pipe was taken apart.

82 SAVED AS BOATS GO AGROUND IN FOG

EAGLE BOAT IS STRIPPED

Navy and Coast Guard ships rushed from this port yesterday to the assistance of the Navy Eagle Boat 17 and the Army Quartermaster boat General Wilkins, both of which were beached on the Long Island coast during the heavy storm and fog on Thursday night.

Eighty-two men on the two vessels—sixty-four on the Eagle boat and eighteen on the army vessel—reached shore safely with the assistance of men from Coast Guard stations, and no serious injuries were reported. A few of the men and a large amount of movable equipment were taken ashore with breeches buoys. Late yesterday the opinion of officers was that neither craft could be put back into service.

The Eagle boat beached about 3 o'clock yesterday morning on the south shore of Long Island, about midway between East Hampton and Amagansett, after she had become separated from a flotilla of submarines she was convoying as a mother ship from Norfolk to New London. The four submarines managed to reach New London safely.

The General Wilkins, a new Army Quartermaster vessel, with a 150-foot concrete hull, beached at Orient Point, near Plum Island, on the north shore of Long Island. The upper works caught fire and the flames, fed by oil in the fuel tanks, burned away the entire superstructure, so that only the hull remained. A large hole was smashed in the superstructure of the General Wilkins as she was swept over a reef.

All of the crew of the General Wilkins were landed safely at Greenport, with the assistance of coast guards from Station 95, and reported to the army authorities at New London. They said examination of the compass when the fog lifted showed it was inaccurate and had failed to give the correct bearings.

The Wilkins was on her way from Southport, S. C., to New London to join a small fleet of vessels used in a passenger and supply service for the coast artillery stations on Plum, Gull and Fishers Islands. She was completed recently near Fort Caswell, N. C., and was in command of Captain J. I. Davis of Southport.

Failing to get his bearings at Fire Island, the navigator of the Eagle boat pushed on until about midnight when, lost completely, he decided to drop anchor for the night. He was then in about eighteen fathoms of water. Seeing that this anchor failed to hold the craft against the force of wind and wave, the officers dropped a second anchor, which was carried away. Then the keel scraped bottom. The officers moved their craft cautiously in all directions, but scraped bottom everywhere. In this effort to free the boat, the propeller fouled in the sand and the shaft snapped off, leaving the boat without motive power.

Rockets were sent up about 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Watchers at the Coast Guard station at East Hampton caught sight of them and hurried to the distressed craft. The destroyer Flusser caught a last feeble S O S from the disabled wireless on the Eagle boat and broadcasted it. The call of the Flusser was caught at the naval wireless station at Amagansett and relayed to the naval communications station in this city.

At daylight the Coast Guard cutter Seneca and the navy tug Cayuga started out from this port to assist the Eagle boat. They found the Flusser standing by, but the sailors had reached shore on rafts and life boats.

One of the officers on the vessel was Commander Thomas Withers, in command of Submarine Division 5. When it became apparent that the Eagle boat could not be floated he ordered the removal of a large part of the equipment by the breeches buoy. The opinion of officers yesterday was that the vessel could not be salvaged.

ARREST AND FREE TWO NONPARTISAN LEAGUERS

FARGO, N. D., May 19.—Three men, indicted by the Grand Jury for activities in the defunct Scandinavian-American Bank of Fargo and its relations to the Bank of North Dakota, were freed under bonds tonight after their arrest here today.

They were William Lemke, former Attorney General of the State, and member of the Executive Committee of the National Non-Partisan League; George Totten Jr., former State Secretary of the League, and Lars Christensen, formerly a Director of the Scandinavian-American Bank. Lemke's bond was fixed at $6,000, Totten's at $2,000 and Christensen's at $2,000.

Three indictments charge Lemke with embezzlement of $216,378; two others charge two similar illegal transfers of $3,000 each and the sixth charges making false reports to the State Banking Department.

Totten said he would plead not guilty to two indictments charging forgery of the name of O. A. Kaldor, Treasurer of the League State Executive Committee. The indictments against Christensen are based on charges that he made two false reports to the State Bank Examiner, showing greater loans and discounts than the bank actually had.

The Bank of North Dakota had on deposit and lent to the Scandinavian-American Bank approximately $450,000 at the time the Fargo institution was closed. Lemke is accused of aiding and abetting transfers of money from one bank to another for the private and personal benefit of certain individuals who named with him.

Lemke, in a statement issued tonight, attacked the indictments as a "political move by Svenbjorn Johnson, the Attorney General, who is a member of the independent, or anti-Non-Partisan faction.

MASTER PLUMBERS LOSE.

Conviction of Knight and Murphy for Price-Fixing Upheld.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday upheld the conviction of John L. Knight, former President of the Master Plumbers' Association, Charles L. Murphy, Vice President of the Wells and Newton Company and the Wells and Newton Company.

The convictions resulted from evidence furnished by the Lockwood committee in a trial before Supreme Court Justice McAvoy. Knight was sentenced to two months in jail, Murphy to ninety days and ordered to pay a fine of $5,000, and the Wells and Newton Company was fined $5,000.

The decision yesterday was a blow for Knight, who had obtained his release on a certificate of reasonable doubt after several weeks in prison. He must now serve his unexpired term.

GREAT ELECTRIC ERA IS ASKED BY HOOVER

SEES INDUSTRIAL UPHEAVAL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 19.—Declaring "the time is ripe for a great national program of super-power development," Herbert Hoover, from his office in Washington, made a strong appeal to the 3,000 members of the National Electric Light Association in convention here today, to concentrate on their slogan, "Electrify America." His address, delivered by telephone through amplifiers to the audience, brought cheers from the delegates.

"The growing interconnection of existing power systems and their reinforcement with larger centralized production units will serve to further assure the productive industries stability of their power to a degree of importance that can be compared only to the relation of our Federal Reserve System in stabilizing credit," said Mr. Hoover.

"Furthermore," he continued, "the increased application of electrical power to replace the innumerable small units of direct steam production not only becomes a great saving in human labor, a great assurance of continuity in operation and a great reduction in the waste of material, but it is also a great contribution to the lightening of manual labor.

"One of the incidental problems of our industrial system is the inevitable growing shortage of common labor and the complete necessity that it shall be replaced with fewer units of skilled labor performing the laborious tasks of the many. The more general spread of electrical power is inevitable for this reason, if for no other.

"The time is ripe for a great national program of super-power development. The stretch of economic transmissions distance has brought power development from the mouth of our coal mines and upon our streams to within the economic reach of our industrial centres and our farms.

"Few appreciate the industrial revolution that lies pregnant in the 350 miles of transmission that is now well within economic possibilities. Nor does any engineer despair that we shall not develop transmission to the thousand-mile radius. To 'electrify America' is not only a great economic purpose, but it is also a great human purpose, and one that may well enlist the whole of your membership in a national crusade."

HARDING FAVORS TOKIO TRIP

Can't Understand 'Inexcusable Fuss' Over Use of Transport Henderson.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—"Of course the President favors the use of the naval transport Henderson to convey members of the class of 1881 of the United States Naval Academy to Japan," said an authorized White House spokesman today.

"He favors it most heartily. The President cannot understand the inexcusable fuss that has been made about it. He would be sorry for a nation that would not facilitate friendly gestures from one great power to another. It is the President's belief that one of our chief functions is the promotion of international good-will and understanding and that if the government does have to burn eleven ounces more of coal it is money well spent in such a cause. The President would almost be willing to pay for the cost of the fuel out of his own private purse, and would have been very sorry if Secretary Denby had decided not to go to Japan on the Henderson."

WILL END SWEDISH LOCKOUT

Lumbering Agreement Provides for 33 Per Cent. Wage Reduction.

STOCKHOLM, May 19.—The conflict between the Swedish lumber mill employes and the Workers' Federation in the industry, involving about 24,000 men and 164 mills, has been settled on the basis of an agreement signed by both parties, calling for a reduction in wages of about 33 per cent. below those provided for in the 1921 agreement. The lockout in the industry will immediately be lifted, and work will be resumed as soon as possible to as as great an extent as conditions permit.

Lumbering being one of Sweden's key industries, news of the settlement is greeted with widespread satisfaction, especially as it is expected to give a new impetus to the revival of industry and commerce.

MILK STAYS AT MAY LEVEL.

Dairymen's League Announces No Change in Price for June.

It was announced yesterday at the office of the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, Inc., that the June price of milk for distributers will be the same as the May price. This price is $1.75 a hundred pounds, or $.0427 a quart, for average milk of 3.6 per cent. butterfat for city distribution.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Cash Staples Hold Steady, Few Changes Noted—Wheat and Cotton Sag.

Cash markets held well at prevailing prices yesterday, a few exceptions to the general steadiness being found in fractional declines in wheat and cotton, middling. Grains were weak at Chicago yesterday, export demand having fallen below expectations, which brought an easy undertone. Decline in spot cotton was natural following its recent sweep to record levels. Other staples held firm and unchanged.

FOODSTUFFS:	May 19, 1922.	May 12, 1922.	May 19, 1921.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

A new firm, consisting of Maxwell B. Smith, formerly manager of the foreign bond department of A. A. Housman & Co., and William J. Ruth, has been formed under the name of Smith & Ruth, with offices at 52 Broadway. The firm will deal in European rails, foreign bonds and enlisted stocks and bonds.

The Guaranty Trust Company of New York has been appointed registrar of stock of the Daniels Motor Company, consisting of 7,324½ shares of preferred stock, par value $100, and 300,000 shares of common stock, without nominal or par value.

The American Exchange National Bank has been appointed transfer agent for the common stock of the Natural Gas and Petroleum Corporation.

CHARGES EXCHANGE FLEECED HUNDREDS

CALLS IT BIG BUCKETSHOP

Defense Moves for Dismissal, Saying State Failed to Describe Crime—Court Adjourned.

The trial of the American Cotton Exchange for operating a bucket shop was interrupted yesterday by a motion by Albert Massey, counsel for the defense, for dismissal of the indictment on the ground that the complaint and the case outlined in the opening address for the State were too vague and did not describe a crime.

George Gordon Battle, representing th directors of the Exchange, submitted a memorandum in favor of the motion and Supreme Court Justice Marcus adjourned the case until Monday to consider the motion.

The jury was completed during the morning session and in the afternoon Assistant District Attorney Hugo Winter opened the case. He said that the Exchange was not an exchange in the correct sense of the word, but a "hollow mockery," which was used by a few men as a cloak for swindling operations.

Mr. Wintner said that among the members of the Exchange were several hundred "credulous Southerners," who believed that they belonged to and were dealing with a legitimate institution. These distant members were being systematically exploited by a small group of about fifteen men, he said. He said that the transactions engineered by this group were virtually all fictitious and that the organization was "one big 'bucketshop,'" robbing the public and its own members.

He said that the existence of such organizations threw legitimate exchanges and legitimate business under suspicion and had a corrupting effect all over the country. He promised to bring witnesses to show a number of specific cases in which customers had been fleeced by an elaborate system of trickery.

Mr. Massey complained that the opening address was a denunciation full of generalities, and that neither it nor the complaint set up facts which justified a trial. He argued that the unrelated acts of individuals could not properly be used to prove a case against the whole organization. Mr. Winter had alleged that 80 per cent. of the transactions on this Exchange was fraudulent, and this was denied by Mr. Massey.

Conviction would mean a maximum punishment of $5,000 fine for the Exchange, and two convictions would be sufficient to abrogate its charter.

JAECKEL'S CASHIER ACCUSED

E. T. Hays Said to Have Misappropriated $25,000.

The Fifth Avenue fur firm of A. Jaeckel & Co., through its treasurer, Herman J. Young, appeared before Magistrate Edgar V. Frothingham, in Jefferson Market Court, yesterday as complainant against Edward T. Hays, who for ten years has been cashier for the firm. Hays was charged with grand larceny for the alleged theft of $924.88, but it was said that defalcations covering a period of two years would total between $25,000 and $30,000.

Hays, who lives at 366 Kings Highway, Brooklyn waived examination and was held in $5,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

Furnishings Men to Meet.

Plans have been perfected for the holding of the annual meeting and luncheon of the National Wholesale Men's Furnishings Association on June 1 at 12:30 P. M. at the Aldine Club. Officers and Directors for the coming year will be elected. In view of the important problems now facing both the retailer and wholesaler, Secretary Willard B. Stevens expects a satisfactory attendance. A closer welding of the wholesaler and retailer will be a feature of the coming year's activities, according to Mr. Stevens.

Good Call for Cuff Links.

Quite a noteworthy demand is reported among leading haberdashers for men's cuff links. It is declared to be above the ordinary seasonal purchases, which make themselves felt at this time of the year. The buying is in the moderate priced links. The leading sellers, according to a sales agent handling such goods, are the sterling silver enameled regulation links in colors to match the soft shirt with which they are worn. The demand for the staple pearl links is declared about steady. Dress sets have been going well, particularly the newer designs in colored enamel, principally light blue and gray.

Pocket Radio Set.

The radio has been perfected to such an extent that pocket radio sets are now being featured as a leading novelty. They are mounted on a base about five inches wide and seven inches long and each includes a crystal detector and a small tuning coil. A set retails for $3.50, without antennae or the head phones. It is said to be very efficient, considering its size. It was tested out the other evening, and the broadcasting station at Newark, N. J., was clearly heard from upper New York City. The set is declared to require very little adjustment, and is simple in construction, making it adaptable for the experimenter in radio who may not care to invest in the more costly apparatus.

To Postpone Fall Ribbon Opening.

The general disposition among ribbon manufacturers is to postpone the opening of the Fall lines of ribbons, which ordinarily takes place around this time of the year, to await more favorable buying conditions. Very little business of consequence is apparently passing in the ribbon trade, with the best demand continuing for the narrow widths. There was a brief spurt in the wider items for awhile, but this demand has fallen off, despite the approach of Summer. The small use of ribbons for dress decoration during the current season was a big blow to ribbon business. In millinery, also, the call was small, although it is believed there may be a change in this field in the Fall.

Orders for Work Clothing.

Immediate delivery orders for work clothing, including overalls, work shirts and extra trousers, are declared better than was expected by a leading manufacturer of these lines. Orders for Fall, however, are not coming in at a very satisfactory rate, and salesmen have been on the road now for about six weeks. The recent advances in raw material make for a strong situation in this type of clothing. The principal sources of demand at present are from the Middle West, with Eastern orders showing a falling off, according to the manufacturer quoted.

Small Coal More Active.

The only change of record in the hard coal situation, Saward's Journal will say today, is the livelier movement of No. 1 buckwheat from company stocking plants. This is due to the rising price of bituminous having caused the anthracite railroads and certain industrial plants to use a larger tonnage of the steam sizes. So far as "domestic" business is concerned, the public is displaying no interest in the strike or its future effects on the supply of household coal. Bituminous prices are skyrocketing at a rate which has seldom been witnessed before except during the runaway market of two years ago, when the $12 and $13 mark was finally reached in the Summer.

New Colors in Wash-ble Gloves.

Two new colors in washable English doeskin gloves have been brought out by a well-known domestic manufacturer and are now being shown to buyers. Heretofore these gloves were made only in white and natural, but the concern in question has succeeded in bringing out a pearl gray and a peachbloom hue that are guaranteed fast. The gloves are specially meant for sports wear, and are made in short, strap and mousquetaire effects. In the last-named the twelve-button lengths sell for $39 a dozen, wholesale, with the sixteen-button ones quoted at $42 a dozen. Short gloves are priced at $18 and strap effects at $24 a dozen. Whites and naturals wholesale at $1.50 to $3 a dozen less.

Some Gray Goods Business Done.

A fair volume of business was put through in the local gray goods market yesterday. Second hands sold 38½-inch 64-60s at 8¼ cents for quick delivery and 39-inch 68-72s at a cent a yard higher for similar shipment. Toward the close, however, there were indications that the available supply of these cloths was dwindling fast. First hands still held for an eighth higher. Sales of 38½-inch 60-48s were reported at 7¼ cents from both first and second hands. Nearby business was done in 37-inch 48-square, four-yard sheetings at 9 cents and buyers again paid 6¾ cents for 6.15s. Eleven and 12 cents, net, were paid respectively for 37-inch three-yard and 2.75-yard drills. Further business in 40-inch 88-80, 8.50-yard combed lawns was done at 15 cents.

Novel Models in Sport Shoes.

One of the most novel lines of men's low sport shoes ever put on the market is now being brought out by a prominent manufacturer in the metropolitan district. Most of the new models feature white buckskin, and are made in both the narrow and full toe styles. With the white buck is combined saddles of lizard, walrus, ostrich and "tadpole" leather, or else long and short wing tips for foxing are made use of. When the tips are long the foxing is short and vice versa. One model shows the combination of wing tip and saddle. The lace pieces are either of buck or a contrasting leather, and some have the lace piece and foxing in a single piece. Perforated patterns trim the wing tips and foxings. One attractive shoe is made of smoked horse, with a saddle and backstay of gray lizard.

To Buy From Wholesalers.

In order to combat the tendency of many manufacturers to sell direct to the small retail trade, the Wholesale Stationers' Association of the United States of America is carrying on a campaign showing these retailers the advantages of buying from the wholesaler. In an attractive pamphlet sent out by the association are given sixteen arguments in favor of purchasing from that source. Among these are the ability to buy smaller quantities of the articles needed, which permits of more rapid turnover. This not only reduces losses due to overstocks, but increases profits. Further than this, it is asserted that credit is more easily obtained and maintained when the wholesalers are patronized, that less bookkeeping is required and that there are savings on freight and express. Several other strong arguments are given.

Miners Postpone Action on Wage.

The anthracite miners' wage scale committee met yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Continental, Forty-first Street and Broadway, to consider the wage reduction of 21 per cent. proposed by the operators. They adjourned until next Tuesday without taking any formal action. Delegates said that the committee was unanimously in favor of continuing the strike rather than accept the rates offered by the employers.

BUSINESS BETTER IN APRIL.

Commerce Department Reports Gain Despite Some Reverses.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Commercial and industrial movements in April showed a steady gain despite some reverses, such as lower cotton consumption, according to a survey of business conditions throughout the country, issued tonight by the Commerce Department.

Decline in coal production, due to the strike, the department declared, has so far caused no interference with industry and very little uneasiness. New records were made in the April building operations and in the March gasoline production and stocks. Iron and steel production held its new level in April, the department continued, while market increase in unfilled orders for steel indicate more active buying.

Prices were steadier last month, the department said, with small increases in many commodities, while reports indicate that retail trade is improving.

"May, 1920," it added, "is the date usually associated with the beginning of the recent period of depression. It was in this month that the general level of prices began to decline. During the twelve months that followed prices on the average dropped 50 per cent. It has required the better part of another twelve months for business to catch its breath after that memorable slide. That this has been accomplished and that business is rapidly adjusting itself to the lowered plane is further emphasized by reports received during the first part of May, 1922."

MORE DOING IN DRY GOODS.

CHICAGO, May 19.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was ahead of last week and of the corresponding period of last year.

"There were also more customers in the market.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Owing to the need of larger quarters to take care of increased business and the addition of a basement store, the C. F. Hovey Company of Boston has opened new buying offices at 225 Fifth Avenue. The former location was at 1,164 Broadway.

Samuel Rich, formerly connected with the Rich-Diamond Silk Company, has become sole selling agent of the Doblin Company, manufacturer of broad silks and drapery fabrics. Salesrooms have been opened with H. M. Huebshman & Brother, factors, 334 Fourth Avenue.

The Sonora Dress and Costume Company announces that it has no connection with the Sonora Waist and Dress Company, which recently went into bankruptcy.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Changes, Although Numerous, Were Not Very Distinctive.

Although the changes shown in Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week passed the 100 mark for the first time in a long while, the excess of advances over declines was smaller than last week. In the current list 71 of 103 revisions were upward, while last week 76 advances were seen in 96 changes. The feature this week was the divided character of the changes in the foodstuffs, where the advances and declines were about even in number.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for this week and the corresponding week a year ago:

†Nominal

For the first time in several weeks the local provision list showed a change in flour, Spring patent having gone up 25 cents a barrel. Winter straight did not change. Bacon advanced, hams did not change, and Middle Western lard declined. At Chicago live beef and hogs went up, while live sheep declined. Mess pork did not change, but short ribs were higher.

In the local dairy products list all of the revisions were downward. Butter was from half a cent to a cent a pound lower. Fancy nearby eggs dropped a cent a dozen, while a decline of two cents a dozen was seen in fresh-gathered firsts. The entire dairy products list, however, is higher than at this time a year ago.

A break of 50 cents a barrel in common apples and a drop of $2 in fancy ones was seen in the listed fresh fruits, but the dried ones were bare of changes. Choice marrow, medium, pea and red kidney beans were all higher in the vegetables list, and cabbage went up 25 cents a bag. Onions supplied the only drop of the week, when they slipped off 25 cents a barrel. No. 7 Rio coffee advanced, but no change was seen in No. 4 Santos or in the teas. No revisions were recorded in the sugars, either, and the only change in the spices was a drop in cloves.

Wheat, malting barley and hay supplied the declines in the grains list this week. The advances were in corn, oats and rye. All of the changes in the metals list were upward, including Bessemer and open-hearth billets, tank plates and beams, foundry coke, electrolytic copper, spelter, lead and tin. In the leather list no changes either way were seen, but the hides showed higher prices for No. 1 native packer, No. 1 Texas, No. 1 buff and No. 1 extreme. Features were lacking in the changes in the drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils.

In the wool list there was another solid advance, except for a drop in domestic quarter-blood clothing stock. The building materials again included a rise in common Hudson River brick. Rosin and turpentine were higher in the naval stores. In the paper list book stock and chip boards were cheaper, but there was a rise in No. 1 old paper pulp. Tallow was again higher. Brazilian crude rubber declined, and the Eastern rubber did likewise. Japanese raw silk was 10 cents a pound higher here for No. 1 Sinshiu.

In the textile markets burlaps continued their rise of the last few weeks, but it was largely sentimental and not based so much on actual buying as in the preceding week. In the cotton goods higher prices for unfinished cloths and the pricing of percales featured the week.

RECEIVER FOR LUMBER CO.

$5,000,000 Philadelphia Concern Temporarily Embarrassed.

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—A Federal receiver was appointed today by United States District Judge Thompson for the Parsons Pulp and Lumber Company, which owns extensive timber lands and lumber and pulp mills in West Virginia, Virginia and North Carolina.

The action was taken on the application of William Whitmer & Sons, Inc., which is said to own all the capital stock of the Parsons Company. The suit, a friendly one, was joined in by all the large creditors.

The embarrassment was said to be temporary and due to unsettled conditions in the lumber market.

Liabilities were placed at $4,000,000 and assets at $5,000,000.

On the Stock Exchange the upward movement of prices was resumed yesterday, with numerous advances ranging from 1 to 3 points and with total transactions the largest of any day but two this year. During most of the day the upward movement was better distributed than in other recent markets; a fairly long list of railway shares rose 1 point or more. But the greater part of the day's business again converged on industrial shares, particularly those which are imagined to be affected by the talk of future "mergers."

In the later hours prices yielded somewhat, but the reaction was not great and, in general, the market might be described as closing strong. Taken as a whole, the day's movement doubtless reflected the purpose of drawing in again the speculative outside public which abruptly deserted the market after the news, on April 17, of Germany's separate treaty with Russia. It was recognized at the time, by every one familiar with either the European situation or the Wall Street situation, that this news from Genoa was a considerably less potent influence in causing the subsequent stock market reaction than was the position of the market itself. If an over-expanded speculative position is created again, it will doubtless be upset by something else with no particular relation to it; for Wall Street must have its legends. Still, it was not without passing interest to observe that yesterday's empty-handed adjournment of the Genoa conference, whose success or failure was to have so much to do with the fortunes of financial markets, should have been accompanied by a firm foreign exchange market, an advance of French and English Government bonds on the European stock exchanges, and an excited rise in stocks on Wall Street.

Sterling failed to reach the $4.45 mark again yesterday, but continued to sell within a small fraction of that figure. Changes in European continental rates were irregular, but the prevalent trend was toward firmness. To this the German mark was one exception; it declined to the lowest rate of the week. It is getting to be less the habit of the exchange market to ascribe this persistent weakness of the mark to the well-worn cause of "reparation uncertainties." What seems to be happening is large-scale purchase of foreign credits (in other words, sale of marks abroad) in order to pay for commodities such as cotton and copper, which Germany is still buying on the American market in greater quantities than any other foreign country. The position of the German Treasury was indicated by the comfortable increase for the week at the Reichsbank of 9,164,000,000 in discounts—practically altogether of the Government's short obligations.

Today's week-end reviews of the mercantile agencies report more definite and more general developments in the way of reviving activity than on any previous occasion of the season. That the recovery is not only "steadily gathering momentum" in trades which had already shown signs of revival but that "lines which had lagged while buyers waited are beginning to display renewed activity" under increasing orders, is one testimony. Even in the long-hesitant textile industry, reports from different sections of the country note "gradual expansion of business," "more disposition to anticipate future requirements" and a rising tendency in prices. That there should still be certain trades—sugar and copper, for instance—in which improvement is slow and uncertain, merely repeats the usual experience in trade recovery. A revival in which every line of business participates at once is extremely rare in commercial history.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1922.

Call money went to 3 per cent. on the Stock Exchange shortly after midday, after opening and renewing at 3½. Rate got back to 3½ at close. This is lowest since March 17, and besides only on three other occasions so far this year has rate ruled as low. Time money was very freely offered, as on Thursday shorter dates were low again, accommodation up to June 30 going at 3¾, other maturities up to six months ruling 4 bid, offered at 4¼, and where new money came in borrowers refused except at bid rate. Commercial paper brokers report temporary firmness, notwithstanding prevailing ease, more names going at 4½ than at 4¼. Acceptances ruled steady and without change.

London Market.

Money on London market down ⅛ at 1⅝ per cent.; short bills up 1-16 at 2⅝ per cent., and three months' up 1-16 at 2¾ per cent.

Gold bullion unchanged at 95s 2d. Taking the British Mint standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation for gold would represent a price of 109¾ at London. On the same basis the highest London price for gold for the year to date was 115⅝ on Jan. 5. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 119¾, on Feb. 5, 1920; the lowest 109⅛ on April 25, 1922.

Clearing House Exchanges.

GENERAL MOTORS EARNINGS.

$8,250,000 Net for First Quarter and Business Is Improving.

The General Motors Corporation earned approximately $8,250,000 of surplus available for dividends after the payment of all charges during the first quarter of 1922, according to a report in the financial district yesterday. It is understood that thus far in the second quarter, the concern's earnings have been at a rate of more than twice those in the first quarter. Bank loans of the corporation have been reduced from around $75,000,000 in December, 1921, to approximately $22,500,000 now, and by July 1 it is expected that they will be less than $10,000,000.

There have been reports from time to time that the management has in mind a revision of the par value of its common stock. Most of the rumors surround the possibility of changing the par either to $50 or $100 a share from the present no par status, while it is also intimated that action may be taken looking toward improving the position of the preferred and debenture stocks by reducing the amount which the corporation is now authorized to issue.

EXPORT COPPER ADVANCES.

Association Puts Price at 13¾ Cents a Pound.

The Copper Export Association yesterday established its quotation for exports on the basis of 13¾ cents per pound New York. This amounts to an advance of ½ to ¾ cent, according to the point of shipment. According to reports in the financial district it is thought that producers may try to stabilize the price at 13¾ cents, although there is considerable variance of opinion on this score.

Foreign sales are said to be good, with several million pounds of copper reported sold during the last two days for export. Most of this demand is from Europe, although Japan and China are understood to be good buyers of both electrolytic and casting copper, and Germany, France, Italy, England and Sweden have also bought substantial tonnages. It is believed that the Japanese buying is for Chinese delivery, and not for home consumption.

Inquiries surrounding domestic copper are especially active, being largely for May, June and July shipments. According to the reports the inquiry making the rounds in the domestic trade will total at least 10,000,000 pounds.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

An Upturn in Stocks.

Overnight developments were construed as so favorable by the speculative community that Wall Street fairly plunged into the market yesterday morning. Before the day was over sharp advances had been recorded in steel, rail, copper, leather and tobacco stocks of all sorts, the averages had recorded a new high mark for the year and a total of more than a million and a half shares of stock had been turned over. The actual figures were 1,643,700 shares, the third largest day of the year, the other two being April 17 and 18. The views of President Harding on the business outlook of the country, predicting unprecedented prosperity for the United States, were the favorite explanation of the speculative enthusiasm, but mergers and rumors of mergers again played their part.

The Public.

"The public is commencing to believe that large profits can be made in the market overnight," complained the head of a large brokerage house with a number of offices stretched throughout the country. As he made this statement he exhibited half a dozen queries which had arrived within the hour. Each of them inquired of the broker of the name of a stock which could be purchased for a quick turn "this afternoon." "I don't believe that is a healthy sign," he declared, "but at least it demonstrates to me that the public is in the market."

Convertible Bonds Gain.

The advance in railway stocks yesterday was instantly reflected in the market for convertible rail bonds. Although, as a whole, none of them yet are at a point where conversion of the bonds into the stock is a profitable operation, yet yesterday's rail advance stirred the imagination of Wall Street to such an extent that it probably was natural that attention should have been diverted to the possibilities in the bond market. The Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5s advanced 2½ points, the St. Paul convertible 4½s one point and the Erie convertible 4s, series D, more than one point. There were sharp advances recorded, too, in such speculative issues as Seaboard Airline refunding 4s, Chicago & Northwestern general 4s and St. Paul refunding 4½s. The Northern Ohio 5s, an underlying bond of the Lake Erie & Western, advanced from 72½ to 76 on the sale of but seven pieces.

Averages at Year's Highest.

The average of stocks, as compiled by THE TIMES, yesterday touched a new high mark for the year, the combined result being an average of 80.48, as compared with the previous high mark of 80.18, touched on May 3. From the low point of the reaction, reached on May 11, the advance has been a little more than 3½ points on the average, or from 76.91 to 80.48.

"Steel Common" Above Par Again.

United States Steel common yesterday again crossed par, touched on only one previous day this year, and the achievement sent it to the front as the undisputed leader of the market. The advance was to 101⅝, the highest point at which the stock has sold since April 21, 1920. It was scored on a turnover of 114,000 shares, in particularly large blocks, some of which reached as high a figure as 15,000 shares. Improvement in the Steel Corporation's business has been steady and certain since the turn of the industry's tide. Operations now are approximately 75 per cent. of capacity. What has won the heart of Wall Street to Steel common, however, is the fact that it has gone steadily ahead during the period of depression, with no thought of a dividend cut, living steadily on the surplus wisely stowed away in years of prosperity.

Silver Bullion Declines.

Those familiar with the silver market were inclined to view yesterday's quick decline in the price of silver of approximately 2⅛ cents per ounce as the result of overspeculation in the metal in the Far East and the probable straightening out of a top-heavy situation. The decline was to 71⅝ cents per ounce, as compared with the top figure of 73⅝. Chinese speculators were reported to be very heavily interested in the market, and bullion dealers here and in London have been anticipating just such a decline as occurred yesterday, for many of these speculators have rolled up huge profits, and the desire to convert them into actual ones was generally watched as a pending development in the market.

The Sugar Stocks.

It has naturally taken the sugar shares a long time to get going. Conditions in the trade, up to the last month or so, have been decidedly against them, because of the low prices, the difficulty of financing the present crop and the general disorganized state of the market. Developments of the last month or so have been more favorable. The crop, because of only moderate plantings, will not be a bumper one. In Cuba the season has been one in which only the fittest have survived, but there, too, conditions tend toward normal. One of the news reports which filtered into the trade yesterday was given a great deal of attention. It was to the effect that sugar beet sowings in Europe this year represent an increase of only 1.2 per cent. over last season's. Many sugar men are inclined to interpret this as meaning that a market may be found abroad for about all of the sugar that can be spared.

The Railroad Dinner.

Now that it is known that the burden of discussion at President Harding's dinner to the steel executives hinged entirely about labor questions, conclusions were immediately reached in many railway quarters that the same topic was scheduled for the conference tonight with the railway executives. Most people, however, refused to subscribe to any such belief and insisted on their opinion that the most logical motive back of President Harding's invitation was a hope for a solution of the rate situation. It is understood that the executives are planning to get together this morning in Washington for an informal clinic before the dinner in the evening, and up to late last night it was said that they were planning to come to some general conclusions on this question. The fact that rates are uppermost in the minds of all industrial and financial leaders is held to be sufficient reason for consideration of this problem tonight, it is believed.

Banks and Frozen Credits.

Continued liquidation of long-standing debt by agricultural producers and thus the continued release of "frozen credits" is again reflected in the returns of the separate Reserve banks. Rediscounts at the Dallas Bank were reduced $2,100,000 for the week and $7,000,000 since the beginning of March, or nearly 20 per cent. Five months ago that bank was borrowing heavily from other Eastern banks to maintain its reserve ratio even at 42 per cent.; the percentage is now 67¼. The Atlanta Bank reduced its loan account $2,000,000 this past week and $5,500,000, or 17 per cent., since the end of April. Its present ratio of reserve, 83 per cent., compares with 50½ a year ago and is now virtually up to the highest reserve percentage of 1921 at the New York Bank. A year ago the Minneapolis Bank was borrowing $8,000,000 from the Eastern Reserve banks and its own ratio was only 39¾ per cent.; the ratio stands at 83¾ this week.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Except for steadiness in sterling, which moved over narrow range and a bare fraction over Thursday's level, the market was weak and lower. Heavy offerings of lire put rate down to 5.05¼ cents from 5.13¼ previous final, with French, German and Scandinavians sympathetically heavy.

UTILITY BONDS LEAD IN NEW OFFERINGS

INDUSTRIALS $31,750,000

Aggregate of All Groups $67,641,237—Commonwealth Power Issue Sold on 6.85 Per Cent. Basis.

Public utility and industrial issues featured offerings of new bonds this week. The total of public utility offerings was $36,422,800 par value, and that of industrial corporations $31,750,000 par value. The total of offerings in all groups was $87,641,237.

In the public utility group the yield basis ranged from 5.30 to 7.30 per cent., with the average approximately 6 per cent. In the industrial group the yields ranged from 7 per cent. to 8.30 per cent., with the average about 7¼ per cent.

In the public utility group the largest issues were $12,500,000 Commonwealth Power Corporation 6s, sold on a 6.85 per cent. basis, and $7,500,000 Philadelphia Electric Company 5s, offered at 5.58 per cent. Other public utility issues of importance were for the East Bay Water Company, Lehigh Navigation and Electric Company, Nova Scotia Tramways and Power Company, Limited; Penn Central Power Company, Tri-State Telephone and Telegraph Company and Northern New York Utilities Company. Practically every one of these issues has some sort of a call feature whereby the bonds may be redeemed at a premium after a few years.

In the industrial group the largest issue was $22,500,000 7s of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company, offered on a 7.12 per cent. basis. These bonds mature in twenty-five years and are part of a total issue of $35,000,000. The Amalgamated Sugar Corporation sold at par, through its bankers, $4,000,000 fifteen-year 7 per cent. bonds, which may be redeemed by the corporation at a five-point premium at sixty days' notice.

The railroad group was featured by two comparatively small issues of railroad equipment notes, offered at prices which yield from approximately 5 to 5¾ per cent.

Offerings of farm loan bonds aggregated $5,000,000, including $4,000,000 by the Kansas City Joint Stock Land Bank, which sold at a price yielding 4¾ to 5 per cent., and issues aggregating $1,000,000 by the First Joint Stock Land Bank of Minneapolis and the Montana Joint Stock Land Bank of Montana.

Municipal bonds of Cleveland, Ohio, obtained by New York syndicates after rather strenuous bidding, have been fully subscribed by investors. One issue was of $3,593,000 4½ per cent. bonds, which were sold on a 4 to 4.20 per cent. basis. The other was a $1,536,000 block of 5s, sold on a straight 4¼ per cent. basis. The 4 per cent. yield was broken again when an issue of $180,000 3¾s of the City of Syracuse, N. Y., was sold on a 3.90 per cent. basis.

The bond market as a whole gives evidence of getting out of the period of irregularity into which it had recently fallen. In the last two days sales of listed bonds were exceptionally heavy, and prices, in the main, were well sustained. Inquiry for new issues has been moderately good, and institutional buying in the Liberty list is reported to have been particularly heavy.

Interest in forthcoming issues centres to a large extent on foreign bonds. Among the new offerings expected within the next week or so are $24,000,000 8s of Bolivia, an international Prague offering, divided between New York and London, and possibly one or two smaller issues.

TO OFFER NEW GUILDER LOAN.

A new international industrial loan will be introduced in the New York market within the next few days. It will be a 40,000,000 guilder loan to the Anton Jurgens United Works, one of the largest industrial corporations of Holland, which manufactures butter substitutes and allied products. Of the total issue, 30,000,000 guilders, equivalent to approximately $12,000,000, will be offered here, while 10,000,000 guilders, or $4,000,000, will be offered to investors in Holland.

Cable dispatches from Amsterdam state that the 15,000,000 guilder Kingdom of Netherlands loan, one-half of which was sold in New York in March, is quoted at 100¾ and interest. At prevailing rates of exchange this is equivalent to 99¾ for the American portion of the loan listed on the New York Stock Exchange and currently selling at 97¼. The American bonds are dealt in at a flat price for each 2,500 guilder piece.

Alkali Works Plans Extensions.

The Mathiesen Alkali Works is preparing to extend its operations in the general chemical line. Early in April the corporation acquired the plants and business of the Commonwealth Chemical Company of Newark, N. J., and this new plant is to be enlarged and more fully developed.

TOBACCO MERGER IS NEAR, STREET HEARS

WILL PUSH EXPORT TRADE

United Drug Co. Also Mentioned—Shares of the Corporations Excited and Strong.

Reports were current in the financial district yesterday that plans for a merger of several corporations in the tobacco industry were under way and that formal announcement of these developments might be expected within the next few days. Thus far only hints of what the developments are have been made public. One of them is that there is to be a coming together in some form of the export business, which would include United Retail Stores, Tobacco Products, the Tobacco Products Export Company and the Philip Morris Company. It is said that an entirely new corporation is to be formed to take care of the export business.

In all probability, the program will call for either the absorption of or working agreements with other companies, and one of them which has been mentioned is the United Drug Company, although there has been no confirmation of this report. Some of the largest stockholders of United Drug are also large stockholders in United Retail Stores, and it is not believed that any difficulty would be encountered in putting through such a merger.

Shares of all the corporations mentioned in a probable merger were excited and strong yesterday, and those of United Retail Stores and Tobacco Products touched a new high record for the year. Executives of these corporations have no announcements to make at this time about the developments, they said. One report yesterday was to the effect that formal announcements might be expected next Tuesday.

GAS FINANCING APPROVED.

Brooklyn Union to Create $6,000,000 Mortgage and Issue Debentures.

Stockholders of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company have approved the issue of new securities for financing property extensions. Creation of a first lien and refunding mortgage of $6,000,000 at not more than 6 per cent. was approved; also the issue of $5,579,000 of the parent company's 7 per cent. ten-year convertible debentures, dated May 1, 1922, and convertible into capital stock at par any time after Nov. 1, 1924, to maturity. The stockholders will have the privilege of subscription to the new debentures.

The subsidiary companies are to issue a total of $5,347,000 new bonds, which are to be purchased with part of the funds from the parent company's $6,000,000 new bonds. The authorized capital stock was increased from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 to take care of the conversion of debentures later as well as of future requirements. There is now $15,000,000 capital stock outstanding.

DEMAND FOR WOOL LIGHTER

BOSTON, May 19.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say: The demand for wool in the Eastern seaboard markets has been hardly so keen, perhaps, although prices are well maintained. In the country the new clip continues to move freely at prices which are slightly stronger. The manufacturers are inclined generally to resist the upward swing of prices but are obliged to meet the market when they buy.

At the mills there is little change, either as regards the strike situation or the volume of new business, except that some improvement continues to be noted in worsted goods. The trade would be glad to see an early settlement of the tariff but hardly hopes for that eventuality.

Texas Sulphur Doubles Dividend.

Directors of the Texas Gulf Sulphur Company yesterday increased the quarterly dividend on the capital stock from 50 cents to $1 a share. The dividend is payable June 15 to stock of record June 1. H. F. J. Knobloch, Treasurer, says in connection with the declaration: "Stockholders will be advised later as to what portion of this distribution is from free surplus and what from reserve for depletion, and the company has been advised that the portion from reserve for depletion is probably not subject to Federal income tax."

AMERICAN SMELTING CHANGES PROPOSED

CALLS ISSUED FOR PROXIES

Too Many Salaried Employes on Board Not Best Form of Organization, Committee Says.

The election of a board of directors of whom a majority would be independent of the present management, was advocated yesterday by the members of the Stockholders' Committee of Investigation of the American Smelting and Refining Company, who signed the majority report criticising the present management. This procedure was advised in a statement sent to stockholders, together with the report of the minority committee, which upheld the management, and the comments of Elihu Root, who expressed the opinion that the criticism of the management was unjust.

The management of the company yesterday also sent out a call for proxies to be voted at the annual meeting on June 27, it having been agreed between the management and the investigating committee that solicitation of proxies be withheld until the report of the investigation was ready for stockholders. The committee appointed by the management to solicit proxies includes Simon Guggenheim, Edwin C. Jameson, Wilfred Shore, William Loeb, Jr., and F. H. Brownell.

Henry Evans, Clarence H. Kelsey, Henry K. Pomroy and Willis D. Wood signed the majority report. Accompanying the report to the stockholders is a statement signed by these members of the committee saying: "With the transmission of this report the committee feels it has completed its undertaking.

"In view of the facts set forth in the report, however, and of the conclusions to which they lead in the judgment of a majority of the committee and its counsel, Messrs. Rumsey & Morgan and the Hon. George W. Wickersham, the undersigned majority members of the committee recommend to the stockholders the election of a Board of Directors of whom a clear majority will be independent of the present management of the company's affairs and competent to exercise an impartial judgment on the questions coming before the board—such as contracts to be made by the company, either with contracting parties with whom the directors of the company may be affiliated, or with others.

"We believe that the present policy of having the Board of Directors composed so largely of salaried employes is not the best form of corporate organization, and that it has not always worked to the advantage of the Smelting Company.

"The Committee has been strongly of the opinion that the interests of the company imperatively demand a Board of Directors of whom a clear majority, while co-operative with, would not be dominated by, the management. Efforts made by the committee to secure this result have failed of accomplishment.

It is added, however, that "in view of the foregoing, the undersigned," who include Clarence H. Kelsey, Henry K. Pomroy, Willis D. Wood, Erskine Hewitt and Charles F. Rand, "have consented to act as a proxy committee to supplement the work of the Investigating Committee by giving the stockholders an opportunity to exercise their right to secure a wholly disinterested board to represent their interests. It is not our intention to carry on an aggressive campaign for proxies. If a majority of the stockholders, having studied the report, decide that they prefer to continue the existing management unchanged, we consider that the result does not further concern us."

The members of the investigating committee who signed the majority report yesterday issued a statement in correction of the report in some of the newspapers that Senator Root had acted as arbitrator in the matters under consideration. Mr. Root, it was pointed out, had regarded himself as disqualified to act in the matter other than as an advocate in support of his formulated conception of the company's interest.

Mr. Kelsey, who signed the majority report, declared yesterday that Senator Root was in no sense an arbitrator or judge, but was an attorney and advocate of the smelting company.

BANKS APPEAL TO HARDING.

The savings banks of New York State in the final session of their twenty-ninth annual meeting at Briarcliff yesterday directed an appeal to President Harding asking his co-operation in the present crisis of the railroads. This letter was sent after a resolution had been adopted by the Savings Banks Association of the State of New York embodying the recognition by the savings banks that the purposes of the Transportation act must be fulfilled. The resolution says in part:

"It is a well-known public fact that the railroads were returned to their owners much impaired in maintenance and particularly so as respect railroad equipment. The carriers have been endeavoring to find the means to right these conditions. There has been no fault finding as to the necessities of war. The carriers, however, had the right to expect a more liberal attitude on the part of the Government in settling claims that they have against the Government. But, apart from all these conditions, business is just beginning to show improvement. Under such conditions, it would be most unfortunate were political or other pressure brought to bear upon the railroads to force such reductions in railroad rates as would leave the carriers without the earnings sufficient to maintain their credit. Nothing could be more disastrous to the general public than this attitude toward the railroads."

CONTROLS LYONS OIL CO.

Producers & Refiners Corporation Reorganize Petroleum Concern.

The Producers' and Refiners' Corporation has acquired control of the Lyons Petroleum Company, assuming management of its properties and completely reorganizing the concern, it was announced yesterday by Frank E. Kistler, Chairman of the board of the Producers' and Refiners' Corporation. Describing the transaction, Mr. Kistler said:

"The Lyons company owns and controls oil and gas leases covering 33,000 acres, upon which there are seventy-two producing oil wells having a daily production of 5,200 barrels. Six wells are drilling, all within the limits of established and most attractive oil-producing districts of Oklahoma. The Lyons company was incorporated in December, 1919, and its properties have shown a steady increase in production as a result of the bringing in of many new wells.

"By this deal, Producers and Refiners materially augments its already substantial crude oil production and oil reserves, thus fortifying itself to meet future crude requirements for its refineries."

Many American Financiers Abroad.

The number of leaders in the American financial world now in Europe or planning European trips probably exceeds the number abroad at any one time since the armistice. The list includes J. P. Morgan, George Whitney, Thomas W. Lamont, Otto Kahn, Clarence Dillon, Frank Weld and Benjamin Guinness. Jacques Weinberger of Blair & Co. is in South America. Percy Johnson of the Chemical National Bank and George Davison of the Central Union Trust Company will leave shortly for Europe.

Empire Gas & Fuel Bonds Listed.

The New York Stock Exchange has admitted to the list interim certificates for first and refunding convertible fifteen-year 7½ per cent. gold bonds, Series A, due May 1, 1937, of the Empire Gas and Fuel Company. Trading in "when issued" contracts has been suspended. Application has been made to list Western Electric Company, Inc.; $3,652,400 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock.

American Express Earnings.

The January report of the American Railway Express shows operating revenues amounting to $12,836,889, a decrease of $4,867,716 compared with that month in 1921. The balance, after expenses, was $280,016, against $351,440 for January, 1921; operating income, $95,009, against $177,421.

APPELLATE DECISION ON FOREIGN CREDITS

CHEMICAL BANK WINS SUIT

Entitled to Recover Money Deposited With Equitable Trust Co. on March 21, 1917.

A decision bearing on dozens of cases involving transactions for the purchase of foreign credit just before the United States entered the Word War and which were not carried through on that account was made by the Appellate Division yesterday in passing on a controversy between the Chemical National Bank and the Equitable Trust Company. The Court holds the Chemical National is entitled to recover money deposited with the trust company on March 21, 1917, nearly three weeks before the United States entered the war on April 6.

The facts in the case, which appeared before the Appellate Division in the first instance, were conceded. Justice Smith in his opinion says that after this country entered the war, the trust company was notified that a cablegram transferring $8,000 deposited by the Chemical National to the credit of the Deutsche Bank in Berlin had not been sent. At the same time, the trust company mailed directions to the Deutsche Bank to make payments as directed in the cable. That also was not received, and the defendant was not informed that it was not received until Dec. 31, 1919.

The Chemical National sued for the $8,000 on the ground that the contract for the transfer of the money was rescinded. The trust company was willing to pay only the present value of the $8,000 in market—$800. The Chemical National refused to accept, and the controversy went before the court to determine the amount payable.

"Treating this as an executory contract under the facts stipulated," says Justice Smith, "it was agreed that the amount to be transferred should be payable abroad upon the 22d or 23d day of March, 1917. By reason of war conditions, the cable transfer was never transmitted, nor was the mail confirmation of that transfer received. The entire failure of the defendant to perform this executory contract authorized the rescission by the plaintiff of its contract and a recovery in an action for moneys had and received to the extent of the deposit made.

"Even if the facts stipulated showed a deposit with the Deutsche Bank of marks sufficient in value to meet the transfer agreed to be created, the clause that 'this transfer is sold without responsibility to the Equitable Trust Company of New York for delays, errors or omissions of the telegraph companies or for any other causes beyond its control' would not be sufficient to exempt the defendant from liability for repayment of moneys had and received upon rescission of the contract, which has never been performed. Without proof, however, of a sufficient deposit with the Deutsche Bank of such an equivalent amount in marks, and without proof of damage to the defendant in retaining the deposit for the payment of this draft, no facts appear which would make it impossible to restore the status quo of the parties in case of rescission, nor would such facts prevent the defendant from rescinding this contract, which has been in no part performed."

SURPRISE TO WALL STREET

President Campbell Denies Report That Youngstown Company Is to Be Taken Over by Bethlehem.

Another surprise was sprung at the conference of bankers and steel men negotiating for the consolidation of six of the large independent steel companies when it was made known that the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company had decided to drop out of the proposed combination. This is the second large company to stray from the fold of the original proposed combination which was to have included seven of the independents. The first was the Lackawanna, which was taken over by Bethlehem.

"The representatives of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company at a meeting today of all representatives of the six-cornered merger advised that they had reached the conclusion not to participate further in the proposed consolidation. Conferences among the other five concerns are continuing to determine whether it is advisable to consider a consolidation of all or some of these companies."

The five companies left to consider consolidation are Midvale Steel and Ordnance, Republic Iron and Steel, Inland Steel Company, Steel and Tube Company of America and the Brier Hill Steel Company.

Schwab Figures in Rumors.

The dropping out of Youngstown Sheet and Tube caused much conjecture in the financial district late yesterday. In some quarters the belief prevailed that Charles M. Schwab, Chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, who put through the merger with Lackawanna, had accomplished another coup and had persuaded Youngstown Sheet and Tube officials to join the gigantic combination which Wall Street takes for granted Mr. Schwab has in mind.

James A. Campbell, head of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, said last night that there was absolutely no foundation for the report that the Bethlehem was to take over his company or was negotiating for control. Mr. Campbell added also that no other companies had made advances to Youngstown for the purpose of gaining control.

Questioned as to his reasons for dropping out of the proposed six-company merger, Mr. Campbell at first said that he would rather have Mr. Chadbourne give the reasons. When informed that Mr. Chadbourne had referred all such questions to Mr. Campbell, the latter said that he could not readily divulge the reasons for dropping out of the conference, as it might interfere with the plans of the remaining companies.

In the speculation as to the reason for the Youngstown Company quitting the negotiations, an opinion was expressed that the merger had virtually fallen flat, and significance was attached to Mr. Chadbourne's statement that conferences would be continued by the five companies to determine whether it was advisable to consider the consolidation "of all or some" of the remaining companies.

Terms in Dispute, One Theory.

One theory advanced was that Youngstown Sheet & Tube dropped out because the other companies could not agree upon the terms at which the Campbell property would be taken over. Wall Street recalled the recent report that the bankers had stipulated the amount of capitalization of the combined company, requiring that all of the six concerns adjust their "price" within bounds of the amount set.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube is the most conservatively capitalized company of any of the independents that contemplated combination. The company has a capacity of 1,500,000 ingot tons annually, or about 3.66 per cent. of the country's total. Its common and preferred capitalization is less than $36,000,000. As far as known, the company has no bonded debt. Republic Iron and Steel, which has a capacity of 1,895,000 tons, or 2.77 per cent. of the country's total, has $55,000,000 common and preferred stock outstanding and a bonded debt of approximately $13,500,000. Midvale Steel and Ordnance has an ingot capacity of 2,894,000 tons, or 5.74 of the total for the entire industry. This company is capitalized at $100,000,000 and has a bonded debt of $64,126,950.

Despite all rumors to the contrary, there is still a strong feeling in the financial district that more will be heard from Mr. Schwab and his associates in Bethlehem before all the merger clouds have disappeared.

Simms Annual Meeting June 7.

The annual meeting of the Simms Petroleum Company of Delaware will be held at the office of the company, 120 Broadway, at 11 A. M. June 7. A special meeting of the stockholders will be held at the same place and on the same day to consider the Directors' action in authorizing that the par value of the 1,000,000 shares of authorized stock be changed from no par value to $10 a share.

Ventura Consolidated 1921 Net.

The Ventura Consolidated Oil Fields Company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1921, reports net profits of $1,859,732, after allowing for all charges, including interest, depreciation, taxes and abandoned wells. This amount equals $3.12 a share on 595,637 shares outstanding. In 1920 net profits totaled $1,878,672, or $3.16 a share. In 1919 net profits were $1.49 a share.

Radio Stock Offering.

Hayden, Stone & Co. and Hemphill, Noyes & Co. are offering an issue of 7 per cent. preferred stock of the Radio Corporation of America. The authorized capitalization is 5,000,000 shares of $5 par value; there are 3,955,974 shares outstanding. They are callable on any dividend date at $5.50 per share, and are cumulative after Dec. 31, 1923.

Traffic Club to Hear J. G. Walber.

John G. Walber, Executive Secretary of the Bureau of Information of Eastern Railways, will address the Traffic Club of New York at its meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria on May 26. Mr. Walber will discuss "Some Aspects of the Railroad Labor Problem."

Assay on Galena Ore Announced.

Officials of the Callahan Zinc Lead Company have received a telegram from General Manager Newton announcing that the ore body on the Galena property controlled by the Callahan Company is now four feet wide, assaying 5.4 ounces of silver and ¾ per cent. lead, with a picked sample assaying 42 ounces of silver and 50 per cent. lead.

BUSINESS RECOVERY GAINING MOMENTUM

IRON AND STEEL IN LEAD

Automobiles Showing a Great Revival, and Textiles Also Are Prosperous.

Journals of the trade today report more positive indications of reviving business in all lines, with particular improvement in iron and steel, automobiles and the textile industry.

Dun's Review says in a summary of business conditions:

"Recovery from previous depression, proceeding slowly and irregularly for many months, is steadily gathering momentum, and sentiment reflects the changed conditions. Different lines that had lagged while buyers waited are beginning to display renewed activity as revival of demand develops, and a reversal of the price trend has been witnessed. Without exception, each week this month has disclosed an excess of advances in Dun's comprehensive list of wholesale quotations, and premiums on prompt shipments of certain commodities demonstrate that some needs are becoming urgent. Conspicuous among the favorable features is the decisive turn for the better in the automobile industry.

"Considerable irregularity in retail distribution has resulted from variable weather and strikes in some sections, yet consumption of goods, if still marked by conservatism and discrimination in buying, is of larger volume.

"The general revival in the automobile industry is not unnaturally having a stimulating effect on iron and steel markets. Published quotations this week disclose a number of additional advances in both steel and pig iron, and recessions, which were common not long ago, have disappeared."

Bradstreet's makes the following comment: "There is more optimism in trade reports, grain crop advices are better and collections have made another step forward, while in most leading industries production is apparently larger, despite the continuance of the coal strike and the refusal of New England cotton mill hands to take reduced wages. Ordinary distributive trade reports are not greatly different from last week, but there is certainly improvement in surplus grain-growing regions, and a gain in mail-order business is another thing noted.

"Increased strength in raw textiles, wool, cotton and jute is noted as an element in lifting prices of manufactured products of these staples, especially cotton yarns, print cloths, burlap and some kinds of woolen fabrics. The gain in price strength, however, seems more marked than is the increase in sales."

EDISON URGES FORD OFFER.

Senate Committee Invites Him to Appear on Muscle Shoals.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (Associated Press).—An invitation for Thomas A. Edison to appear before the Senate Agriculture Committee at an early date was forwarded today to the inventor's New Jersey home by Senator Norris, Nebraska, Chairman of the committee. The request for Mr. Edison to appear before the committee in formal session followed his recommendations made informally last night to several members of that body, that the Government accept Henry Ford's offer for development of the Government's nitrate and power projects at Muscle Shoals, Alabama.

Mr. Edison's interest and personal knowledge of the project, as well as his desire for their development, attracted the committee's attention when he recently visited the Shoals district in company with Mr. Ford. Since that time, it was pointed out, the committee has received the various proposals for private and Governmental development of the projects and initiated hearings on the merit of the offers, in connection with which Mr. Edison's testimony is sought.

Mr. Edison is said to have assured Senators last night that Mr. Ford would use the Muscle Shoals plants in the manufacture of fertilizer and in this connection declared he himself was interested in developing an American potash supply to compete with the products of German exporters. The inventor further told Senators that he was causing experiments to be made in connection with an extensive slate deposit in Tennessee which had a potash content averaging 18 per cent.

Butchers and Drovers' Bank Elects.

The National Butchers' and Drovers' Bank of New York announces the election as Vice President of Leonard L. Rothstein, who has been a Director for many years. Mr. Rothstein is also engaged in the manufacture of dresses at 3 West Thirty-third Street.

May Move A. B. A. Headquarters.

President Thomas B. McAdams of the American Bankers' Association has suggested that the organization's headquarters offices be moved from New York to Washington. A committee headed by John H. Puelicher has been named to consider the proposal.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

Anglo-American Oil Co., Ltd.
OF ENGLAND

London, May 20, 1922.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Annual General Meeting of the above-named Company will be held at the Registered Office of the Company, 36 and 38 Queen Anne's Gate, London, S. W., on Thursday, the 15th of June, 1922, at 3 o'clock P. M.

For the convenience of Holders of Share Warrants of the Company resident in the United States of America, the Directors of the Company have included among the conditions upon which Share Warrants of the Company are issued, the conditions following:

(17) "Any person as bearer of a Share Warrant or Share Warrants of the Company shall be entitled to attend in person or by proxy, and vote at any General Meeting of the Company in respect thereof if he shall 14 days at least before the day appointed for the meeting deposit his Share Warrant or Warrants with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, U. S. A., which said Company shall issue a certificate setting out the names and addresses of all persons who have so deposited their Share Warrants, and they shall then send such certificate to the Company at its Registered Office, so as to reach it before the time appointed for the meeting, and the person or persons whose names and addresses shall appear in such certificate, or their respective proxies, shall be entitled to vote in respect of the number of shares deposited by them respectively as aforesaid, as shall appear by such certificate. The names of more than one as joint-holders of a Share Warrant shall not be received. The Share Warrant or Warrants deposited with the Guaranty Trust Company as aforesaid, shall be retained by them until after the meeting or any adjournment thereof shall have been held."

(17a) "The Guaranty Trust Company may dispense with the deposit with them of any such Share Warrants for the purpose mentioned in the last preceding condition when such Share Warrants are already deposited with any other Trust Company or Banking Corporation of repute in the United States of America or Canada, and such Trust Company or Banking Corporation shall, 14 days at least before the day appointed for the meeting, furnish to the Guaranty Trust Company a certificate setting forth the name and address of the person on whose behalf they hold such Share Warrants, together with the number of shares represented thereby. Also with an undertaking that they will not part with possession of the Share Warrants mentioned in such certificate, or any of them, or hold them or any of them on behalf of any other person or persons than the person named in the certificate until after the meeting or any adjournment thereof shall have been held. And the Guaranty Trust Company may, when the aforesaid conditions have been complied with, issue a certificate to be sent to the Company setting out the names and addresses of the persons named in any certificates issued to them by any such Trust Company or Banking Corporation as aforesaid, and such person or persons or their respective proxies shall be entitled to vote in respect of the number of shares named in the certificate issued by the Guaranty Trust Company in the same manner as if the Share Warrants representing such shares had been deposited with the Guaranty Trust Company as provided by the last preceding condition."

A. M. HEWETT, Secretary,

Member Banks' Loans and Investments Show $67,000,000 Increase in the Week

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Further increases of $26,000,000 in holdings of corporate securities and $20,000,000 in loans based on such securities, besides an increase of $33,000,000 in the total investments in Government securities, as against a total reduction of $12,000,000 in loans secured by Government obligations and in ordinary commercial loans, are indicated in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly statement of condition on May 10 of 799 member banks in leading cities.

For member banks in New York City the statement shows but a nominal addition to corporate security holdings, an increase of $25,000,000 in loans supported by such securities and an increase of $16,000,000 in United States securities, as against reductions of $7,000,000 each in loans secured by Government obligations and in other commercial loans.

Total loans and investments of the reporting institutions show an increase for the week of $67,000,000, of which $28,000,000 represents the increase in New York City.

Government deposits declined by about $9,000,000, while other demand deposits (net) increased by $61,000,000 and time deposits (largely in New York City) by $45,000,000.

Total borrowings from Federal Reserve Banks declined from $180,000,000 to $150,000,000, or from 1.2 to 1.0 per cent. of the reporting banks' aggregate loans and investments. For member banks in New York City a decrease from $28,000,000 to $9,000,000 in borrowings from the local Reserve Bank and from 0.6 to 0.2 per cent. in the ratio of these borrowings to total loans and investments is noted.

Reserve balances, in keeping with the substantial increase in demand and time deposits, show an increase of $37,000,000, largely in New York City, cash in vault went up $3,000,000, of which $1,000,000 represents the increase at the New York banks.

MISSISSIPPI JOINT STOCK LAND BANK | ARKANSAS JOINT STOCK LAND BANK

5% Farm Loan Bonds

Dated May 1st, 1922. Due May 1st, 1952

Callable at par on May 1st, 1932, or any interest date thereafter.
Interest payable May and November 1, at Equitable Trust Company, New York City.
Denominations: $1,000

EXEMPT FROM FEDERAL, STATE, MUNICIPAL AND LOCAL TAXATION.

These bonds are issued under the Federal Farm Loan Act. Under decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, handed down February 28, 1921, the constitutionality of this act and the tax exemption feature of these bonds were fully sustained.

The bonds are secured by First Mortgages on improved farm lands at not exceeding 50% of the appraised value of the farm land and 20% of the appraised permanent insured improvements thereon. The loans are all made on farms in Mississippi, Tennessee and Arkansas.

The Policy of the above banks in placing loans is very conservative. For the Mississippi Joint Stock Land Bank the percentage of loans to total appraised value of lands and improvements is only 34.5%, while for the Arkansas Joint Stock Land Bank it is 35.2%.

The per cent. earned per annum on the average capital stock of these banks since date of organization has been greater than the average earnings of all the Joint Stock Land Banks. The present net earnings on the capital stock of the Mississippi Bank are 9.60%. The present earnings of the Arkansas Bank are 9.30%. They have never paid any dividends, preferring to leave their earnings in the undivided profit account, thereby strengthening the banks.

The stock of the above banks is owned by the Bank of Commerce & Trust Company of Memphis, Tenn., which is one of the largest financial institutions in the South and is the second largest bank in Memphis. The majority of the directors of these banks are also directors in the Bank of Commerce & Trust Company. This insures wise and experienced management of the banks. In addition the financial ability of the stockholders of the banks (i. e. Bank of Commerce & Trust Company) to pay any necessary assessment is assured.

These bonds are legal investments for all fiduciary and trust funds under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government and are acceptable at par for deposits of Postal Savings and other deposits of Government funds.

COTTON EASES OFF ON WEATHER NEWS

More Favorable Conditions Obtain for New Crop—Prices Decline 11 to 21 Points.

Cotton was not only more quiet in tone, but easier in price yesterday. With the exception of rain at a few points in Atlantic sections where dry weather is wanted, conditions proved most favorable of the week. This had a sobering effect on certain speculators who held larger lines than sound judgment sanctioned. Reduction of these holdings supplied contracts and at length exerted a perceptible influence on prices. October broke through 20 cents for the first time since the rise above that figure, but continued demand for July as a result of improved mill buying of spots South prevented weakness. There is now more cotton in New York than since 1916. Final prices showed a loss of 11 to 21 points.

While Liverpool held the recent advance, private advices indicated a decidedly more quiet tone in that quarter. Spot sales, while below high totals of the week, continued liberal, thus holding prices on old crop positions. Late cables from abroad lost a few points, but nothing occurred to create selling pressure there. Here, trading started actively, with prices generally unchanged. Soon after the opening, sale of 5,000 bales of July and 5,000 October by a prominent floor operator started a wave of selling that brought a quick drop of 15 to 20 points. Uncertainty over the effect of this selling on holders outside the Exchange had an unsettling influence for a few moments. When buying instead of selling orders appeared, prices recovered quickly and before midday had risen above opening figures.

More favorable weather, particularly in Western sections, had a quieting influence on sentiment. There was no general tendency to sell cotton owing to strength of old crop months which came as a direct result of activity in spot circles. July in New Orleans advanced 20 points over previous closing, bringing that market within 25 points of New York, the smallest differences of the season.

Strength in old crop months brought an upturn over 20½ for October, but this encountered profit taking. Several lines of long cotton were reduced during the day, producing erratic fluctuations of 10 to 20 points. It was not until the last hour that speculative lines came out in quantities to exert a definite influence in preventing upturns, and prices moved to low levels of the session. The presence of stop-loss orders between 20 and 19¾ cents for October influenced traders, and when October finally broke through 20 cents it looked for a few moments as though the tone might weaken. But after touching 19.95 any further decline was halted by demand for July around 20.23. Thousands of bales were wanted for that figure, and this, together with a December buying order at 19.91, held prices in final trading. The close was at the bottom.

Spinners' takings again exceeded the corresponding week last year, being 229,000 bales against 193,000. This brought figures for the season to 10,513,000, compared with 8,342,000 last season. As a result, there was another substantial reduction in visible supplies. Figures decreased 98,000 bales, against an increase of 17,000 a year ago, leaving only 3,152,000 bales of American cotton against 4,591,000 a year ago. Exports passed the 5,000,000 mark this week, now aggregating 5,047,000 against 4,314,000 last season.

Certificated stock in New York increased to 140,000 bales, with considerable cotton still to be inspected and more arriving daily. The amount in licensed warehouses is now over 160,000 bales, largest figures since 1916. During the shortage two years ago, the stock was reduced to less than 10,000 bales, when prices rose above 40 cents for middling cotton.

DECLARES FIRST DIVIDEND.

Mother Lode's Action Helps to Enrich Kennecott Copper.

An initial dividend of 50 cents per share, which the corporation expects to maintain each half year, was announced yesterday by the Mother Lode Coalition Mining Company. After the Directors' meeting it was said the corporation had on hand about $2,500,000 cash in bank and in copper. Production is running above 2,000,000 pounds of copper a month and plans call for increasing this to 3,000,000 pounds before the end of the year. It is the Directors' belief that the production cost of 6.70 cents a pound will be reduced substantially before the end of the year.

The declaration of the Mother Lode dividend will add substantially to the cash reserve of the Kennecott Copper Company, since that corporation owns about 51 per cent. of its outstanding capital stock.

LONDON, May 19.—Trading was quiet and prices were steady on the Stock Exchange today. Old 2½ per cent. consols, ⅛ lower at 57⅞; British 5 per cent. war loan, ⅛ higher at 99⅛; 4½ per cent. war loan, unchanged at 96.

Rand Mines, unchanged at 2⅝; De Beers Mining, ⅛ lower at 11⅞.

PARIS, May 19.—Prices were firm on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 25 centimes higher at 57 francs 15 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan, 10 centimes higher at 76 francs 65 centimes. Exchange on London, 17 centimes higher at 49 francs per sovereign; American dollars were quoted at 11 francs 3¼ centimes, against 10 francs 97½ centimes yesterday.

WHEAT 10 CENTS OFF FROM RECENT HIGH

CHICAGO, May 19.—Scattered liquidation was on in May wheat from the start, and the leading bull interest made no effort to support the market, the best buying being by a local elevator house, which hedged by sales of may at Winnipeg and at Minneapolis, presumably closing spreads. The buying was persistent, but, like the selling, was almost entirely in small lots.

Some of the local traders sold May rather freely at time, and there were stop-loss orders caught at $1.40 and down.

At the inside figure the price was off about 4½ cents from the finish of the previous day, with the close 1⅞ cents lower. Deferred deliveries lost 1⅛ to 1⅞ cents, the pressure coming almost entirely from local professionals and the pit element, while commission houses had only a fair trade.

There was a belief after the close that the so-called May deal was over with, but those close to the bull interest said they were simply doing nothing and letting the market take care of itself and would pay for all the wheat tendered on contracts.

To some the action of the market of late in breaking 10 cents from the recent high looked as though scattered longs were being shaken out. Sentiment was so radically bearish after the close that a lower opening would not surprise many in the trade, but the technical position has been strengthened by a three-day decline, and some rally is looked for before the close.

Country elevators and mills are sending wheat here for delivery, and a St. Louis mill is loading out seventy-five cars to send here. The country is also parting with old wheat more freely, an Omaha house buying 150,000 bushels yesterday.

The Kansas State report estimated the wheat crop at 108,500,000 bushels, or 2,000,000 bushels more than the Government May returns, and compares with 148,000,000 bushels harvested last year, and is the fifth largest in the history of the State.

There were numerous complaints in today from Illinois, Indiana and Ohio regarding a delay in corn ploughing and planting as the result of continued rains, and the market showed resistance to pressure early, only to close ⅛@⅜ cents lower, in sympathy with wheat. The bulk of the trade remains of a local character and sentiment is bearish.

Planting is about finished in parts of Nebraska, where it has been dry for some time, while in Kansas only 40 per cent. of the work is out of the way, although the State report suggests ⅛ per cent. increase in the acreage, which may not be realized by later returns.

Oats closed ⅛ cent higher on May, with around 100,000 bushels changing hands at 37⅛ cents, the only price of the day, while the deferred deliveries were ⅛@⅛ cent lower.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 1,036,000 bushels; previous week, 1,248,000; last year, 813,000. Shipments were 980,000 bushels; previous week, 1,072,000; last year, 530,000.

Corn receipts were 645,000 bushels; previous week, 957,000; last year, 424,000, and shipments, 561,000 bushels; previous week, 1,430,000; last year, 676,000.

PROPOSALS FOR RAILWAY SUPPLIES.

SERIAL CONTRACT NUMBER 3.

NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY offers for sale and requests bids for about four hundred wood underframe freight cars heretofore in use on its line of railroad, now standing or being on side tracks of said railroad, where they may be inspected.

(1) Forty, 80,000 pound capacity, box cars, built by Mt. Vernon Car Manufacturing Company, in 1907, and of Norfolk Southern Railroad Company's series 4000 to 4599.

(2) One hundred and twelve, 80,000 pound capacity, box cars, built by American Car and Foundry Company in 1906, and of Norfolk Southern series 4600 to 4899.

(3) One hundred and four, 80,000 pound capacity, box cars, built by Barney & Smith in 1905, Norfolk Southern series 20,000 to 20,499.

(4) Twenty-one, 60,000 pound capacity flat cars, built by American Car and Foundry Company in 1906, Norfolk Southern Railroad Company's series 1540 to 1749.

(5) Thirty-two, 80,000 pound capacity flat cars, built in 1906, by American Car and Foundry Company, Norfolk Southern Railroad series 1200 to 1239.

(6) Thirteen, 80,000 pound capacity, flat cars, built by Barney & Smith in 1905, Norfolk Southern series 10,000 to 10,199.

(7) Thirty-eight, 80,000 pound capacity gondolas, built by American Car and Foundry Company in 1907, Norfolk Southern Railroad series 8800 to 8849.

(8) Forty-two, 80,000 pound capacity gondolas, built by American Car and Foundry Company and Barney & Smith, in 1908, Norfolk Southern series 8200 to 8449.

The said cars are to be delivered in lots of about eighty (80) at the convenience of the railroad company and all are to be delivered prior to the first day of December, 1922.

Payment shall be made by the purchaser of said cars in cash as the several lots are delivered, and bills of sale given therefor and upon release being furnished to the purchaser, releasing said cars from the lien of the railroad company's First and Refunding Mortgage.

Bids are requested at the same time by the purchaser, stating the amount the purchaser will pay Norfolk Southern Railroad Company for the rebuilding by Norfolk Southern Railroad Company of said cars with steel underframes and center sills, and the ends of the box cars reinforced with steel Z-Bars and braces to the end carlins, and with improved draft gears, all in accordance with plans and specifications, and under the form of construction contract on file in the office of the purchasing agent of the company, at Room 411 of Norfolk Terminal Railway Company's building, East Main Street, in the City of Norfolk and State of Virginia, copies of which may be had upon request.

Offers will be received at the same time for the sale of the rebuilt and reconstructed cars to the railroad company on terms stated, with the understanding that $375,000.00 of the purchase price shall be represented by a series of equipment trust notes issued under and secured by an equipment trust or conditional sales agreement, by which the title to the said rebuilt and reconstructed cars shall be vested in and retained by......

as Trustee, until full payment of the principal and interest of said notes and the entire purchase price of said cars represented thereby shall have been made and the balance of the purchase price over and above the said sum of $375,000.00 represented by said equipment trust notes shall bee paid in cash as provided in said Construction Contract.

The form of the equipment trust of conditional sales agreement and notes issued thereunder are to be such as may be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and authority for the issuance of said notes in accordance with the terms of the Interstate Commerce Acts as amended.

It is expected that the Norfolk Southern Railroad Company will be able to secure a loan from the United States with which to finance that part of the purchase price of the equipment represented by the equipment trust notes. The successful bidder shall agree to make said notes available for pledge with the Secretary of the Treasury in event that such loan is obtained. The bid shall include an offer to carry said notes pending the Government loan, the terms of such offer is to be specified in the bid.

The right is expressly reserved to reject any and all bids and if the said bids are rejected the right is reserved to readvertise or to entirely abandon the matter.

Bids will be received at the office of the Purchasing Agent of the Norfolk Southern Railroad Company, on or before 12 M. of the 22nd day of May, 1922, and said bids will be opened in accordance with law between 12 M. and 5:00 P. M. on the 22nd day of May, 1922. Said bids will be opened by the Purchasing Agent of the Norfolk Southern Railroad Company, and all bidders may attend in person or by duly authorized representatives at the opening of the bid, and may examine each and every bid.

This advertisement is made in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission, as authorized by Section 10 of the Clayton Anti-Trust Act, being: "An Act to Supplement Existing Laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, and the amendments and supplements thereto.

Norfolk, Va., May 8th, 1922.

M., June 5, 1922, and then opened for the exclusive privilege of transporting immigrants' baggage from Ellis Island to New York City and adjacent territory for a period of one year, commencing July 1, 1922. For further particulars apply to Robert E. Tod, Commissioner.

Sealed proposals in triplicate will be received by the Commissioner of Immigration, Ellis Island, New York, until two thirty o'clock p. m., May 31, 1922, and then opened for furnishing binding, blue and litho prints, burial service, stevedoring, photographic service and care of clocks during the fiscal year commencing July 1, 1922, and ending June 30, 1923. Specifications may be had upon application.

BUILDERS BUYING APARTMENT SITES

FIFTH AVENUE CORNER SOLD

As a site for an eleven-story apartment hotel, Jacob Goldstein, formerly Treasurer of the Lapidus Engineering Corporation, purchased the property at 23 and 25 West Sixty-fourth Street from the estate of Joseph Garry, which has held title to it for the past thirty years.

The property, which consists of a vacant plot having a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 100.5 feet, is on the same block with Harperly Hall and was held at about $95,000.

Plans are now being prepared for the proposed building, which, it is estimated, will cost about $500,000, exclusive of the land.

Buy Fifth Avenue Corner.

A syndicate headed by J. E. R. Carpenter, builder, and Robert S. Knowles purchased from Mary B. Jennings the vacant plot, 100 by 125, at the south corner of Fifth Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street.

The buyers, who recently bought the adjoining 30-foot parcel on the avenue, are interested in several large apartment properties on Fifth Avenue, and the Ninety-sixth Street corner will be improved with a structure of this kind. Harris, Vought & Co. were the brokers.

Mary C. de Terzouenne of Versailles, France, who acquired the apartment house at 2,340-42 Amsterdam Avenue at foreclosure early in 1918, has resold the property to the Empire State Holding Corporation, William Prager, President. The property consists of a five-story building with stores, between 171st and 172d Streets. E. H. Ludlow & Co. were the brokers.

Operator Buys Harlem Flats.

Sigmund Levin, operator, purchased from the Realty Securities, Inc., the Buckingham and Hazelton Court, two six-story elevator apartment houses, at 3,025 to 3,183 Broadway, between 123d and 125th Streets. They occupy a plot 216 by 100 and have been held at $825,000. They show a rental of $100,000 a year.

The houses were at one time owned by the New York Real Estate Security Company and were acquired in 1916 by the selling company in the present transaction.

Wynne & Low and James H. Cruikshank have sold to Dr. Theodorus Bayles the six-story elevator apartment house, known as the Cedarhurst, at 241 and 243 West 111th Street, containing eighteen suites.

In part payment the purchaser gave his country residence at Saratoga Springs, containing fifteen rooms and one acre of ground. Harry Sugarman was the broker.

Thomas Seddy, a client of Samuel Bitterman, has purchased from Mrs. Mary O'Loughlin the five-story apartment house at 110 East Eighty-third Street, near Park Avenue.

The purchaser plans extensive improvements in the building. Julius Levy and M. Kinsler acted as brokers in the transaction.

Church Adds to Holdings.

The Little Mount Zion Baptist Church, which four years ago bought the synagogue on plot 37.6 by 99.11, at 171 West 140th Street, has increased its holdings at that point by purchasing the plot, 100 by 99.11, on the south side of the street, 175 feet east of Seventh Avenue. The stated price was $30,000.

Bronx K. of C. Community Centre.

The newly formed Century Knights of Columbus Building Association purchased the three-story house, 25 by 100, at 365 East 141st Street, between Alexander and Willis Avenues, which the organization will remodel. A. M. Feher, B. B. Heck and D. J. Barnett are the incorporators of the association. The property will be used as a non-sectarian community center for boys.

Acquire Bronx Apartment Site.

As a site for a five and one-half story apartment house the Hartmann Darr Realty Company purchased from Ennis & Sinnott the northeast corner of Evelyn Place and Grand Avenue. The plot measures 100 by 100 feet. Albert D. Phelps and H. J. Rogers were the brokers in the deal.

The brokers also obtained for the buyers a building and permanent loan of $110,000 from the Lawyers' Mortgage Co.

COMMERCIAL LEASES.

St. Regis Restaurant Pays $500,000 Seventh Avenue Rental.

Morris B. Bronner et al. leased to the St. Regis Restaurant, Inc., the six-story building at 754 and 756 Seventh Avenue, adjoining the southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and Fiftieth Street. The property measures 52 by 90, and at the present time the ground floor consists of stores and the upper portion is conducted as an apartment hotel, which is fully tenanted. The lease is for a period of twenty-one years, starting two and a half years hence, and the aggregate rental involved amounts to $500,000. The lessee will pay a yearly rental of approximately $23,000. Henry Shapiro & Co. negotiated the lease.

Louis Schrag leased for Clara Guttin, Camille Guttin and Henry Guttin the five-story building at 56 West Twenty-fifth Street for a term of twenty-one years to Max Hochberg, who will reconstruct the building into stores, lofts and offices.

The store now occupied by the Chain Shirt Shops and located at 121 Second Avenue, the southwest corner of Eighth Street, has been leased for a period of seven years and nine months to the firm of Barnet L. Becker, Chain Store optician.

The Charles F. Noyes Company leased back for W. R. Grace & Co. to S. Oppenheimer & Co. for a term of years from May 1, 1922, 96 to 100 Pearl Street, three five-story buildings, about 60 by 75, and occupied by the leasing company since 1879. This is property owned by Julius Oppenheimer and adjoining the W. R. Grace & Co. building, but about a year ago it was acquired by W. R. Grace & Co. through the Charles F. Noyes Company in connection with 80 to 94 Pearl Street and 54 and 56 Water Street, all of which property can be "recaptured" from the present tenants at future dates if and when required by W. R. Grace & Co. for improvement purposes.

Suburban Buyers.

The Colonial residence in course of construction on Nyac Avenue, Pelham, N. Y., has been sold by Florence Thomes to a client of Prince & Ripley. The property was held at $22,500.

Dr. George H. Hyslop sold a large colonial residence and two plots on Chatterton Parkway, White Plains, N. Y., to a client of Howe & Thompson.

Fish & Marvin sold for Frances Dillion her residence in the Forest Heights section of New Rochelle to H. C. Haggerty. The property consists of a Dutch Colonial residence with garage and one-half acre of land.

The same brokers sold two plots on the southwest corner of the White Plains Post Road and Grand Boulevard at Scarsdale to a client; also a plot of ground in the Donelian property to Haven C. Babb, who will erect a residence for his own occupancy.

George E. Kerr sold a plot of ground being 200 feet on Roosevelt Avenue, Pelham Manor. The property will be immediately improved with a stone house which will be offered for sale. Murray B. Parks was the broker in the deal.

Trading in Brooklyn.

The Miller-Berge Realty Company sold to Ida B. Berman the two-family house with a double garage on a plot 35 by 100. The house is on the west side of East Ninth Street, 415 feet south of Avenue K. It was held at $18,500. J. Lacoy was the broker.

The demand for home and business sites is indicated in the sales made by William E. Harmon & Co., Inc. Among their recent deals at Marlboro are a 30-foot plot on Avenue Q, near West Second Street, to J. C. Bennett; a 30-foot plot on Avenue Q, near West Second Street, to I. J. Lee; a plot on Gravesend Avenue, between Avenues O and P, to Thomas Barr, and a plot on Sixty-fifth Street, near West First Street, to G. A. Smith.

A. Mishkin sold for the Adage Realty Corporation to Mr. Grotsky two new stores, with apartments above, located on East Fourteenth Street, 62 feet south of Avenue J. The property was held for $27,000.

Offer Jamaica Estates Lots Today.

Seven hundred lots in the fast-growing Jamaica Estates section of Jamaica, including important frontages on Hillside Avenue, are to be sold at absolute auction today on the premises at 2 P. M. by Joseph P. Day, Inc., auctioneers.

The lots to be sold are well distributed over all parts of Jamaica Estates and include a number of choice home building sites on Homelawn Avenue, Roxbury Road, Doncaster Boulevard, Hillside Avenue and adjacent thoroughfares.

Operator in Bronx Garage Deal.

Harry Cahn, operator, sold to an investor the two-story brick building occupied as a garage known as 869 to 871 Courtlandt Avenue covering a plot 50 by 80. Harry H. Cohen and Samuel Singer were the brokers who negotiated the sale.

A Far Rockaway Improvement.

H. Frankfort resold for the Atla Sydam Company of Brooklyn to Philip Liberman the plot of ground with old buildings situated on the easterly side of Central Avenue, abutting the Strand Theatre, Far Rockaway. At the expiration of the present leases the new owner will improve with a business building.

Apartment Site Enlarged.

M. I. Strunsky and J. A. Ulano have sold for Florence Bevins the three-story and basement dwelling at 1,041 Lexington Avenue, on lot 17 by 82.6. The purchaser is the Abraham Bricken Construction Company, which recently bought from Frederick Brown four adjoining houses at the northeast corner of Seventy-fourth Street. With the latest acquisition the construction company controls a site fronting 85 feet on the avenue and 82.6 feet on the street, which it will improve with a nine-story apartment house.

PRIVATE HOUSE SALES.

Society Woman Buys Costly East Side Residence.

The five-story private residence, on a lot 19.10 by 100 feet, at 110 East Seventieth Street has been sold by Miss Elizabeth Cochran to a prominent society woman who will alter and occupy.

The property was held at $110,000, and is directly opposite the home of Thomas W. Lamont. Douglas Gibbons & Co. were the brokers in the sale of the property.

The estate of Charles Gulden sold to a client of Coughlan & Co. the four-story private dwelling at 272 West Eighty-ninth Street. The purchaser will occupy same as a private residence. It was held at $38,000. This is the first sale of the property in seventeen years.

James L. Van Sant has purchased from Marie Smith a five-story dwelling, 49 Seventh Avenue, the size being 16 by 100. The property is directly in front of one of the entrances of the Seventh Avenue subway express station, and this is the first sale of the property in over fifty years. The Duross Company were the brokers in the sale.

James H. Cruikshank sold to Kate Moir 127 West Ninety-second Street, a four-story private dwelling, size 20 by 100, between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues, held at $32,000. Mrs. Julia A. Kennedy was the broker.

Harold C. Mathews has sold to a client of William B. May & Co. the six-story residence at 10 East Sixty-eighth Street, on a lot 26 by 100, which he purchased in January from Otto H. Kahn. The house was in the market at $265,000.

Westchester Estate Sold.

Bing & Bing sold to a client of William H. Whiting & Co. the property known as Kent Hall at Chappaqua, Westchester County. The estate is located on the crest of Long Hill, near Bedford Road and comprises over forty acres. There is a large mansion of Tudor design and a smaller Colonial house, with garages, stables, &c. Bing & Bing acquired the property some months ago from Percy Kent in exchange for an apartment house on Riverside Drive. The property was held at $120,000 but it is said to have cost the original owner many times that figure.

Bay Ridge Sale Nets $50,675.

A total of $50,675, or an average price of $1,689 per lot, was paid for thirty lots in various residential and business sections of Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, at an auction sale conducted Thursday evening in the Brooklyn Real Estate Exchange by the Jere Johnson Jr. Company, auctioneers.

DO you know where MARBLE HILL is? No! Well, it is in Manhattan. And on it has just been completed a sample of EIGHT COLONIAL BRICK HOUSES of 6 or 7 rooms with auto garage, compared with which an apartment is more expensive and not as easy to keep. If your wife is fussy and likes nice things, show her one of these with my assurance that you will save money and please her. It's true. Go to Van Cortlandt Place, near Broadway sub station at 225th St. Ask for Mr. Bingham.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The storm that was central over Eastern Ohio Thursday night moved almost directly northward, and its centre was north of Lake Huron Friday night. This storm has been attended by showers throughout the Lake region, the Upper Ohio Valley and the Atlantic States north of Florida and by strong southerly winds along the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic Coasts.

There have also been local showers within the last twenty-four hours in portions of the Gulf States and west of the Rocky Mountains. Pressure continued high Friday from the gulf of St. Lawrence southward to Bermuda, and it remained low over the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions and the Rio Grande Valley.

The temperature was somewhat higher Friday in the Northwestern States and the Southern Rocky Mountain region, and it was lower in Utah and Nevada. In other parts of the country it changed but little.

Post Office Notice

Postmaster Morgan announces that "window" (panel) envelopes covering correspondence addressed for delivery in Australia will not be accepted for mailing unless the transparent panel forms an integral part of the envelope. Under a recent decision of the Postal Administration of Australia, correspondence enclosed in the so-called two-piece "window" envelopes will not be delivered, but will be returned to the sender. The window envelope which has the "window" made of a separate piece of transparent paper pasted to the inside of the envelope is a so-called two-piece "window" envelope, and is now unmailable to Australia.

Postmaster Morgan invites attention to the following announcement by the Post Office Department: "The Prague office has given notice that all Magyar newspapers published in the United States are prohibited transmission through the mails to the whole territory of Slovakia."

The Civil Service.

City.

The list for Tenement House Inspectors is announced. It contains fifty-one names. The leaders are: Thomas H. Johnson, 90.50; Joseph F. Taggart, 91.10; Michael J. O'Donohoe, 90.70; William A. Strassell, 90.50; Joseph W. Hartun, 89.60; Harold J. Kliese, 89.10; John J. White, 89.20; Stephen Alexander, 88.80; Florence T. O'Riordan, 88.36; Henry D. McIlvoy, 88.40, and Patrick F. McMenimen, 88.30.

United States.

The commission announces an examination, on June 9, for druggist, male or female, of reasonable age, for a vacancy in the United States Veterans' Hospital No. 81, Kingsbridge Road and Sedgwick Avenue, Bronx, at $100 a month and quarters, subsistence and laundry. Appointees may be allowed the increase granted by Congress of $20 a month. Competitors will be rated on: Spelling, 10; pharmaceutical and chemical arithmetic, 10; essay or report writing, 10; chemistry, pharmacy and materia medica, 50; education, training and experience, 20. Should the appointing officer so request, certification will be made of eligibles who are within reasonable age limits. Classified employes who have reached the retirement age and who have served fifteen years are entitled to retirement with an annuity.

HYLAN IN A MARBLE GAME AT CITY HALL

BUT HE MUFFS AND RETIRES

Then a Second Avenue Lad Wins City Championship From a Brooklyn Youth.

Mayor Hylan got down in front of the City Hall yesterday and shot marbles. The Mayor demonstrated that he is a poor marble player. It all came about as the result of a contest to determine the champion marble player of the city. Nickey Markoff, 13 years old, of 1,056 Second Avenue, was acclaimed the champion and the Mayor pinned a gold badge on him. Markoff then left for Philadelphia to meet the winner of the contest in that city.

A dirt court had been placed in the centre of the walk immediately in front of the City Hall steps and at 4 o'clock the Mayor and William W. Cohen, Chairman of the Municipal Committee, got down on their knees and began to shoot. The Mayor's marble did not go within a foot of the ring and he demanded another shot. This time he overshot the ring. Mr. Cohen did much better and knocked a marble out of the ring. Again the Mayor demanded a shot, but his efforts did not come up to the other two and he retired. Then the boys were given a chance.

There were ten boys in the contest, two from each borough and all went out in short order except Markoff and George Lyon of 88 Talman Street, Brooklyn. The crowds cheered the announcement and Markoff played for position. Lyon tried to knock him out of the ring, but only succeeded in placing his marble so that Markoff had an easy shot. Lyon's marble went over the side to the walk and Markoff was declared the winner.

"Buster" Rech of Persey City, who claims to be the champion marble player of the world, will not go to Philadelphia to play in the tournament there today in the City Hall Plaza. City Commissioner A. Harry Moore of Jersey City, who is responsible for "Buster's" progress as a marble player, said that, inasmuch as "Buster" is the champion, having won over Michael Traino, the Washington champion, at a tournament in Jersey City last Saturday, challengers should come to meet him at Jersey City.

Margerie Ruth, 17 years old, of 333 Fifteenth Avenue, Newark, wrote to Mayor Frederick Bridenbach, offering to enter the contest for champion marble shooter, despite the fact that the Mayor sent out a call two weeks ago for boy players only. No boys responded, and it looks as if Margerie will have a walk-over.

SARATOGA TO LOSE BOTH CONVENTIONS

OTHER CITIES CONSIDERED

As the result of amendments to the Election law, Saratoga is off the map as a convention city this year.

Under the law, as it now exists, State conventions cannot be held earlier than Sept. 27, and nominations must be on file with the Secretary of State on or before the Tuesday following, leaving practically only four days—Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the preceding week—in which to hold conventions. As a rule the parties require two days for conventions and two for preliminary conferences. This year apparently both conventions, as a necessity, will be held simultaneously.

During the last week Democrats and Republicans have been negotiating to have the United States Hotel at Saratoga remain open until Oct. 1 to take care of their conventions, although this would involve keeping a large staff on the payroll for practically a month after the close of the regular Saratoga season. Finally the proprietor agreed, on condition that both party conventions would go to Saratoga.

While the negotiations have not yet been abandoned, it was said yesterday that a satisfactory arrangement probably could not be made. Even though the four available convention days would give each party the necessary two days for the convention itself, the party which holds its convention last would require for its preliminaries the two days during which the first convention would be in actual progress and when, consequently, all available hotel accommodations would have been taken by rival delegates and guests.

While no decision has been reached, the Republicans may take their convention to Buffalo, Rochester or possibly Albany. Buffalo has not been the scene of a State convention since 1906, when William R. Hearst, his pre-convention campaign conducted as now by William J. Conners, was named as the head of the Democratic State ticket.

The choice of the Democrats, it was said, may fall on Syracuse, even though it is the home town of Governor Miller, who is likely to again head the Republican ticket. They have an option on the Arena, the largest auditorium in Syracuse, for Sept. 28 and 29. For the time being Syracuse is a Democratic city, following a notable party victory last November.

This young man is "Listening-in," on the Style Wave that covered New York with "Straw," and is now being relayed all over U. S. A.

During the last twenty-five years I have never introduced a style that received such a cordial, enthusiastic reception as the "Styl-flash," which is now the acknowledged Style Sensation of the Season.

The New Feather-weight Amplified Edge with the Light Radio Weave was a logical development of a natural style tendency, and now every hatter in the country is wondering why he didn't think of the Styl-flash first.

It is going to be a lot of fun to see the other fellows follow. Now, I know they're not going to copy the Styl-flash because I put it on my 5 ft. Style Shelf first, but they'll all have to have it simply because it happens to be the most becoming straw hat a man ever put on, and everybody wants it,—and I can't make enough for everybody.

In the meantime while I was at the factory the other day trying to speed up shipments I received an S.O.S. Radio call from New York to reproduce the "Styl-flash" 1000 dozen times. I couldn't ship by Radio, but I saw the "Styl-flash" started before I left the factory, and I can promise now to have your size today.

Imitations are now being rushed through most every Straw Hat Factory in this country, but today you can get the original STYL-FLASH at the original price from the originator.
